TOURIST CLASS

"Ahoy"

HOLLAND-AMERICA LINE

A TOURIST CLASS THAT INCLUDES ALL FORMER SECOND CLASS LUXURY

THOSE FOR WHOM the adventure of travel is a glorified excitement are fortunate in possessing the spirit of Magellan, but many of these, financially and nautically speaking, are "in the straits" of ways and means. However, this necessity for considering cost merely adds to the ultimate thrill of thrills . . . that ecstacy of suddenly finding an unexpected depth of purse by which one can afford a long desired almost out-of-reach voyage. This extra depth of purse is the new magic of the Holland-America Line that brings the romance of travel within the reach of anyone with vacation leisure and sufficient means to live simply. It is glorious magic under the inexpressive name of Tourist Class.

Originated in 1924 by the Holland-America Line, Tourist Class has gorgeously answered the travel hopes of tens of thousands. On the s. s. NEW AMSTERDAM in June 1924 two hundred and twenty-eight recreated Magellans set sail to try this mode of travel. After a summer spent bicycling through the Chateaux country or walking through the snow-capped Pyrenees, back they came, exuberant, still unable to believe they could have done it all so economically. Since that time year after year the service has expanded under the demand of enthusiastic voyagers who returned to report their enthusiasm to friends who in turn added their support. Now, nine years later, the capacity of four huge ocean liners of the Holland-America Line are required to provide accommodations for the ever growing host of Tourist Class travelers and the entire former Second Cabins have now been assigned to this service. Twenty thousand people can't be wrong! . . . and on the following pages, pictures and text give all the details, and point out the many advantages of the splendid steamers of the Holland-America Line Tourist Class fleet . . . the s. s. STATENDAM, the s. s. ROTTERDAM, and the twins the s. s. VEENDAM and s. s. VOLENDAM. These steamers sail Eastbound from New York to Plymouth, England, then call at Boulogne, France, and then on to Rotterdam. Returning, they leave Rotterdam, Holland, call at Boulogne, France, and then at Southampton, England.

Cabin 422 on the STATENDAM . . . formerly Second Class . . . real beds . . . running hot and cold water . . . a cabin to be proud of when friends say good-bye . . . room enough if they suddenly decide to sail!

