Sisu Women's Club Born To 'Add Something More'

By LOUISE McDERMOTT

Herald Woman's Editor

Eleven women in a new Kennewick women's club started with parliamentary drills under the watchful eye of a Tri-City parliamentary specialist, Mrs. Bruce Johnson of Richland.

"We want to start off right," said Mrs. Richard Beebe, 1604 annual convention of Washington State Federation of Women's Clubs.

Installation of its original officers will be jointly with its sponsor at 8:30 p.m. June 5 at the new Ballerina Motel meeting facilities.

NEW NAME

The new club's name is Sisu, pronounced "See-Sue."

It's Finnish, meaning 'something still more,' with a connotation of 'inner force which gives extra strength and meaning,' said Mrs. George Merrill, W. 16th Ave., who was refer to herself in first person but always as "the chair." Mrs. Johnson urged each member, even of a small luncheon group, to stand and address the chair before proceeding.

"It takes a motion to get anything started," Mrs. Johnson cautioned. "And be direct. Say 'I move to' or 'I move that' not 'I think I would like to make a motion'."

And she guided the "infant" club through a series of motions in which among other things the club learned how to rescind a passed motion by a resolution or a reconsideration.

TEACHER'S WIFE

The Sisu club's president is wife of the principal of Westgate School. She was first and fourth president of the Kennewick Juniors. Mrs. Graham was second, Mrs. Gene Davis, third, Mrs. Les Strickland, fifth president of the junior club.

Junior, Sisu Women's Clubs Install At Joint Ceremony

Mrs. Jack Stenstrom was installed president of Kennewick Junior Women's Club and Mrs. Dwayne Hall, president of Sisu Women's Club at joint ceremonies and a dinner dance Saturday night at the Ballerina Restaurant.

A graduation theme was chosen with eight Kennewick Junior members and three former members becoming members of the newly chartered Sisu Women's Club.

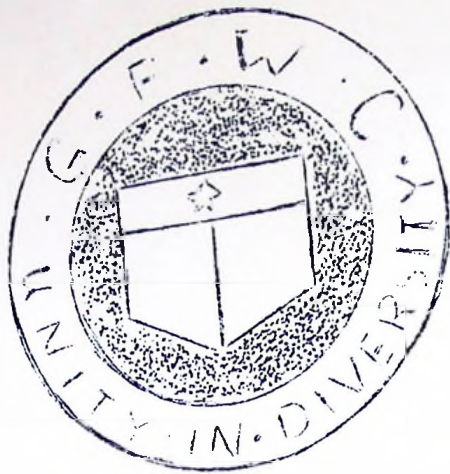

Mrs. Kenneth Gerlach, retiring president, and Mrs. Richard Beebe, past president, conducted installation for the slate of Junior officers for the 1965-66 club year, including Mrs. Tom Brutzman, first vice president; Mrs. Gary Meyers, second vice president; Mrs. Kenneth Lohman, recording secretary; Mrs. Lynn Tobin, corresponding secretary and Mrs. Perry Hummell, treasurer.

Officers of the Sisu Club installed by Mrs. Lohman, state youth and welfare chairman of the Washington State Federation of Women's Clubs, Junior Membership, were Mrs. James Mustard, vice president; Mrs. Harlan McMullen, secretary and Mrs. Burt Ferris, treasurer.

Graduating Juniors were honored in ceremonies conducted by Mmes. Meyers, Brutzman and Stenstrom and a gift of appreciation given Mrs. Gerlach. A humorous program by Mmes. Dwayne Hall and Stenstrom followed the graduation theme.

Girls win in contest

Washable school dresses made by three Kennewick High School students won them cash and merchandise this week as Sisu Woman's Club conducted the local finals of the fifth annual sewing contest.

Rebecca Bussell, whose dainty green dotted frock took first place, will be eligible to compete for the district prize when the Federated Women's Clubs hold the state convention in Yakima in May.

Last year's winner from the Sisu Club was Wendy Adams, now a senior at KHS, who went on to win first place in the district and state contests. Her sister Holly Adams won third place in this year's local contest with a trim blue and white shirtwaist.

Second place winner Debbie Blum lined her pink floral print dress completely with washable pink cotton fabric and edged the neck and puff sleeves with pink lace. Each of the 14 local contestants received a prize, either cash from the club or merchandise from a Kennewick merchant.

