Title: Waffle Correspondences 1850-1900

Scope & Content / Abstract:

Single page correspondence written on blue lined paper that is addressed "Bellwood N-- Jan 7th 1892, Friend Waffle" and is signed "Yours -- H. Ball". The letter talks about inviting Waffle to their home to stay in "The Garden of the World" which I'm assuming is New Jersey, but they also mention Columbus. The writing is difficult to read because the up strokes are missing or are too light.

There are multiple holes in the paper: one along the left edge, a small one just right of it, followed by a large hole to the right of the small one. There is also a hole along the intersection of two of the creases near the right edge. The letter is discolored and the paper along the top margin has been crinkled down the center of the letter. The back is more discolored and dirty than the front with what looks like a fingerprint along the left edge and black stains in the middle.