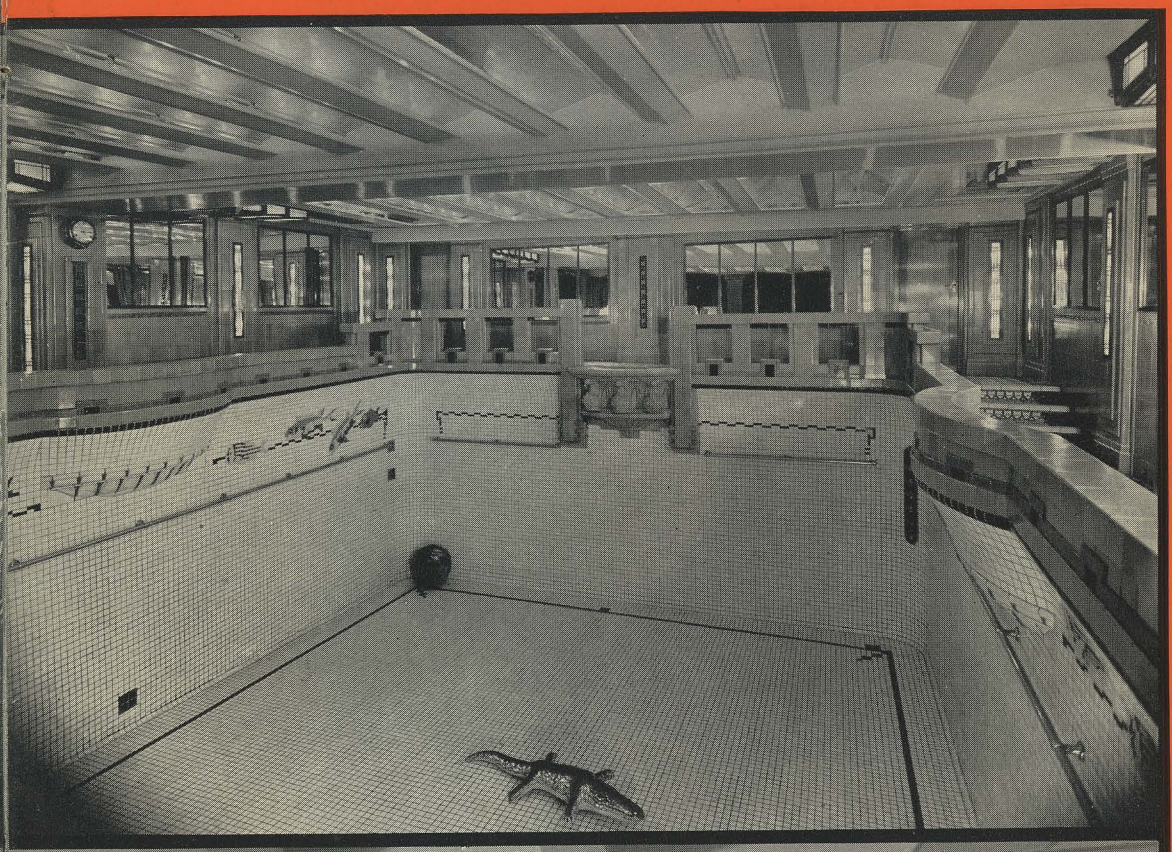

After dinner . . . the Lounge . . . also on the STATENDAM . . . a comfortable chair and a book . . . or a chance to write the letters you owe . . . this alluring room is typical of the many public rooms on our steamers.

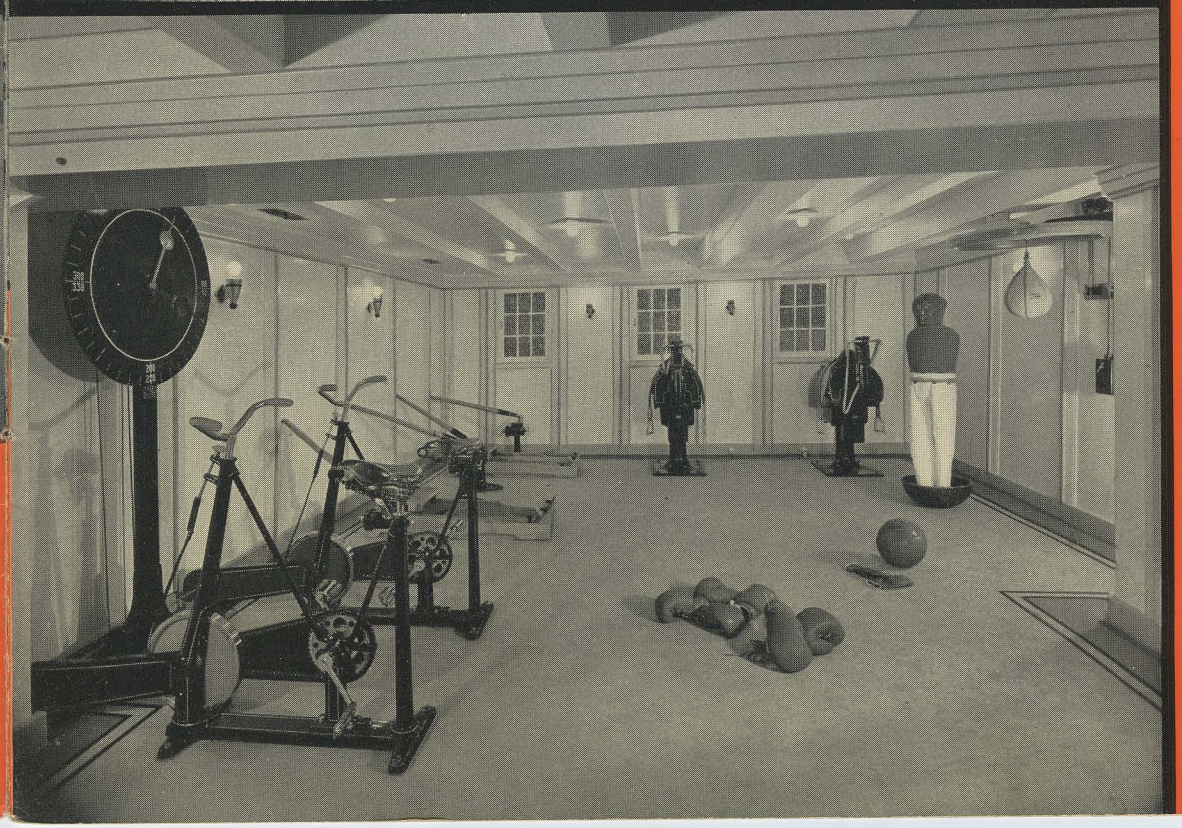

Smoking Room . . . STATENDAM . . . a rendezvous before and after meals where you can linger to discuss light and frothy things, as you plan your European trip.

