Re: 17 Meeting Street

Dear Ms. Kendall:

Thank you for your inquiry regarding the buildings at 17 Meeting Street. We have reviewed several nineteenth century maps at the South Carolina Historical Society and investigated the main house with Ms. von Werssowetz. Photographs taken during the site visit are attached.

The maps indicate that by 1852 there was a dwelling and stable on the property, in the same locations as the existing structures. The site inspection revealed building techniques and materials that date the construction of the main house before 1830.

In the staircase and in the flooring and fireplaces of the second floor are evidence of eighteenth and nineteenth century building practices, materials, and proportion. Still in place in the staircase are the original bases to the square newels, with their mortise and tennon construction. The compass-head window and trim are also indicative of an earlier period, probably before 1830. At the second level the flooring and mantel detail show the location of the early hearths, changed in the 1850's or 1880's.

The Bridgens and Allen Map of 1852 clearly shows an outbuilding in the same location as the existing stable. This stable also appears on the 1888 Sanborn Map. While we were not able to inspect its construction, we did note an early window opening and shutter detail on the south elevation. The stable could well have origins in the Federal period, with changes over time reflecting the needs and styles of the following 150 to 200 years.

I hope that this information is helpful to you.

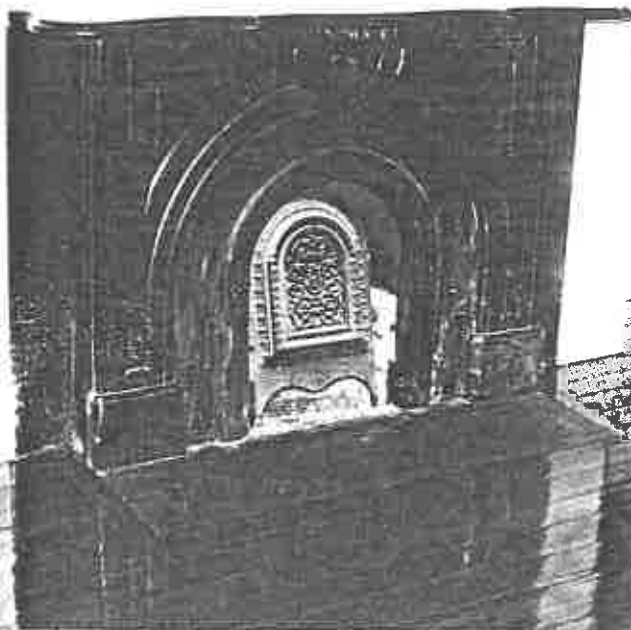

Sincerely,

John Laurens
