HOW TO USE THIS GUIDE BOOK

Hoboken, the Mile Square City, has a richness, a variety, exceeding that of most cities its size. This Guide was designed to provide information about Hoboken's many businesses, services, recreational opportunities, and cultural events.

The more than 1,100 entries in this book are organized into the categories that appear in the Table of Contents. Because of space limitations, each business and service is listed only once. Therefore, it may be necessary to check more than one category to locate a specific concern. For example, a store that sells delicatessen items, groceries, and newspapers appears in only one of these categories. The alphabetical Index that begins on page 169 may also be of assistance in locating a specific listing.

The listings are based on information supplied by the various businesses and services, and every effort was made to insure the accuracy of this book at the time of printing. This Guide also sought to be as complete as possible, but some concerns chose not to be included and others did not respond to requests for information. Suggestions for additional listings for future editions of this Guide Book are welcome. Please send them to the Community Development Agency, 124 Grand Street, Hoboken, NJ 07030.

The inclusion of a business or service in this Guide Book does not imply endorsement by the City of Hoboken, the Community Development Agency or the Editors.

ABOUT HOBOKEN

In the beginning, Hoboken was an island, with marshes to the west and a river to the east. First inhabited by the Lenni Lenape Indians, the area was claimed by the Dutch in the early 1600's. Among the early property holders was Peter Stuyvesant, governor of New Amsterdam.

In 1784, the island was purchased by Colonel John Stevens of the Revolutionary Patriot Army, who saw the area's potential and developed Hoboken as a resort, transforming the waterfront into a recreational area. A noted inventor, Stevens initiated a steam ferry service to New York City and played a key role in the development of the American railroad system, receiving the first U.S. railroad charter in 1815. Good transportation plus a variety of entertainment drew crowds, as many as 20,000 on a sunny Sunday. (The first official baseball game was played here in 1846.) The famous also flocked to Hoboken, among them Alexander Hamilton, Lillian Russell, John L. Sullivan, Horace Greeley, William K. Vanderbilt and John Jacob Astor, who built a resort house near Washington and Second Streets.

By the turn of this century, Hoboken was a major hub for rail and water transportation, an important trans-Atlantic port. The City was the port of embarkation for U.S. troops during World War I, hosting over 3 million soldiers. "Heaven, Hell or Hoboken by Christmas" went the slogan of the day.

The City's location and transportation network brought industry, development, and immigrants—Germans, Irish, Italians, Yugoslavs, Hispanics, and East Indians, each contributing to the rich fabric of the city. In 1910, the population peaked at 70,324 (it is currently about 45,000).

By the 1950's, Hoboken had fallen upon hard times. Like many other northeastern cities, it lost manufacturers to the south and population to the suburbs. Hoboken became a symbol of urban decay, the punch-line of many a joke, whose only claim to fame was having been Frank Sinatra's birthplace.

A turnabout dramatic enough to be called a renaissance began in the late 1960's when the Model Cities program initiated the rehabilitation of many tenements as well as the conversion of the Keuffel and Esser factory (Clock Tower) into housing, the first such "adaptive reuse" for family housing. At the same time, the City began to draw new residents, many of them artists and professionals attracted by Hoboken's proximity to New York and its Victorian architecture, low rents, and small-town "liveability."

Today, the renaissance continues, and Hoboken is now at the geographical center of the revitalization of the Hudson River's West Bank. Change has brought the City new priorities, among them affordable housing, the development of the waterfront, and the expansion of the commercial and industrial base. And Hoboken goes on evolving....

TRANSPORTATION GUIDE

GETTING TO HOBOKEN

Hoboken is located on the West Bank of the Hudson River between the Lincoln and Holland Tunnels. It offers access to many major highways and is the hub of an extensive public transportation network serving the metropolitan area. The Hoboken Train Terminal/PATH Station is the terminus for all public transportation described below.

TO/FROM NEW YORK CITY

AUTO

Midtown: Take Lincoln Tunnel; upon exiting the tunnel bear either to the extreme right or extreme left, following signs for "Local Streets" or "Hoboken." Continue south over the viaduct into Hoboken.

Downtown: Take Holland Tunnel; upon exiting the tunnel, bear right; turn right at the first traffic light. Proceed on Henderson Street to the end into Hoboken.

BUS

NJ Transit Bus No. 126 runs approximately every 20 minutes from early morning to after midnight between New York's Port Authority Bus Terminal and Hoboken. NJ Transit's Bus No. 181 runs less frequently between Hoboken and New York's George Washington Bridge Station. Both routes: exact fare. Information: (201) 762-5100.

Red Apple Transit buses run approximately every 20 minutes from early morning through the evening between New York's Port Authority Bus Terminal and Hoboken. Exact fare. Information: (201) 659-9668.

