Dear Mr. Coe,-

In accordance with my father's request, I had the most lovely and exquisite little set of furniture, that we have here, photographed, photos of which I am sending you herewith.

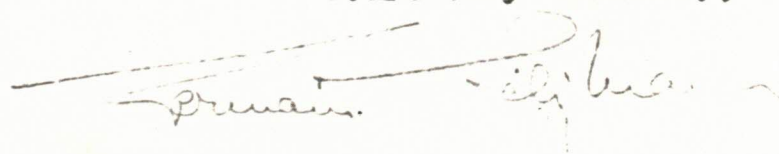

The silk, as you can see by the photo, is in the style and absolutely made after ancient drawings, but it is not of the period. What is most exceptional and lovely about this set of furniture are the frames, which are of course guaranteed genuine of the time. You can see on the back what are the dimensions of the separate pieces, and my father and I feel absolutely sure that this is exactly what you ought to have in your little octagonal room.

It is always, of course, extremely difficult to judge anything by photos, but you can certainly realize by them of what lovely shape and what most unusual model they are. They come from the collection of Baron FOULD-SPRINGER, who belongs to the Viennese nobility, and who is considered as a man of very great taste.

Requesting you to kindly remember me to Mrs. Coe and both your sons,

Pray believe me,

Yours very sincerely,
