RODEO

World championship titles were first won in Prescott, Arizona as that was where open contests originated back in 1888.

(However later many larger shows sprang up and claimed to decide the official title)

In 1929, the Rodeo Association of America was organized and most widely recognized for deciding who were the most entitled to those honors. Most of the largest rodeos throughout the U.S. and Canada joined it to give a credit of one point for each dollar put up in prize money and the cowboys winning the most money through out the year were awarded the titles. The All-Round Championship was awarded to the contestant winning most points in all the events while other titles were won by most points in their respective events.

In 1932, the cowboys themselves organized in a union. The Cowboys Turtle Association, to further improve rodeo, especially by setting more stable rules and patronizing only honest promotions which paved the way building up the sport as we have it today. In 1945, this was succeeded by the Rodeo Cowboy Association of America, which in turn was succeeded by the International Rodeo Association in 1946.

Rules governing rodeo have scarcely changed since their beginning. Each cowboy enters on his own, pays an entry fee, pays his own traveling and living expenses, rides at his own risks and only receives what he wins. Only those who walk away with top money time after time get help with endorsements from their names and personal appearances in other venues. In rodeos lasting several days, each cowboy pays an entry fee to each contest, which entitles him to participate in that event. Fees are different at different rodeos.

Two judges are chosen to judge the riding events, both horse or bull are judged—half the points on the how hard the horse bucks, and the other half on the riders performance, and how much he uses his spurs. Steer wrestling and roping events are timed events, a yellow flags starts the timing and another yellow flag stops the timing. The fast time with no errors is the winner. Some infractions cause a penalty of so many seconds to be added to the cowboy's time.

Failing in conduct or ability to ride or rope according to the rules, which are made by the cowboys themselves, disqualifies the cowboy.

All bucking horses, bulls, steers and calves used in the events are numbered and the cowboys draw their numbers so no contests are favored.

SADDLE BRONC RIDING:

National top bucking horses are used and ridden only with Association saddles, which have no horn. Ordinary halter with but one rein is allowed and must be held only by hand on the same side of the horse's neck. These horses are bigger and stronger than the bareback animals.

In this event, the contestant must start the bronc, by having both spurs over the break of the horse's shoulders, and touching the horse when the horse's front feet hit the ground the first jump out of the chute. The type of spurring used in this event starts from the break of the horse's shoulders and goes back along each side, for a 10-second ride.

BAREBACK BRONC RIDING:

A one-hand rigging, a strong grip, and a lot of balance id all that keeps the cowboy aboard a Bareback Bronc. The rigging is about ten inches in width at the handhold and tapers to about six inches at the "D" rings on each side of the animal, which a cinch strap attached. The rigging is placed around the upper portion of the mid-section of the horse and secured by the cinch strap.

Watch that important first jump out of the chute, to see the rider has both spurs over the break of the horse's shoulders, when the horse's front feet hit the ground. In bareback there is a different type of spurring used, that is called "popping the knees". This spurring is continued over the break of the horse's shoulders for an eight-second ride.

BULL RIDING:

This event is by far the most dangerous of the rodeo sports. The bulls are the quickest acting animal's of their size anywhere in the world. The bulls are selected for their ability to dismount the cowboys. The bull will buck, twist, spin, or even use the head in an attempt to throw the rider, so they can trample, gore, or butt him. (This is where the rodeo clown shows the agile skill and ability to divert the bull's attention and keep the cowboy off foot from injury.) When a cowboy eases onto the back of the bull in the chute and takes hold of a rope that is looped around the bull, behind the hump, and the only means of keeping it tight is the grip of the cowboy. The R.C.A. requires the rope not have any knots or hitches in it to prevent it from falling off the bull, and a bell under the belly of the bull to help pull the rope off when the rider leaves him. The only rules in bull riding are, a contestant must ride for 8 seconds and he cannot touch the animal with his free hand during that time. While it sounds simple to some there are fewer cowboys who complete the 8 second ride than don't.

STEER WRESTLING (BULLDOGGING)

Bulldogging is another name for this fast moving event. Coordination, speed, strength and a good fast horse are all necessary in this event. The cowboy and the hazer are mounted one on each side of the chute. The hazer leaves the chute the same time the steer does to keep the steer running straight. An automatic barrier is used to give the steer a running start. Breaking the barrier results in a 10-second penalty. The steer wrestler must catch the steer and bring it to a complete halt before wrestling the steer down. If the steer is accidentally knocked down he must be let up on all four feet and thrown by hand. The steer must be twisted to the ground with all four feet free, and pointing the same direction as the head.

CALF ROPING

The biggest prize money of all the rodeo events is dished out in this timed event, Calf Roping. Calf roping is a race against time. A barrier rope is placed in front of the cowboy and horse, and is automatically released when the calf passes through the gate. Breaking the barrier results in a 10-second penalty. Once the calf is roped or (lassoed), the cowboy must throw the calf and tie any three feet with a "piggin strung" (small short rope) which he carries in his mouth. If the calf is knocked down, he must be let to his feet, thrown by hand, and tied. Once the tie is complete, the cowboy cannot touch the calf again. The tie must hold until passed by the judge. If the tie comes loose or the calf gets to his feet before the judge's ruling, the roper will receive no time. The flag judge will pass on the tie of the calf, through use of a stopwatch, timing 5 seconds, from the time the horse takes his first step forward after the roper has remounted.