PATH

Port Authority Trans Hudson (PATH) subway trains run around the clock between Hoboken and New York (see PATH Map). Exact fare. Information: (201) 963-2558.

TO/FROM POINTS WEST OF THE HUDSON RIVER

AUTO

From South and West via New Jersey Turnpike: Take Exit 14C toward Holland Tunnel and continue about two miles. Follow signs for "Hoboken" and "Stevens Institute"; turn left at the first traffic light onto Jersey Avenue. Proceed to end and turn right under railroad overpass into Hoboken.

From South and West via Route 1-9 North: Follow signs for "Holland Tunnel"; when emerging from covered roadway, stay to the extreme left. Turn left at the first traffic light onto Jersey Avenue. Proceed to end and turn right under railroad overpass into Hoboken.

From North and West: Take New Jersey Turnpike South (Exit 17E) or Route 17 South to Route 3, heading toward Lincoln

Tunnel. Exit Route 3 at sign marked "Pleasant Avenue–Weehawken, Hoboken, Last Exit in N.J." Proceed down incline and bear right, continuing south over viaduct into Hoboken.

BUS

Academy Bus runs buses between Hoboken and Fort Lee. Information: (201) 420-7000.

The Downtown Bus Company runs buses between Hoboken and Journal Square in Jersey City. Information: (201) 653-0444.

NJ Transit runs buses between Hoboken, Jersey City, and various points in Northern Hudson County. Information: (201) 762-5100.

PATH

PATH trains run frequently between Newark's Pennsylvania Station, Jersey City, and Hoboken. (See PATH Map.) Exact fare. Information: (201) 963-2558. NOTE: Travelers from Newark International Airport can reach Hoboken via the Airlink bus to Pennsylvania Station and PATH, or via taxi; the rate for the brief trip is posted at airport taxi stands.

