157 Rutledge was actually about two doors north of the high school, actually. It is where the parking deck is now.

Subject: Two house photos

Just in the last few days, two different people have posted really nice, old photos of two houses on the Before 1945 Facebook group. I have reached out to both to see about getting a high res scan. The one was trading messages with me, but then disappeared. The other one I just wrote to today, so I hope to hear back soon. I'll let you know if I can secure better versions of these. 205 Broad is still present, albeit without the second floor railing and with a different railing on the first floor. The house at 157 Rutledge was torn down to build the old Charleston High School in the 1920s.
