She attended Oneida Mission School first grade through eighth grade, and Lutheran School in the sixth grade. She remembers that during growing up they used horse and buggy for travels, there was no electricity, or running water, and that people had to haul their water. Leone worked in Chicago and in Milwaukee doing house work. She also did a small amount of Factory work. She eventually did move back to Oneida. Her mother Julia did lace making and she made corn soup. Being a member of the Oneida Nation makes Leone feel proud of her parents. Leone has hopes that the environment will get better as the youth grow up. If she were to be able to change something about her life she claims she'd want better education.
