

*114 Wentworth St. -- This two and one-half story wooden building, dating from the early 19th century, was converted to a store during the Victorian period. It was restored in 1975 by the College of Charleston as part of its campus.
(Stockton, DYKYC, Sept. 1, 1975)

*120 & 122 Wentworth St. -- These two frame dwellings were built by John Burckmeyer, a butcher, sometime after he purchased the property in 1791 and before his death about 1811. He is listed as living in this part of Wentworth Street in the 1796 city directory. According to tradition, Burckmeyer lived at 122 Wentworth while 120 Wentworth was under construction. Both houses were built as two and one-half stories of wood on high brick basements and retain late 18th century features. Both, however, have been remodeled and expanded more than once. 120 Wentworth remained in Burckmeyer's family until 1830, while 122 Wentworth remained in the family until 1845.
(Thomas, DYKYC, May 11, 1970 & May 23, 1970.)

*128 Wentworth St. -- Henry Cobia, an auctioneer and commission merchant on Vendue Range, built this two story stuccoed brick Italianate style house sometime after 1852. The interior has carved white marble mantels and elaborate plasterwork and woodwork.
(Thomas, DYKYC, May 2, 1970. Stockton, unpub. notes)

*137 Wentworth St. -- Built speculatively by Alexander Black, this two story frame house was first occupied by Mrs. Catherine Lopez, a "free woman of color," who purchased the property from Black in 1838. It was sold from her estate in 1847.
(Stockton, DYKYC, July 28, 1980)