First prize was $10 and material for a sweater; second, $5 and fabric for a dress and scarf, and third, $3 cash and a $5 gift certificate. Wendy Adams won a sewing machine as top prize on the state level.

Mrs. George Bailey was chairman, and Mrs. Dwayne Hall served as tea chairman for the finals held in the Kennewick PUD with parents of the contestants as special guests.

Winners of the first, second and third prizes are, from left, Rebecca Bussell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Bussell, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Bussell, and Debbie Blum, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Blum.

Sisu Club

Mrs. William R. Graham will be installed as president of Sisu Women's Club of Kennewick at a dinner dance for members and husbands tomorrow at the Harold Stromstad home.

Mrs. Kenneth Gerlach will be installed as first vice president; Mrs. George

Mrs. Graham

Bailey, second vice president; Mrs. Charles Whitescarver, secretary, and Mrs. Ray Benson, treasurer.

Mrs. Harlan McMullen, retiring president, and Mrs. Tom Brutzman, recording secretary, Yakima Valley District Federation of Women's Clubs, will be installing officers. The club's fifth birthday will be noted during installation.

Also honored will be past presidents, Mmes. Dwayne Hall, Paul Foos, Stromstad, Richard Beebe and McMullen, all active members.

In charge of arrangements are Mmes. Gene Davis, Dave Swanson and Dennis Brummond.

Clubwomen issue awards

State clubwomen meeting in convention in Yakima today proceeded into elections and into further awards for the past year's club work.

Three resolutions of the Washington State Federation of Women's Clubs were first-day business for 675 women attending. They nixed backing an amendment to the State Constitution which would lower the voting age to 19 years. Of 160 women voting, 81 voted no and 48, yes, with 31 abstaining.

A resolution was passed for member clubs to seek governmental help in reducing and eliminating the problems of irreducible waste.

A drug abuse resolution was amended before passing to call for clubs to promote the education program concerning drug abuse and that the classification of marijuana remain unchanged until scientific research is completed. Clubwomen urged stronger laws and enforcement measures to eliminate the distribution of hallucinogens except for research as governmentally regulated, supported strict enforcement of penalties for illicit production, marketing and possession of dangerous drugs and called for member clubs to encourage community programs for the treatment and rehabilitation of drug abusers.

Virgil W. Sheppard, president of the Washington State Pharmaceutical Association and member of the Seattle Crime Prevention Advisory Commission, followed the passage of the drug abuse resolution with a talk on drugs and delinquency.

Crime in the small towns and suburbs is growing faster than it is in the big cities, he said, and drug misuse and delinquency go hand in hand, as a user often must turn to crime to support the habit.

He advocated separate detention centers for young people where they may receive counseling and aid; changing drug laws to get stiffer penalties for pushers, and the development of centers to take narcotics addicts off the streets. He said the drug abuse problem is being recognized on national, state and local levels.

Earlier, State Rep. Sid Morrison clued in clubwomen on how organized labor, especially in agriculture and the boycott of grapeworkers in California, creates social revolution today rather than collective bargaining. Workers today seek progress in goals by destructive methods, such as striking when crops need to be harvested, he said.

He feels that the Murphy Bill has good ground rules in protecting both consumer and suppliers in providing no work stops at harvest time and employee elections for representation. The latter will help curtail the person who comes in for the purpose of reform without a total look at the entire problem, he said.

Rep. Morrison also said the pesticide problem is not as great as has been stated but that controls are necessary.

Thursday night's "Out Of This World" banquet revealed an assortment of annual awards.

The Federated Women's Club of West Seattle received a sweepstakes award of $200 for outstanding achievement in public service and conservation. Ken Newerf, Seattle representative of Atlantic-Richfield Co., also presented $100 cash awards each in conservation to two Yakima Valley District clubs: Rosalma Club for its Yakima arboretum project and to Sacajawea Junior Women's Club for its assorted community works. Vista Junior Woman's Club of Kennewick received honorable mention for its work in developing a park.

The Shell Education awards presented by Robert Davolio, Bellingham, gave clubs in the convention's hostess district the top prizes: $500 to Kennewick Junior Woman's Club for its improvements in educational of $300 to another Kennewick club, Vista Junior Woman's Club for its involvement and aid in education projects. Third place of $200 was awarded the of Entiat, North Central district.

