

Copyright, 1910, by the Sweetland Publishing Co.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK
HOBOKEN, N. J.

KENNETH M. MURCHISON
ARCHITECT

(For plans and working drawings, see No. 1767, November 3, 1909)

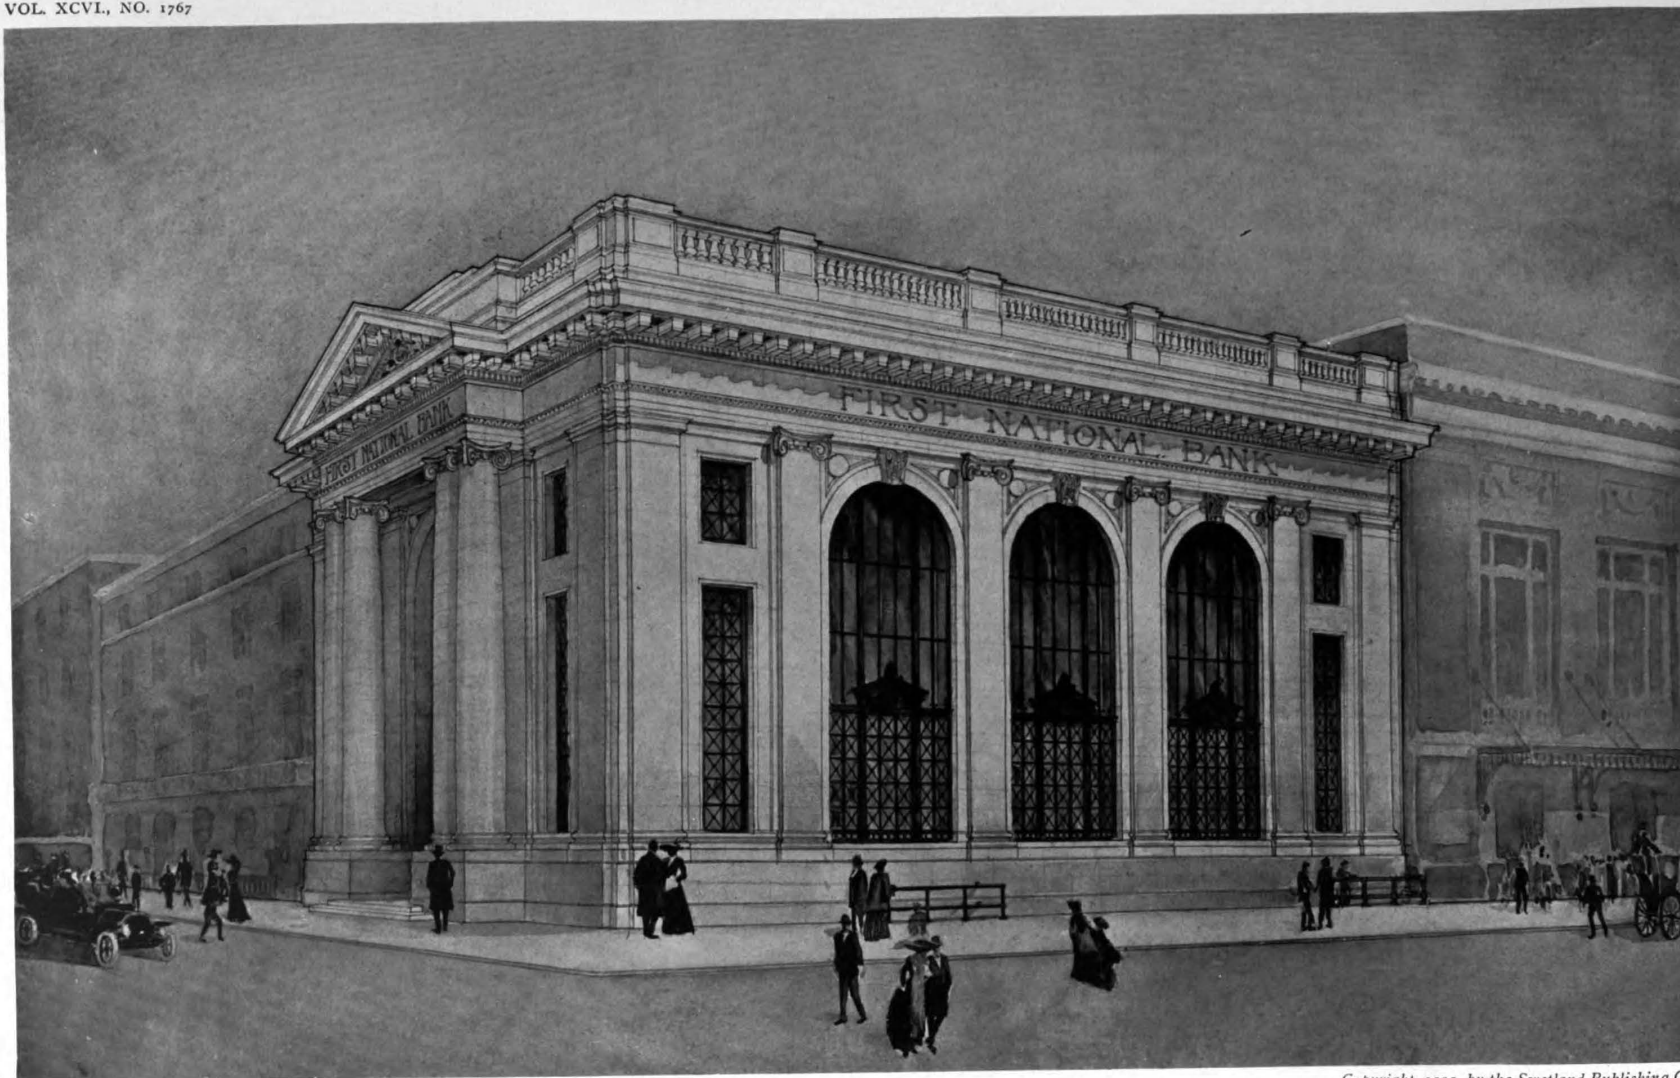

FIRST NATIONAL BANK
HOBOKEN, N. J.

Copyright, 1910, by the Sweetland Publishing Co.

KENNETH M. MURCHISON
ARCHITECT

(For plans and working drawings see No. 1767 November 2, 1909)

