Though the vote in the early afternoon did not maintain the gain made in the morning, the steady work later overcame this tendency to drop, and made the total vote cast, compared with that of last April, greater than it was at noon, when yesterday's vote was 261 ahead, the gain for the whole day over April, 1898, being 399. Again the figures showed, despite the large vote polled in the morning, that more than half the entire number of ballots comes in after 2 o'clock. Though troops of all sorts and many styles of workers were kept rushing about until the polls closed at 6:30, comparatively few votes were polled in the last few minutes. The following shows the total number of ballots cast in each ward and the number of names on each list not checked:

GEORGE L. VERNON, FOURTH REPRESENTATIVE.

	1	2	3	4	5	Total
Voting,	698	850	721	700	602	3571
Not checked,	208	203	235	213	233	1092

Credit should be given to both sides for steady, energetic work, as it was last as they were received, and a large and very quiet crowd gathered outside to see them. There was no crowding. The Republicans realized that the Democrats had to overcome a big lead, using the returns of last April, to get even a show, and this they had done to so great an extent that the Republicans had nothing to shout over. The Democrats were silent because after all their hard work they had not pushed Mr. Honey's figures up high enough.

HIBERNIAN RIFLES SOCIAL.

The Hibernian Rifles gave their third annual social in Odd Fellows' hall last evening, a large number being present and enjoying the entertainment which the committee—Lieutenant D. Shea and Privates J. Fagan, P. Healy, J. F. Collins and John Barrett—had prepared. Captain J. P. Keefe was floor director, Sergeant M. F. Nolan assistant director, and Sergeant W. H. Finn and Privates S. J. Shea, W. J. Blake and J. Baker aids. The music was furnished by the Harry K. Howard orchestra and James M. Sullivan was the prompter. The guests were received by Lieutenant E. McCarty and Privates P. Connors, M. Sullivan and T. McHugh, the reception committee.