TRAIN

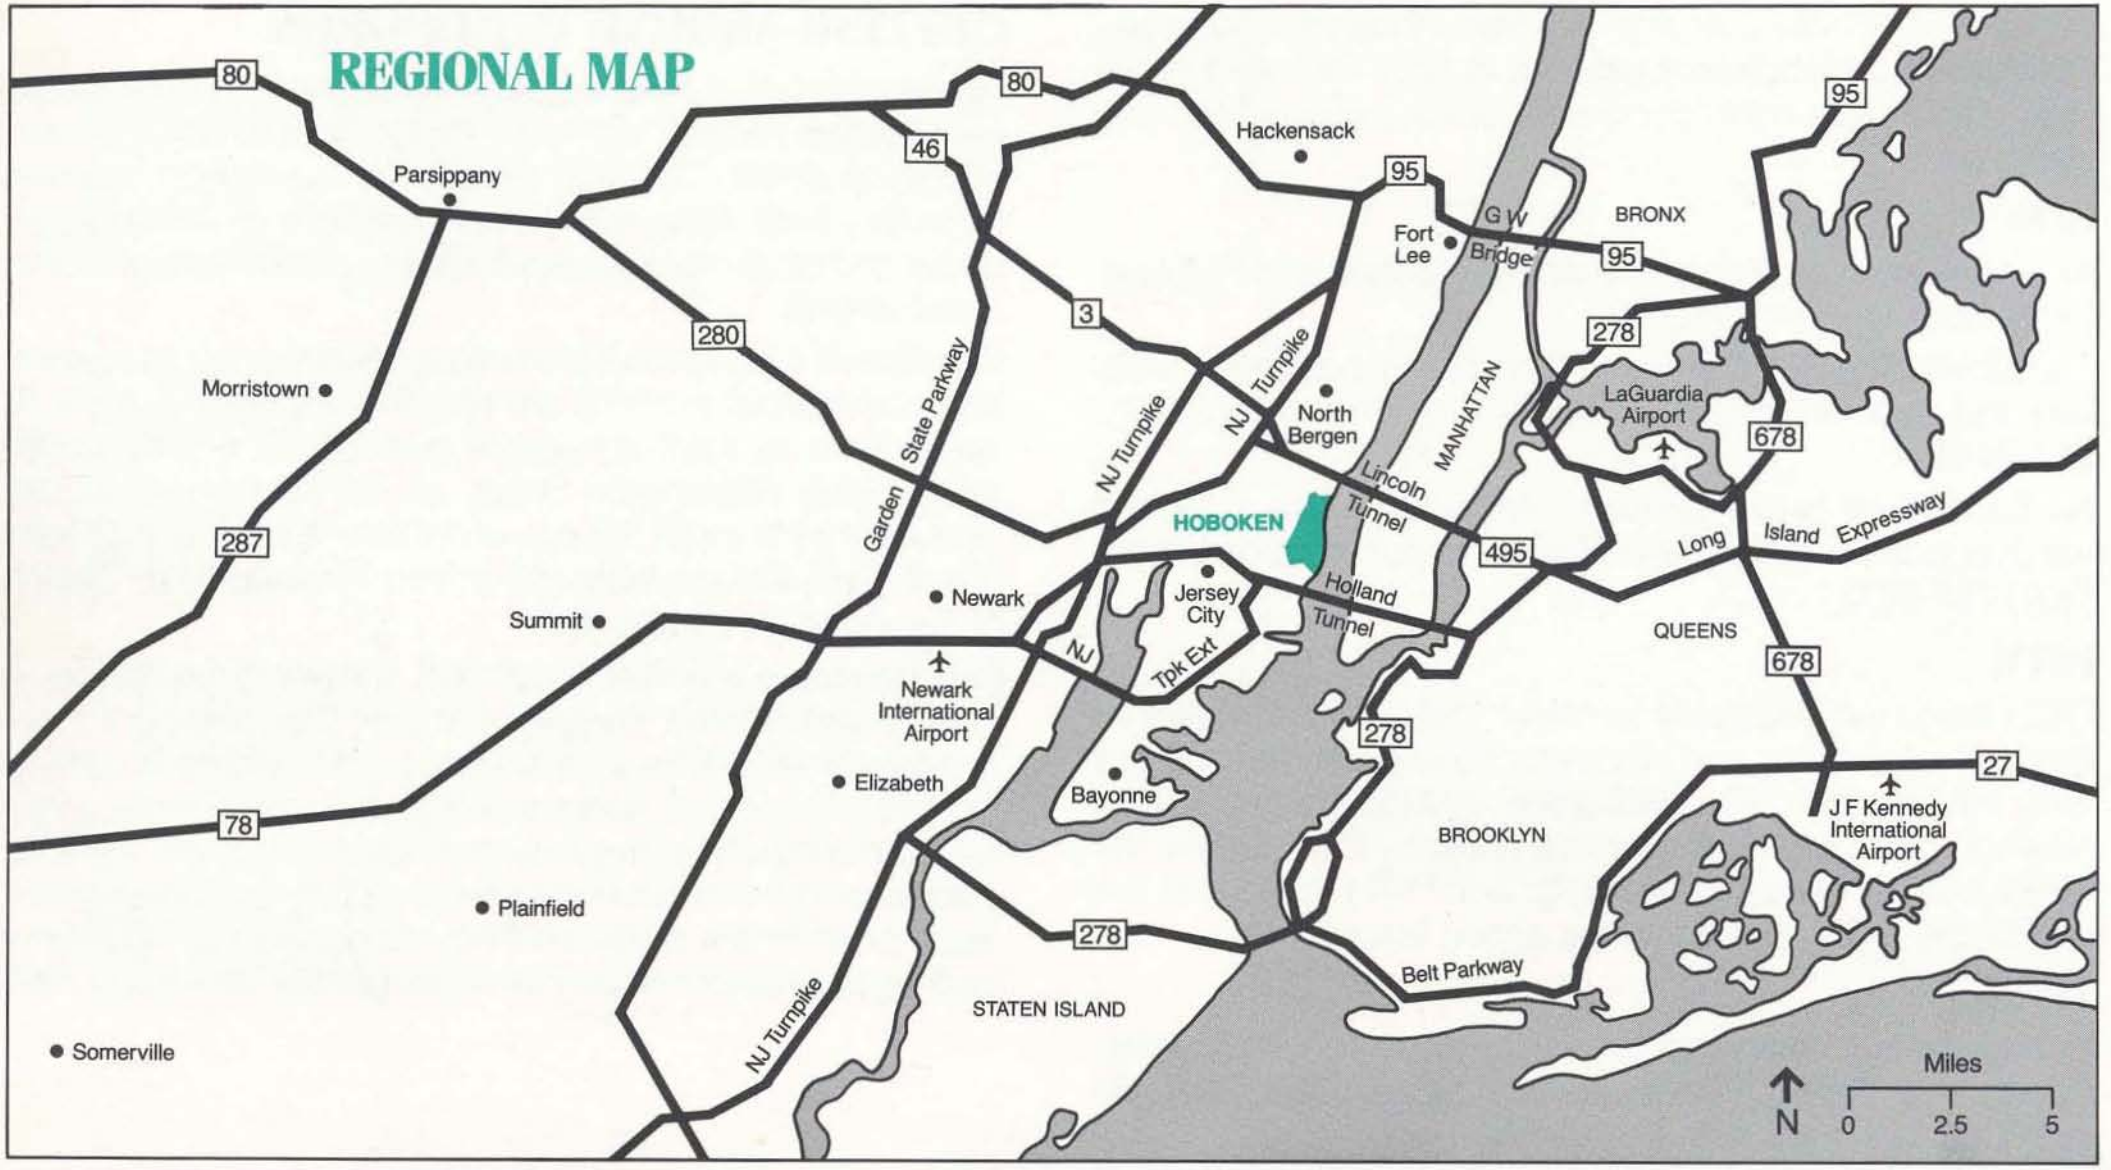

Numerous NJ Transit rail lines link Hoboken with Bergen, Essex, and Morris Counties in New Jersey and with Rockland County in New York. Information: (201) 762-5100.