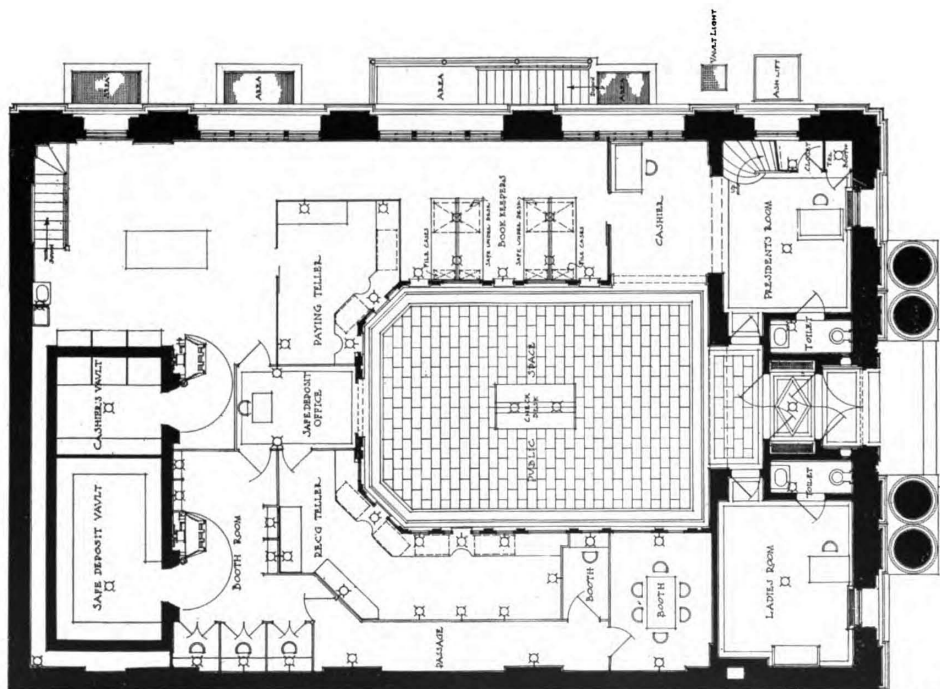

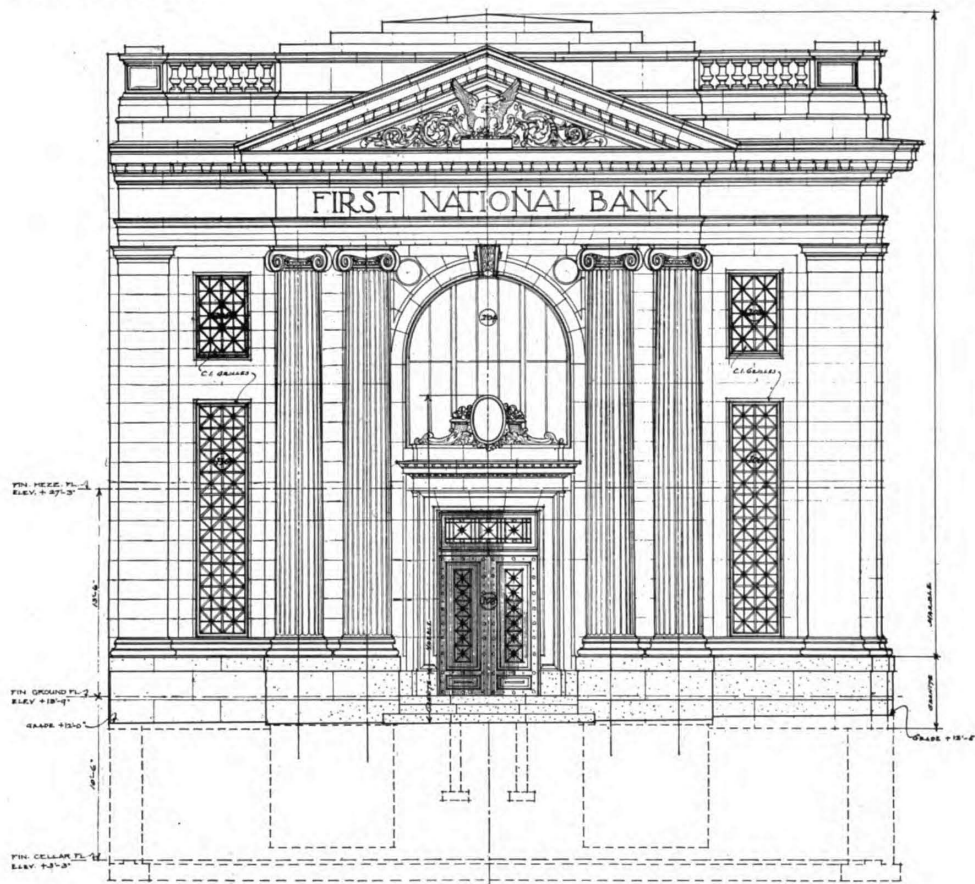

ACCEPTED COMPETITIVE DESIGN

Copyright, 1909, by the Sweetland Publishing Co.

The exterior of this building is constructed of South Dover marble, with bronze window frames and doors. A simple classic design has been adhered to as being the most dignified and appropriate style for such an institution. The interior is finished in Greek marbles, Skyros for the wainscoting and bank screen, while Tynos is used for the base throughout. The furniture and fittings are all of metal of the latest and of the most approved type. All the working space is contained on one floor, and the Directors' Room occupies a small mezzanine in the front of the building. The interior is well lighted by three large arched windows, as well as by a large skylight overhead.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK
HOBOKEN, N. J.

KENNETH M. MURCHISON, JR.
ARCHITECT

FIRST NATIONAL BANK
HOBOKEN, N. J.

Copyright, 1909, by the Sweetland Publishing Co.
KENNETH M. MURCHISON, JR.
ARCHITECT