ITASCA PARTY LEAVES FRIDAY

Colonization along permanent lines of Jarvis, Baker and Howland Islands, U. S. equatorial possessions, will be commenced with the departure of another expedition in the coast guard Itasca, leaving Honolulu at 10 tomorrow morning.

W. T. Miller, superintendent of airways, department of commerce, who will lead the expedition, announced today that only one radio station will be established, a motor generator transmitting and receiving set on Jarvis.

Experiments will be carried out with the navy stations in Pago Pago and Pearl Harbor and with a Honolulu amateur. If the set is suitable, similar sets will be installed on Baker and Howland within three months.

Quarters To Be Erected

Under the direction of Harry K. Stewart, architect with the territorial department of public works, residential quarters and outbuildings will be erected on each island. The Itasca will remain approximately three days at each island, thus enabling Mr. Stewart to give the necessary preliminary instructions.

The Itasca will take large quantities of lumber, cement, corrugated iron and other building materials.

Mr. Miller said: "This easily is our most important expedition. It means that the government definitely intends to occupy the islands permanently.

"Ah Kin Leong and Yau Fai Lum, Honolulu Chinese boys, will be the radio operators. Lum has been trained by the navy especially for this work.

Will Take Air Recordings

"Upper air weather recordings will be taken only on Jarvis and Howland islands, but surface weather will be studied as usual on all three.

"We are taking a large quantity of varied seedlings and cuttings for planting on the islands—milo, ironwood, cashew, mango, breadfruit, Hawaiian orange, passion fruit and sea grapes. Besides providing shelter and windbreaks, most of the trees will bear fruits and nuts for the men in the future."

New Boys Going Out

The names of the Kamehameha boys going to replace others already on the islands are: Joseph Anakalea, Solomon Kalama, Joseph Kim, William Yomes, Manuel Sproat and Jacob Haili.

Those returning by the Itasca will be Frederick Lee, George Kahana, Stewart Markham, Aki Kini Pea and Hartwell Blake. Blake is returning to enter the university of Hawaii.

The shaping of the islands for use by aircraft will not start until the next voyage of the Itasca in about three months, when a tractor will be taken so that the bumps can be removed from the natural runways on the islands.

Richard B. Black, field representative of the department of interior, which controls the islands, will accompany Mr. Miller tomorrow.

Boy Scouts Visiting Hawaii

When the Aorangi reached Honolulu, her passenger list included a group of Boy Scouts from Seattle and Tacoma, here for a visit five weeks at the invitation of the Maui County Council of the scouts. The boys, shown above aboard ship just before stepping ashore in Honolulu, are: Back row, left to right—Bob Haas, John Long and Bob Umphrey. Front row, left to right—Jim Brinkley, Fowler Martin and Leader T. C. Lewis. With the exception of John Long, who is from Tacoma, the boys are from Seattle. They will spend a week in Honolulu, three weeks on Maui and a week on Hawaii.—Star-Bulletin photo.

CAMPBELL INFORMED ON REORGANIZATION OF PACIFIC MUTUAL

In response to a request for information regarding reorganization of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Los Angeles, A. N. Campbell, general agent here, today received the following message from the home office:

"The Pacific Mutual has been reorganized and the only change is reduction of noncancellable policies coverage for future claims. All life and other form of policies will continue unimpaired and all claims paid. Temporary moratorium on surrender values and policy loans only. Entire plan recommended by insurance commissioner and approved by court. No cause for concern or alarm."

Today's Weather

The highest temperature at Honolulu for the 24 hours ending at 8 a. m. today was 82 degrees; lowest, 72 degrees; rainfall, 0.03 inch. Barometer: Highest, 30.02 inches; lowest, 29.94 inches. Highest wind velocity, 12 miles per hour from the northeast.

Forecast for the Hawaiian islands and vicinity: Tonight and Friday, partly cloudy, occasional showers tonight, mostly in uplands; scattered showers in uplands Friday. Light to moderate east to northeast winds.

North Pacific Weather

A mild depression is central over the northern portion of the Gulf of Alaska, probably somewhat below 29.90 inches, and pressure is relatively low over California and the bordering water. Otherwise high barometer is general over the northern Pacific from the northwest coast states as far west as longitude 160 degrees east with maximum about 30.50 inches near 40 degrees north and 165 west. Pressure continues low in the vicinity of southern Japan.