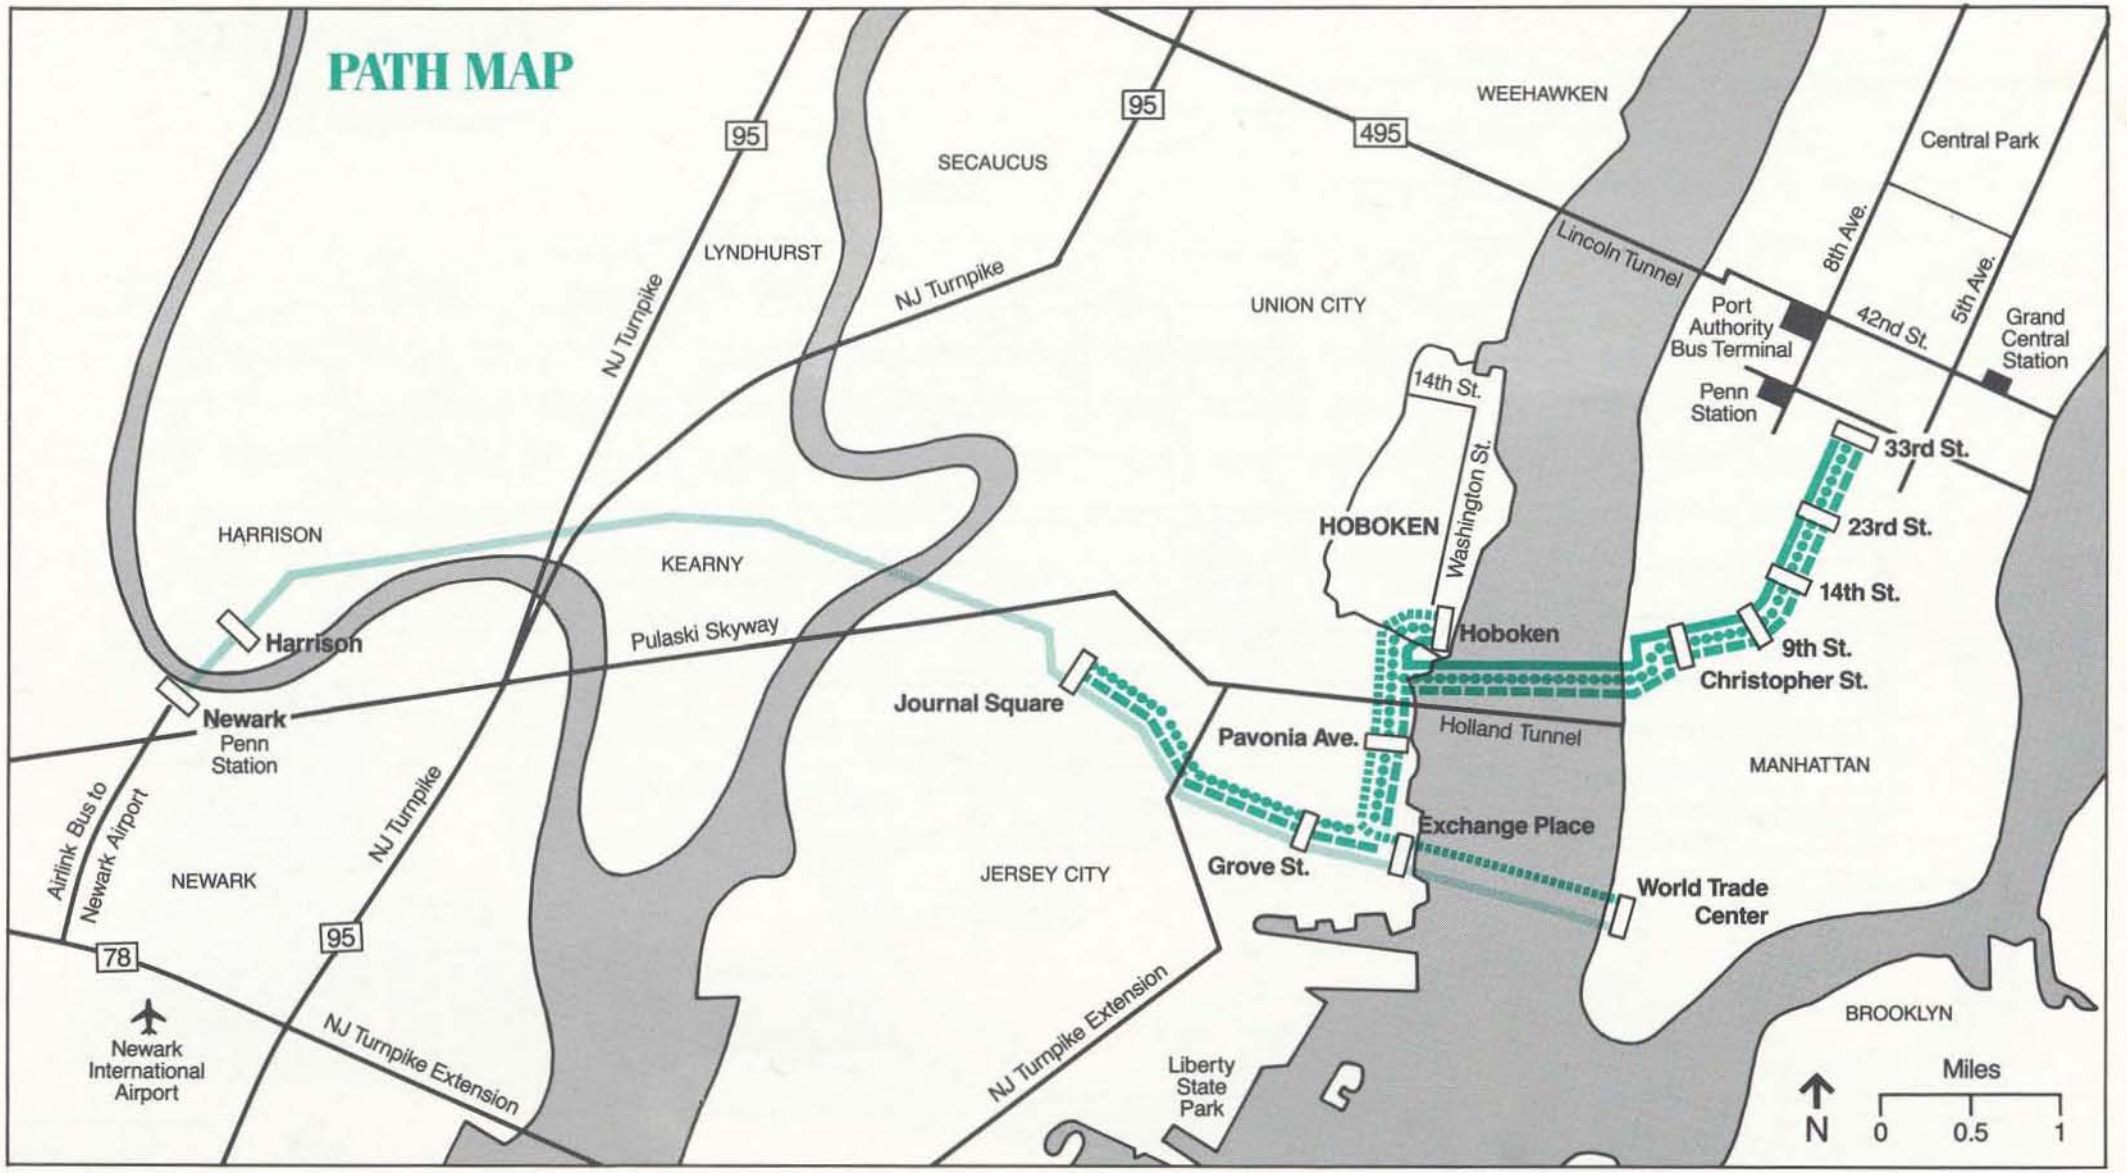

GETTING AROUND IN HOBOKEN

Hoboken is laid out in a compact grid. The long north-south avenues are named, with Washington Street being the main shopping street. The side streets are numbered, starting from City Hall. Note that street numbers on Washington Street and other main avenues correspond to the numbered cross streets.

Hoboken is easy to traverse on foot, and the main residential and commercial sections are all within walking distance. At the same time, there is frequent bus service running north-south along Washington Street, as well as somewhat less frequent north-south service on Willow Avenue and Clinton Street. Taxis are available at the Train Terminal/PATH Station or by phone (see page 105).