Mrs. Howard (Dora Jean) Smith of Snohita Junior Woman's Club, Waitsburg, was presented by Mrs. Richard Gosney, Renton WSFJC junior membership chairman.

convention's junior clubwoman of the year.

Mrs. Al Estep, sponsored by the Ridgefield Junior Woman's Club, was named as the advisor of the year.

Sewing awards for high school contestants went to Vickie Applegarth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Applegarth, Palouse. She was sponsored by the Round Table Club of Palouse and won the Northeastern District sewing contest. She received a 1970 Bernina sewing machine, presented by Rudy Kezele, Yakima.

Sorosis Junior Womans Club, Yakima. Mrs. George Crocker, president, received first award in the Class B, daily paper and 25-member club category in the press clipping book contest. Two Yakima Valley district clubs in the Class C category, Sacajawea Junior Woman's Club and Rosalma Club, won second and third respectively. The Donald District Woman's Club, Wapato, Mrs. A. Delt Clark, president, placed third in the Class A, weekly newspaper group.

Other awards were:

The Bellingham PLF Woman's Club, $50 award in the Clean Air Community Action Program.

CITGO (Cities Service Oil Co.) beautification award: to the Cascade Junior Woman's Club, Whatcom-Skagit district.

Eight Yakima Valley district clubs qualified as Honor Scroll Clubs: Arvida Club, Friday Club, and Mothers Club, all of Ellensburg; Nouvella Club, Sunnyside; Tri-City Federated Woman's Club; Sisu Woman's Club, Kennewick; Sacajawea Junior Woman's Club, Pasco, and Richland Federated Woman's Club.

MEMBER EXTENSION CONTEST: Sacajawea Juniors, $25 award, for 200 per cent increase; Mrs. Lloyd Swick, president, Pasco. This Yakima Valley district club in the Western Region of General Federation of Women's Club won by showing a 400 per cent gain in membership between May 1, 1968 to Feb. 15, 1970. They received the Silver Bowl traveling award showing the state's highest gain in membership.