Ride . . . row . . . or swim . . . to Europe on the ROTTERDAM . . . enjoy the exhilaration of a workout in the gymnasium and a plunge in the salt water pool!

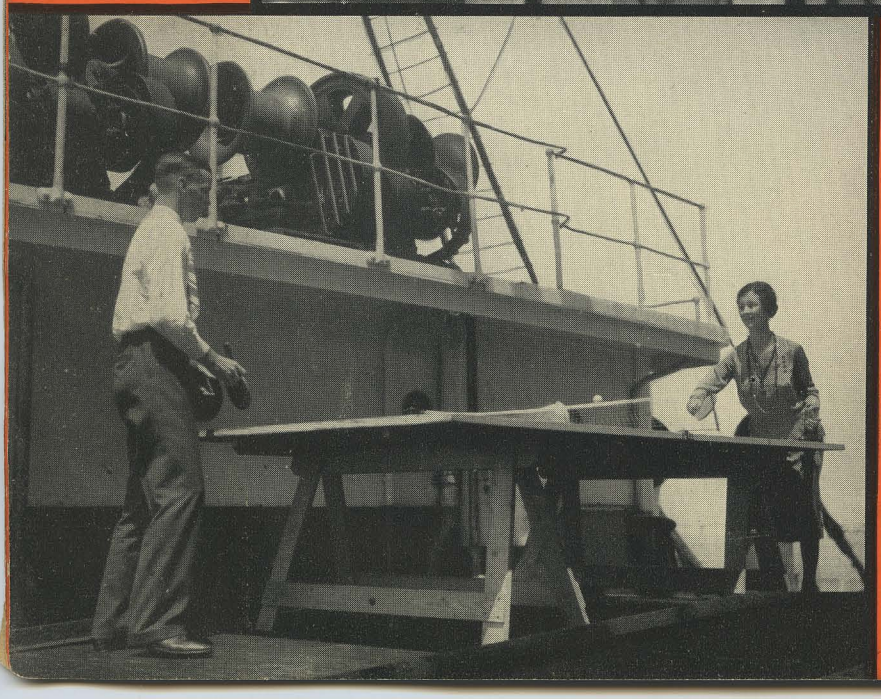

Snappy college orchestras blow vibrant saxophone rhythms for enthusiastic dancers every day.

Youthful enthusiasm is infectious . . . everyone plays some of the games and the gay spirit of "try-it-once" makes all the many shipboard diversions popular.

Young college people add joyous vivacity to every trip, and broadcast their irresistable good humor.

Deck sports in the sea air sharpen your appetite, whether it's ping pong, tennis or swimming. Young and old, and in-betweens all enjoy the healthy amusements on deck.

The new STATENDAM . . . a veritable masterpiece of marine architecture . . . flagship of the Holland-America Line's spotless fleet . . . which includes the ROTTERDAM and the sister-ships VOLENDAM and VEENDAM, all famed for spic-and-span cleanliness. Their converted Second Class makes our Tourist Class the last word in modern sea-going comfort. Everything is provided for your entertainment . . . college orchestras . . masquerade balls . . treasure hunts . . loan libraries . . . you'll find the trip all too short!

Smoking Room (above) and Lounge (on next page) . . . ROTTERDAM . . . both of these former second class rooms have recently been entirely remodelled and redecorated and now emerge as smart rooms with a scintillating club-like atmosphere . . . providing luxuries undreamt of by tourists even two years ago.

Above . . . the marvellous broad aft deck, the entire width of the STATENDAM with room enough for deck games galore . . . to the right . . . the former Second Class Dining Room . . . STATENDAM . . . now Tourist.

Though you book late and take this inside cabin . . . VOLENDAM or VEENDAM, you'll find it a most agreeable Second Class room . . . with every comfort too.

At tea time the pleasant STATENDAM Verandah Café offers cool shade from which to watch those out on deck who defy freckles, and rejoice in sun tan, while you enjoy the latest ship's gossip over your cup of tea.

Former Second Class Dining Room . . . VOLENDAM or VEENDAM . . . the meals are excellent . . . pleasant service too . . . a worthy prelude to dining in Paris . . . Tourist Class is certainly not the way to reduce!