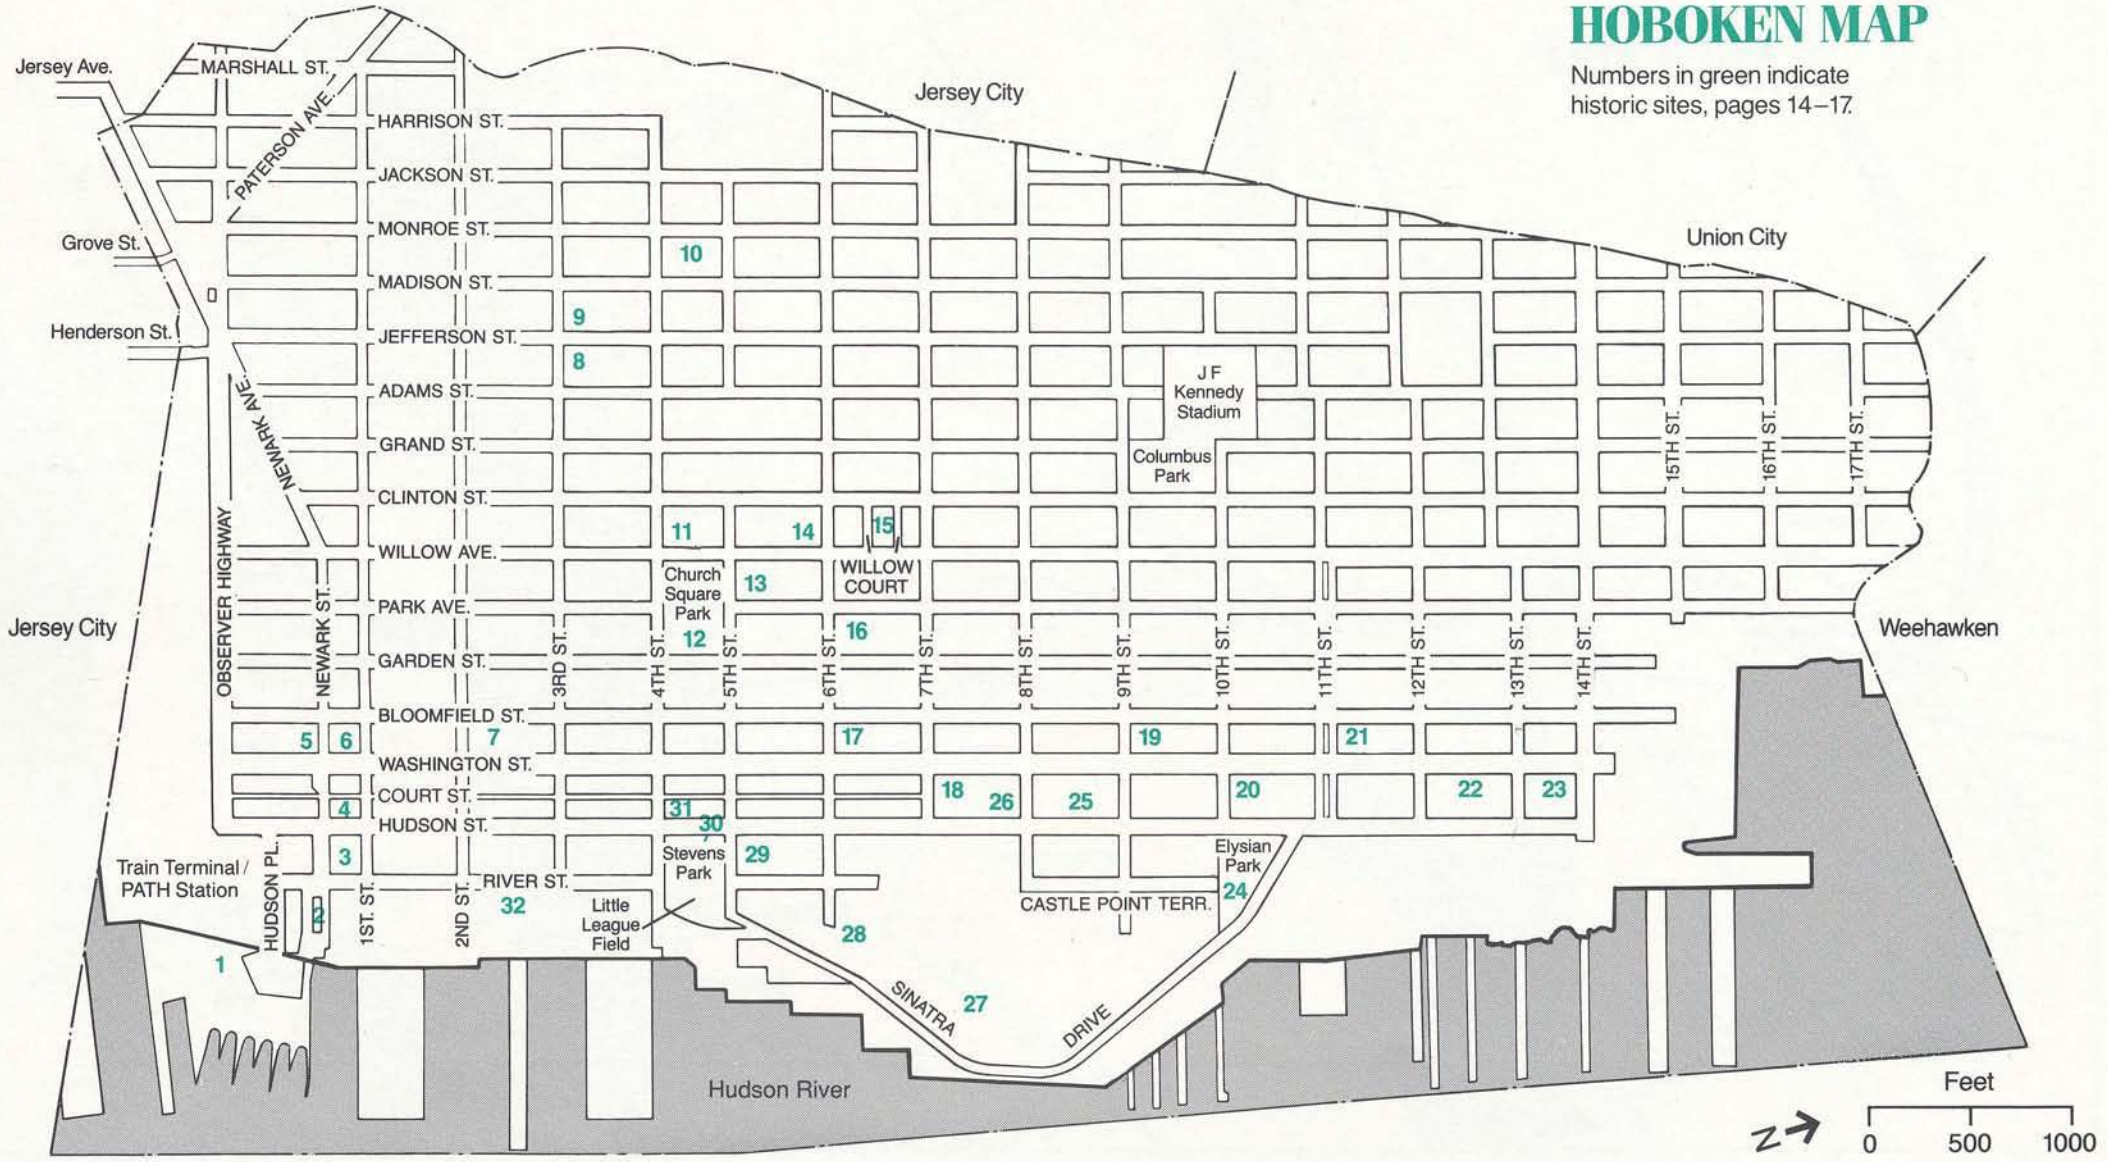

Parking space is limited, and most spaces in the shopping district are metered. By early summer 1987, parking in non-metered areas will be limited to cars with residential parking permits. Visitors will, however, be granted a four-hour grace period during which they may park without a sticker. Vehicles parked longer than four hours must display a visitors permit. Such permits are available from residents only. Additional parking is available at the municipal garage (see page 102).

HOBOKEN MAP

Numbers in green indicate historic sites, pages 14–17.

Friends and neighbors at the site of Frank Sinatra's birthplace, 415 Monroe Street

HISTORIC SITES

Historic sites are numbered sequentially for a circular walking tour route (see map, page 12). Not all sites are open to the public.

1. Erie Lackawanna Train Terminal

Hudson Place
Registered State and National Historic Site

Designed by Kenneth Murchison and built in 1907, the building is clad in copper and housed the first attempt to air cool a public building in the U.S.

2. Hoboken Land & Improvement Company Building

One Newark Street
Registered State and National Historic Site

From this building parcels of land in Hoboken were sold by the Stevens family. Constructed in 1889, the building's interior was patterned after a ferryboat.

3. Clam Broth House

38 Newark Street

A famous restaurant founded in 1899, its workingman's stand-up bar was first opened to women in 1972.

4. The First Demonstration of a Steam Railroad in the U.S.

56 Newark Street

Near this site on May 13, 1826, Colonel John Stevens proved that a steam locomotive could operate on a track.

5. Office Building, formerly The Hoboken Bank for Savings

84 Washington Street

Built in 1889 by N. Lebrun & Sons, this building housed the first bank in Hoboken.

6. City Hall

94 Washington Street
Registered State and National Historic Site

The main building, designed by Francis G. Himpler, was built in red brick in 1881; it was enlarged in white brick and brownstone in 1911.

7. The Assembly of Exempt Firemen

213 Bloomfield Street
Registered State and National Historic Site

This building was designed by Francis G. Himpler in the Italianate style.

8. Clock Tower, formerly Keuffel & Esser Building

301 Jefferson Street
Registered State and National Historic Site

This reinforced concrete building, erected in 1901, marks the first conversion of a factory to family housing in the U.S. (1975).

9. Saint Francis Church
300 Jefferson Street

Originally constructed for Italian Catholics in 1888, the church is run by Franciscan priests.