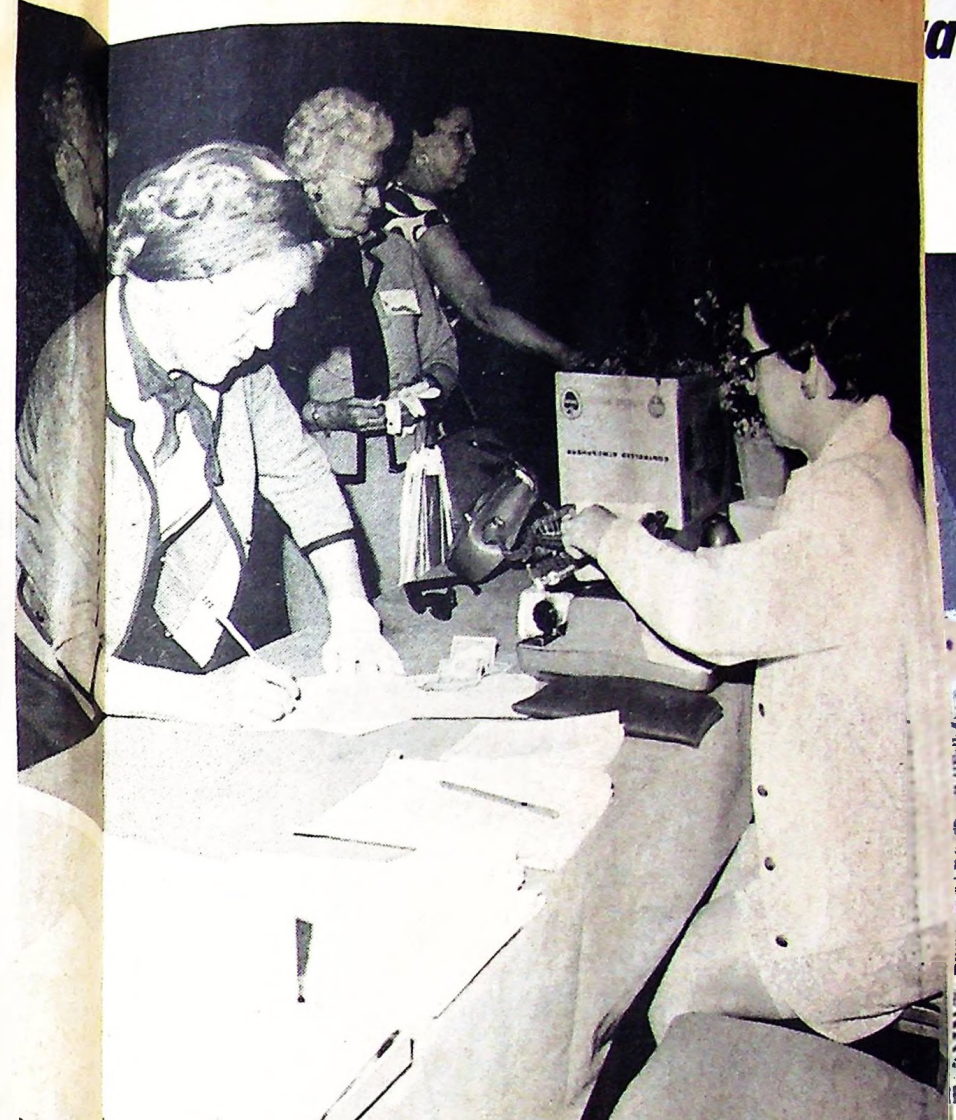

Honorable mention certificates, membership extension: Richland Federated Woman's Club, White Swan Woman's Club, Cle Elum Junior Woman's Club, Sorosis Juniors, Meridian Club of Prosser, Sisu Woman's Club of Kennewick, and Mother's Club of Ellensburg, all showing a 50 per cent gain in members. ## Local clubs receive awards

Mrs. Paine named state clubwoman

A Kennewick woman was named "State Clubwoman of the Year" last night in the Hyatt House, Seattle, during the three-day convention of the Washington State Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Keith (Kathy) Paine, a member of the Kennewick Junior Women's Club, competed against 16 other district clubwomen for the state title.

She received an engraved silver tray from Mrs. Ken Lohman, also of Kennewick, assistant director of junior clubs, WSFWC, and a $25 award for bringing the largest number of new members into an existing club.

As first vice-president and membership chairman, Mrs. Paine sponsored 6 of the 25 new members who joined Kennewick Juniors.

She also founded the Beta-Teen Juniorette Club and is its advisor; served as chairman for the levy promotion, vocational scholarship, and Youth Appreciation Day; secured two flags from the nation's capitol for Kamiakin High School; and is chairman of the Tri-City Council of Junior Clubs.

In addition to compiling a handbook on the programs and goals of the WSFWC, Mrs. Paine has sewn quilt blocks for nursing homes; baked for Vietnam servicemen; written letters in behalf of prisoners of war; and participated in numerous club projects like the March of Dimes Telerama, eye screening clinic, kiddies wading pool drive and class registration at Kennewick and Kamiakin High Schools.

She was elected president of Kennewick Juniors last month and has served as treasurer and chairman of reports and public affairs committees. Mrs. Paine also was named "Clubwoman of the Year" for the Yakima Valley District.

She is the wife of a Kamiakin High School teacher and football coach, and the mother of a two-year-old son, Brian.

Among the clubs receiving awards yesterday were Kennewick Juniors for service (membership 16-30); Moses Lake Woman's Club, Novella Club in Sunnyside, and Sisu Woman's Club, Kennewick, honor scroll clubs; Sunnyside Juniors, arts and pennies for art division; and the Sunnyside and Riverside Women's Clubs, Novella Club and Sunnyside Juniors, American heritage and citizenship.

Vista Women's Club in Kennewick received a conservation award certificate for the development and maintenance of Vista Park and the Woman's Club of Pasco was recognized for sponsoring a class in English for foreigners and two classes in American citizenship.

The first place award in the public education division went to Vista Women's Club for its classroom assistance, education scholarships and aid to the Tri-City Developmental Center for Retarded Children.

Blue ribbon award winning clubs include the Junior Woman's Clubs of Prosser, Sunnyside, Benton City, Grandview, Richland, Ken-

Key to Leadership: Sense of Humor

By ELEANOR RUTHERFORD
Spokesman-Review Staff Writer

"Remember, you are never too important to help with the kitchen work," is a reminder Mrs. W. H. Winsemann Jr., Hollywood, Fla., often tells herself and other club women as she travels around the country.

