HOBOKEN TER-CENTENARY October 4th to 12th 1930

HENRY HUDSON'S HALF MOON LANDING AT HOBOKEN, 1609.

Official Program

...Greeting...

The year Nineteen Hundred and Thirty marks the three hundredth milestone in the history of Hoboken. It is also the seventy-fifth anniversary of the incorporation of the City of Hoboken, and it is fitting, therefore, that the people of the city distinguish the occasion with due celebrations.

For several months past a committee of citizens has been giving their time and labor to preparing for the celebration of this tercentenary and a most comprehensive program of events has been prepared in which it is hoped that all the citizens will join.

We are proud of our city and jealous of its reputation. Its fame as an industrial center has been wafted on the breeze to the far corners of the habitable globe, and ships from every part of the world have entered our portals.

Hoboken's fame has blazed a bright trail in the world of sports, invention, education, commerce and industry, and its future is no less bright than its glorious traditions of the past.

We are looking forward to an era of further progress and development so that Hoboken will take its place in the vanguard of the modern cities of the world.

While celebrating during the coming ten days the historical epochs in the City of Hoboken, let us stop awhile to think of Hoboken of the future. Nature has given to us a location unsurpassed in any other section of the East. Let us take advantage of nature's dower and make of Hoboken the most envied mile square in the land.

E. J. M. Fitch

Mayor Bernard N. McFeely
Honorary Chairman

Max Z. Hurwitz

Chairman

Hoboken's Ter-Centenary

In drawing back the curtain to catch a fleeting glimpse of some of the glories of the past, the Hoboken Tercentenary Committee, charged with the duty of planning the celebration, has also given thought to pointing out some of the advantages of modern Hoboken—an important unit in the mighty array of cities which has made the United States the greatest industrial nation on earth.

When Michael Pauw first purchased Hobocan Hackinch from the Indians, he little realized that it would develop into the dynamic industrial community and center of commerce that Hoboken is today.

Incorporated as a city seventy-five years ago, when it was little more than a straggling village of a few thousand inhabitants, today Hoboken has more diversified industries, more trunk line railroad connections, bigger and better docks, more schools and educational institutions, more churches and social centers, more parks and playgrounds and more inhabitants within its confines than any other city of its size in the world.

To epitomize the tercentenary the Committee has planned a ten days' celebration. Much of Hoboken's early history has been lost in the limbo of forgotten things, but those outstanding events chronicled by the historians of the day and dragged out of the musty archives will be depicted for the benefit of the present generation during the celebration.

The chairmen and members of the various committees who have been working on the plans during the summer months have given unsparingly of their time and energy to make the celebration a success.

With the full cooperation of Mayor McFeely and the Board of Commissioners, the devoted interest and loyal work of the Women's Division and the unbounded enthusiasm which has attended the efforts of the entire Committee, it has been a proud privilege and honor to give my humble services as chairman of the celebration.

May Z. Hurwitz

...PROGRAM...

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 11TH

Historic Day

3.00 P.M.—Under direction of James P. Lavery grand pageant to be staged on Stevens Campus, in which 500 school children will take part. The moving pageant to be staged with elaborate scenery will depict outstanding incidents in the history of Hoboken from 1609, when Henry Hudson anchored in the Half Moon off Hoboken and parleyed with the Indians of their council fire on Castle Point; purchase of the land from the Indians by agents of Michael Pauw, 300 years ago; confiscation of Hoboken from Bayard the Royalist by the State of New Jersey after the Revolutionary War and its sale to John Stevens in 1784; development of the city by Stevens family, depicting Elysian Fields and other features embodying the industrial and mercantile and civic growth of the community. Incidental music will be by massed bands.

Following the pageant, Company D, 104th Engineers, Capt. D. A. Mai commanding assisted by Detachment C9, A, 104th Engineers, Lieut. E. C. Becker; Machine Gun platoon, 113th Infantry, Capt. P. Ehrhardt; Chemical Warfare Service, Governors Island, N. Y., will stage a Sham Battle. This demonstration in combat is typical of an American attack during the World War. The equipment, maneuvers, and realistic features present, represent America's participation in the A. E. F. This spectacle is introduced into the pageant to round out that part of the history of Hoboken depicting it as the port of embarkation of over one million American soldiers during the stirring days of 1918.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 12TH, (Columbus Day)

5.00 P.M.—Unveiling of a memorial tablet at the Y. M. C. A. building Thirteenth and Washington Streets, Hoboken, to the memory of the late Richard Stevens, dedicating the Richard Stevens Memorial Swimming Pool; unveiling a bronze tablet dedicating the social rooms on the second floor of the "Y" to the memory of Mary Picton Stevens Lewis. The entire facilities of the "Y" will be open to the public during the entire period of the Ter-Centenary Celebration.

6.00 P.M.—Demonstration, band concert and fireworks in front of the A. J. Demarest High School at Church Square Park by United Italian Societies, in charge of Anthony Capelli.
