

Record of Earthquake Damages (Microfiche)

Arranged numerically by street, including Sanborn Map coordinates, the Record of Earthquake Damages contains the following information about numerous buildings in Charleston in the aftermath of the 1886 Earthquake: owner and occupancy, material of building and roof, dimensions, condition of walls, condition of chimneys and flues, damage by earthquake (dollar amount), notes on what should be done to make it safe, and additional remarks.

Note that some street names have changed since 1886. Please consult sources related to street names to confirm.

INSTRUCTIONS: On the street index, locate the name of the street you are researching and the corresponding page number on which it appears in the Record of Earthquake Damages; then refer to the Microfiche Sheet Index to determine which sheet(s) to review.