East to northeast trade winds, mostly moderate, are indicated for the steamer routes going in all directions from Honolulu.

Through the courtesy of the federal weather bureau, The Star-Bulletin will publish daily high and low temperatures taken at a representative number of cities on the mainland.

PRIESTS MEET TO CELEBRATE

CLASSMATES STILL TOGETHER 25 YEARS AFTER

A little more than a quarter century ago three boys, from three different countries, were classmates at a theological seminary in Belgium. After their ordination, their paths led to far parts of the world. One went to Chile; another became a missionary to the lepers of Molokai; the third was taken as a prisoner of war into Germany.

Now, 25 years later, they are together at the Roman Catholic cathedral of Our Lady of Peace on Fort St., where they will celebrate their silver jubilees in the ministry at a high mass Thursday of next week at 9 in the morning.

They are:

Father Patrick Logan, born in Dublin, Ireland, December 24, 1887, the son of James and Bridget Smith Logan.

Father Joseph H. Verschueren, born in Belgium November 3, 1886, the son of Louis and Katherine Roelin Verschueren.

Father Philip Blom, born in Arnhem, Holland, October 30, 1861, the son of Frederick and Hermina Mulder.

After early studies in their homeland, the trio studied philosophy and theology together in Belgium and were ordained priests of the Society of the Sacred Hearts at the same ceremony at Courtrai, Belgium, July 30, 1911.

Served on Molokai

Almost direct from his ordination, Father Philip came to Hawaii, arriving here early in October of 1911. He was for a year at the Fort St. cathedral, and then spent three years as a priest at Kalawao, the now deserted village where Father Joseph Damien had preceded him trail which leads down from the Molokai Pali. He has noted many material improvements during the years, but insists that the patients at the settlement "are much happier than people usually think," having their own interests to fill their lives.

Since 1915, Father Philip has been an assistant at the cathedral, except for the year 1920 which he spent at Lahaina, on Maui.

He is diocesan director of the Apostleship of Prayer, directors of the two Chinese and one Japanese clubs of the cathedral, and director of Hui Puuwai Aloha. He learned to speak Hawaiian while on Molokai and is now the only priest at the cathedral who preaches in that tongue.

He has returned once to Europe, as a priest.

He has since been back to the leper settlement many times, both by boat and over the horseback in 1927.

Was "In Jail"

Father Joseph, also an assistant at the cathedral, claims the distinction of being "the only one of the trio who has been in jail."

After his ordination, he remained in Courtrai as a professor at the preparatory seminary, and when war broke out, he joined the Red Cross ambulance service. During the first German advance through Belgium, he was taken prisoner as Aerschot and was held at the prison camp at Munster, Westphalen, until his release 100 days later.

"The longest 100 days in my life," he says ruefully.

After that, he went to England as a refugee, and when peace was restored, he taught at the major seminary at Courtrai.

He arrived in Hawaii February 27, 1923, and was for 10 years priest at Kaneohe and other points in the Koolau district, before he came to the cathedral. In addition to other duties, he is spiritual director of the Holy Name society of the cathedral.

He paid a visit to his homeland about a year ago, traveling with Bishop Stephen Alencastre most of the way.

Father Patrick Logan claims he "is no hero like the other two," having been neither a missionary to the lepers nor a prisoner of war. He omits, however, reference to the fact that he is considered one of the best preachers in the diocese and has been chosen to give important addresses on a number of occasions. He preached the sermon at the memorial services for Father Damien, held early this year when the priest's body was in Honolulu on its way to Belgium, and he also preached the baccalaureate sermon for the University of Hawaii this year.

For 15 years, he did missionary work in Chile, South America, and he was a professor of philosophy and theology in Catholic seminaries there as well as in Belgium.

He arrived in Hawaii June 23, 1931, almost 20 years after his ordination. He is secretary to Bishop Stephen and chancellor of the diocese, besides being in charge of the Catholic churches at Kailua and Waimanalo.