General Federation of Women's Clubs director-elect of Junior Clubs, Mrs. Winsemann was featured speaker at a banquet Wednesday evening which opened the 37th annual state convention of Washington State Federation of Women's Clubs Junior Membership.

The state convention of the Federation's General Membership also is in session at the Ridpath.

Critical Path

"Leadership Development — the Critical Path," was the topic of her talk.

Emphasizing the necessity of good leadership development she said the three basic types of leaders are: Leaders of followers, leaders, and leaders of leaders.

"Leaders among followers are club members who, quietly and efficiently, do their jobs and help others accomplish their goals but seldom receive recognition. No club can function without them.

"Leaders are members who have been followers but have accepted more responsible positions.

Highest Positions Accepted

"Leaders of leaders are those who have accepted the highest positions of responsibility. They are the ones who teach others to have a great deal of patience, lots of background and a continual sense of humor.

MRS. WINSEMANN
Federation Director-Elect

"And believe me, a sense of humor is imperative."

She knows of what she speaks. After she was installed director of Florida Federation of Junior Clubs and was prepared to preside at her first convention meeting, she slipped on the hotel floor, fractured her leg and was carried, protesting mightily, to the hospital.

Two days later she went back to the convention floor in a wheelchair to continue as presiding officer.

Sessions Serious

"If my sense of humor had deserted me all would have been lost because as any club woman knows, convention sessions are not taken lightly," she said.

"At the individual club level when members are working on a major project at which every member must participate, it really requires a sense of humor when someone neglects his duty not to 'flip' and create internal problems, which are deadly to the success of all club projects."

Mrs. Winsemann said the motto of the General Federation is "Unity in Diversity."

"We feel you can do better together than you can do by yourself," she said. "In the General Federation, which is international, we have 11 million women. The Junior Federation, which is national, has approximately 70 thousand young women working within the complete federation program."

The current theme of the General Federation is environmental responsibility. This has been promoted in all departments, she said.

"The Junior Club put more than $400,000 in conservation programs in 11,000 different projects as part of the overall GFWC conservation department program," she added.

The convention will continue through Friday.

Awards given at state Federated Women's meet

The Washington State Federation of Women's Clubs honored several local clubs with awards for excellence and President Ada McKinney, Richland, with a reception at their 77th annual convention in Olympia.

The convention at the Evergreen Inn which concludes Saturday, saw honors going to the Benton City Junior Women's Club, Sisu Federated Women's Club of Kennewick and the Tri-City Federated Women's Club.

Luncheon speakers Thursday and today were Donald Hodel, Bonneville Power Administration director, and Thomas Nemzek, manager, U.S. Atomic Energy

Thomas Nemzek

Commission, Richland.

Receiving a $300 prize was the Benton City Junior Women's Club as the state club which did the most in 1972 to involve young people in the improvement of the environment of their community.

The award, part of the Women's Clubs-Shell Oil Co. Environmental Conservation Program, went to the Benton City group for its work to include local school children in a city-wide recycling project.

Today the Tri-City Federated Women's Club was announced sixth-place winner in the state for the Community Improvement Program, co-sponsored by Sears, Roebuck and Co.

They were given a $25 prize for their promotion of creative and performing arts, sponsoring a natural landscape painting contest and honoring local women for volunteer service.

The Tri-Cities group, headed by Lolly McReynolds, Kennewick, also took second place in the state Emerging Woman Division for outstanding support of the Equal Rights Amendment and its Women of Distinction project.

Sisu Federated Women's Club, with 27 members led by Sue Metully, Kennewick, won two first-place departmental awards, one district award and tied for eighth place in the state in the Community Improvement Program.

Sisu was named the club with best participation in all divisions of Home Life — consumerism, family living, gerontology, health and welfare and spiritual values.

They also won for Public Affairs — with volunteer work in "Operation Crime Check" and "Operation Identification" and purchase of Resusci-Baby for First Aid — and the Desert River District award for donating scholarships, sponsoring a right-to-read program and assisting senior citizens.

Their health and youth projects earned Sisu $25 in the Community Improvement Project.

Program chairwoman for the state convention was Shirley Hankins of Richland.