10. Frank Sinatra's Birth Site
415 Monroe Street

The house in which Frank Sinatra was born burned down in the 1960's. The existing brick wall and arch were built in 1973.

11. Our Lady of Grace Church
400 Willow Avenue

Designed by Francis G. Himpler and built in 1874, this Gothic church houses paintings and ceremonial vessels donated by Victor Emmanuel, Emperor Napoleon III, and other Italian and French royalty.

12. Church Square Park
Between Garden, Willow, Fourth, and Fifth Streets

This block was dedicated to the people of Hoboken by Colonel John Stevens in 1804. Laid out as a park in 1873, it was refurbished and rededicated in 1986.

13. Hoboken Public Library
500 Park Avenue

Donated by the Stevens family in 1895, this was the third public library building constructed in New Jersey.

14. Church of the Holy Innocents
311 Sixth Street
Registered State and National Historic Site

This Gothic structure, dating to 1872, was built by Martha Bayard Stevens for the poor of Hoboken as a memorial to her daughter, Julia, who died when only 7.

15. Willow Terrace
Between Willow, Clinton, Sixth, and Seventh Streets

Built in 1886, these diminutive rowhouses were the homes of Stevens Estate workers.

16. Martha Institute
Sixth Street and Park Avenue

Constructed in 1867 and named for Martha Bayard Stevens, the building housed the first Hoboken High School. In 1917 the Stevens School, a preparatory school founded by Stevens Institute, moved here.

17. Stephen Collins Foster House
601 Bloomfield Street

Stephen Collins Foster lived here from 1854 to 1855, when he wrote "Jeannie with the Light Brown Hair."

18. Trinity Episcopal Church
701 Washington Street

Designed by Richard Upjohn and completed in 1856, this Gothic church is one of the oldest institutional structures in Hoboken.

19. Iglesia Adventista del Séptimo Día (Spanish Seventh Day Adventist Church)
901 Bloomfield Street

Constructed in 1891, this building originally housed the First Baptist Church.

20. The Elks Lodge Building
1005 Washington Street

Designed by G. B. McIntyre and built in 1906 for the B.P.O. Elks Lodge #74, this building features leaded, beveled glass windows on the first floor.

21. Formerly First Spanish Baptist Church
1101 Bloomfield Street

Originally called the Columbia Club, and built in 1891 to provide social gathering space, the building is now being renovated into condominiums.

22. Yellow Flats, formerly Elysian Apartments
Washington Street between Twelfth and Thirteenth Streets

Hetty Green, one of the wealthiest American women of her day and known as the "Witch of Wall Street," lived here in 1896.

23. Engine Company #2
1313 Washington Street
Registered State and National Historic Site

Built in 1880; the Stevens family, who contributed the land, insisted that the structure be set back so that firemen could spit their tobacco juice without spraying the passersby.

24. Elysian Park, formerly part of the Elysian Fields
Hudson Street between Tenth and Eleventh Streets

The first regular baseball game was played near here on June 19, 1846. The New York Yacht Club's first clubhouse was located at Tenth and the River in 1845.

25. The Abbey, formerly St. Paul's Episcopal Church
820 Hudson Street

This building originally housed the oldest congregation in Hoboken. The church was built in 1870 and renovated into condominiums in 1986.

26. St. Matthew's Trinity Lutheran Church
57 Eighth Street

Built in 1877, the church features a 150-foot bell tower and a mural catalogued by the Smithsonian Institution.

27. Castle Point
Observation Terrace at Stevens Center

This rise of serpentine rock is referred to in the log of Henry Hudson's second voyage on the Half Moon in 1609. The Stevens family home, the "Castle," was located here from 1853 to 1959. The cannon on the observatory terrace dates from the Civil War.

28. Stevens Gatehouse
Sixth Street off River Street

Built of serpentine rock in 1859 as the home of the woman who tended cows for the Stevens estate, this is the oldest building on the Stevens Campus.

29. Stevens Administration Building
Fifth Street between River and Hudson Streets

The firm of R. and R. Upjohn and Sons designed this building in 1870. It was the first building in the Stevens Institute complex.

30. Stevens Park, formerly Hudson Square Park
Hudson Street between Fourth and Fifth Streets

On land donated to the people of Hoboken by the Stevens family are a statue commemorated in 1888 by General William T. Sherman and cannons taken from the U.S.S. Portsmouth when she was decommissioned in Hoboken in 1901.

31. Saints Peter and Paul Church
400 Hudson Street

Founded in 1889 for German Catholics, the interior of the present church was used for a scene in the movie "On the Waterfront."

32. World War I Boulder
East Side of River Street between Second and Third Streets

Hoboken served as the official Port of Embarkation for World War I troops. During the war over 3 million soldiers passed through the City.