A well trained horse counts as much as the cowboy's skill in this event. A well-trained horse will keep the roped calves from having any slack in it from the time the calf is thrown until the cowboy's steps back into the saddle.

WILD HORSE RACING;

About the only thing spectators can expect in this event is certain pandemonium, as three-men teams try to get wild horses (outlaws) of the range saddled mounted and ridden across the finish line. The rider and his two "muggers" are faced with several hundred pounds of pure tornado wearing only a halter and a shank. At a signal, the team must saddle, mount and do one full lap around the arena. Anything can happen.

WILD COW MILKING;

A group of wild cows is turned loose into the rodeo arena. A team of two men must catch a wild cow in the arena and while one holds the cow still, the other one must milk some milk into a pop bottle and run it to the time judge standing in the arena. This event like the Wild horse race is mostly just for the entertainment at the rodeo.

BARREL RACING;

While this is a relative new event to the rodeo, its popularity is growing rapidly. The young women who compete in this timed event spend many hours training their horse to run the barrels. Again, a good horse is as important as the rider is. Three barrels are spaced in a loose diamond pattern in the arena. The rider races from the gate at the far end of the arena around each of the barrels laid out on the course. If a barrel is knocked down during the riders try, she is disqualified. The rider with the fastest time is the winner regardless of form.

Do you know your rodeo lingo for instance what is a GO-Round – Hollihanning, Split ?????

First off, rodeo is pronounced ROE-DEE-OH not RO-DAY-O

GO-ROUND ---- Each cowboy in an event gets one head of stock (Ex. - 1 bull to ride, 1 calf to rope, ECT.)

SECTION ---- A portion of one go-round

DAY MONEY ---- Cash money paid in each go-round / day

AVERAGE ---- Cash prize paid to the cowboys winning the most points or who have accumulated the most time during the whole rodeo

All ROUND COWBOY ---- Cowboy winning the most money during the show regardless of which events he works.

CHUTES ---- Bucking chutes in which horse are saddled and mounted before turning loose in the arena, or one in which calves or steers are held to be released for the cowboys to rope or throw in the arena.

CATCH PENS ---- Where the stock is held after they are used in the arena

BAREBACK ---- Horse ridden without a saddle or bridle

BRONC, SADDLE BRONC – BUCKIN HORSE ---- All refer t the horse being ridden

VEALER ---- Calf

DOGGIN ---- Bull dogging or steer wrestling.

WRECK ---- An accident such as a horse falling on a cowboy in the arena.

HOOLIHANNING ---- A summersault with the cowboy in the middle.

KILLED ---- Term used when a cowboys gets hurt in the arena (but not referring to death)

FREEZE OR FROZE ---- When an animal refuses to come out of the open gate into the arena.

STRIGHT AWAY ---- When a bucking horse or bull goes in a straight line.

RERIDE ---- When an animal does not give the cowboy a good ride or show, the cowboy may ask the judges for a new animal to perform on.

GOOSE EGG ---- Signifies a "0" marked by the judges when a cowboy disqualifies for breaking a rule.

NO TIME ---- Means the cowboy didn't complete the ride for a given time (in some shows all rides are timed 10 seconds, while in other only 8 seconds are official.)

SLAP ---- To touch the bucking animal with the free hand.

DEE RING ---- To put spurs in, chinch ring, not spurring

SUCK BACK ---- Horse or bull that bucks with a backward motion.

GAS ---- a roping or dogging horse's speed.

SET UP ---- roping or dogging' stock that stops, suddenly causing the contestant to go on by.

DIE ---- A horse with a quick stop – DIES – when he stops

JERKIN SLACK ---- Jerking the slack out of the lasso to tighten noose around the calf's neck.

BARRIER ---- A string put in front of the horse while in the roping chute.

SCORE LINE --- The line the calf must cross before the horse and roper can pass barrier.

LAP & TAP ---- No barrier, the roper or dogger

COME WITH 'EM ---- Calf or steer

RIGGIN ---- Any gear used by a cowboy in a contest. (Ex. Bare back riggings, buck reins, ect.)

BARE BACK RIGGIN ---- Wide leather band with a handhold that is cinched on a horse's back like a saddle.

BUCK REIN OR REIN ---- Soft braided rope tied to the horse's halter that is used by bucking horse riders.

SHANKS --- Spurs, SHANKING - spurring

SPLIT ---- Cowboys tied in points or time for the prize money. The money is split between them.

HUNGRY --- A cowboy who has to win or go broke.

WEAKEN --- to give up before you are beaten

OUT STOUT --- To use sheer strength

FLANK ---- A strap cinched around the horse hindquarters

FLANK A CALF ---- roper throws a calf by grabbing over the animal's back and getting a hold of the flank.

LEGGIN 'EM DOWN ---- To throw a calf by grabbing near leg and throwing them down.

BLOWING STIRRUP ---- Losing foot from stirrup

RAKING ---- Type of spurring the cowboy uses on saddle broncs

PULLIN' LEATHER --- Grabbing a hold with both hands before time is up.

SUICIDE TWINE ---- The rope placed behind the hump and around the belly of the bull, the only hold the cowboy has to hold on to when ridding the bull

PIGGIN' STRING ---- A small short rope used to tie the calf's legs in the roping event
