This is a photo from 1934. What I really like about it is that it was taken farther away from the campus and happen to pick up a big swath of the mid-town area. I wish the quality were crisper, but by zooming in you can really pick out some good details on buildings. It's like a "Where's Waldo" game. I've been zooming in on it for an hour, and I keep getting amazed by oddball little details.