Mass Sunday morning at the Kailua church will observe the approaching jubilee, and he will be special guest at a luau there at 5 Sunday evening, at which time the other two priests will also be present to dip their fingers into the fish and poi.

He was founder and first director of the Newman clubs at the University of Hawaii, while teaching at the Hawaii school of religion, and he is spiritual director of the Catholic Women's Aid society and of the Catholic Tuesday Morning club.

Three priests, ordained together at Courtrai, Belgium, July 30, 1911, will celebrate their silver jubilee together at mass next Thursday morning at 9 at the Cathedral of Our Lady of Peace. Left to right, Father Philip Blom, who has been in Hawaii for nearly 25 years; Father Patrick Logan, who came to Hawaii in 1931, and Father Joseph H. Verschueren, who came to Hawaii in 1923.—Star-Bulletin photo.

OUR OWN POETS

INGRATITUDE

By L. CYNTHIA IKADA
Waipahu, Oahu

You offered me
A white ginger blossom
Fragrant, pure and lovely
To express, to reveal all
That lay hidden
In your heart,
But I, unkind soul,
Gave you naught
But the self-same flower,
Untouched . . . unbreathed.

I love ginger blossoms
Fragrant, pure and lovely.
Yet . . . such are meant
For warmth and sunshine,
Laughter and joy
Not tears
Shed in a dull retreat;
For sweet-scented air
That breathe
And give, in return,
Other sweetness;
For smooth, subtle fingers
Not rough, soiled hands
Lest they slur whiteness.
And mar beauty.

You offered me
A white ginger blossom
Fragrant, pure and lovely,
But I, unkind soul,
Gave you naught
But the self-same flower,
Untouched . . . unbreathed.

DON'T PLAY ALOHA OE WHEN I GO

By BERTON BRALEY

(Note: This famous poem, which has been used as the theme for several songs, was written by Mr. Braley when he was visiting in Honolulu several years ago, and is reprinted here by request.)

Don't play Aloha Oe when I go,
For it tears the very tissues of my heart.
There is mist upon my glasses
As the ship from harbor passes,
And it isn't very easy to depart.
If the mountains seem a little vague and dim,
It's the film before my eyes that blurs them so.
Have a little human pity as I leave this magic city,
Don't play Aloha Oe when I go.

Don't play Aloha Oe when I go,
As the ship is heading out to open sea.
Don't you know my heart is aching,
As I watch the white surf breaking
On the coral reef that fringes
Waikiki?
I am trying hard to simulate a smile,
I am fighting back the tears that seek to flow.
Let me sail in manly fashion,
Have a bit of true compassion,
Don't play Aloha Oe when I go.

Don't play Aloha Oe when I go,
It is just a little more than I can bear.
Must my consciousness be freighted,
Must my soul be lacerated
By that throbbing, throbbing cadence on the air?
There's a lump I cannot swallow in my throat,
There's a pain within my breast that seems to grow,
Call Aloha so I hear it,
But be merciful in spirit,
Don't play Aloha Oe when I go.

BEAUTEOUS PANORAMAS

By R. G. MANUEL
645 Pokole St.

When the pale lights of dawn was being chased
By Apollo's chariot of fire and gold,
My heart cheruled with twitterings, that praised
A glorious tropical morn to behold.

Whose tantalizing beauty bespeaks
A Power Supernal,
Who adorned these "Paradise isles"
With multi-colors—virginal.

Silken fluffy fleece of regal yellow,
Bespangled the eastern skies,
fresh and new
As the easterlies fanned, soft and mellow
Through the greenish flora sparkling with dew;
Another day—heavy Time's infinitesimal fragment,
Was born to witness man's glories, caprices and defilement.

Soon the inspiring morn of much grandeur,
Changed her garment into silvery down,
Intensifying freshness and verdure;
Of earth's many colored fascinating gown.

Bars of silvery shafts, pierced through feathery clouds of the east,
As myriads of God's creatures; Its light, warmth and beauty to feast.

Oh, that the Light of Truth, shines unhindered,
And all egotistical clouds be cleared,
Unfolding beauteous panoramas,
Enhancing happiness in Life's drama.

The church of Hagia Sophia, in Constantinople, and St. Mark's, in Venice, are judged the finest examples of Byzantine architecture.
