

KIDS MAP HOBOKEN

is a map about the place where we live. We studied Hoboken maps and we made pictures of the places we know. We thought about what we like and what we want to tell visitors and new kids about our favorite town.

Hoboken is special. It's a historical town and it has a very big river. Did you know that Hoboken used to be a resort? People came from New York to vacation from their jobs. Then it became a port to ship goods all over the world.

After that Hoboken became what it is now because it couldn't be a shipping town. There was not enough space for the containers. Hoboken used to be all that - Wow!

Thanks to all the hundreds of Hoboken kids, ages 6-14, who chose all the sites, drew all the pictures, and wrote all the essays and comments for KIDS MAP HOBOKEN.

As I walk down the street I see a big sign, it reads "Boston Market." I go inside and look around; I think, "This is a nice place." I go to the counter and see a person with a nice face. She says, "May I help you?" I look at all the food, and say to myself, "Boy, I'm in a good mood!" I order the kids' meal. I sit at a table, taste the mac and cheese; it is soft as my bed. I eat my food, I drink my delicious drink. Before I leave I look at the person behind the counter and give her a little wink. And that's the story of Boston Market.

parks & nature

For city parks information call (201) 420-2048

54 Church Square Park
Between 4th and 5th Streets, Garden and Willow
There are a lot of dogs in the dog area and I love dogs. Good place to hide. Great for 15 year olds that act like they are 3. Also known as Fourth Street Park. Best basketball court in town. Good luck finding a swing.

55 Columbus Park
Between 9th and 11th Streets, Clinton and Adams
Always empty. Mainly for walking pets. It has a playground for little kids; it has a gazebo, it's good for barbecues. The only three public tennis courts are there.

56 Elysian Park
Between 10th and 11th Streets, Hudson and Frank Sinatra Drive
I think it's the best park and has the nicest kids in it. It has a huge playground, a big grassy field and a sprinkler for babies. I watch dogs at the run. I like the swings. You can play basketball. Nice place to hang out or make out.

57 13th and 14th Street piers
13th and 14th Streets at the Hudson River
Fourteenth Street Pier is the longest. My mom comes home on the ferry at 13th Street Pier. Good place for boats.

58 Hudson River
Marks Hoboken's east side
It's what makes Hoboken Hoboken, and it's beautiful. Some people used to swim in the river but not anymore. Lots of bees there and my dad fishes there. If the Hudson River wasn't here this wouldn't be Hoboken.

59 Pier A
First Street at Frank Sinatra Drive and the Hudson River
The smell of raw bait in a metal cage fills the air as I lay on a soft blanket on the grass. Pulling up a cage with a crazy crab in it; boats are cruising in the clear water as I grab a runaway crab trying to go down the Pier. It's a beautiful summer day on Pier A. There's a fun sprinkler; and an amazing view.

60 Rocks
Cliffs along Franks Sinatra Drive
Long ago, the Indians used serpentine rocks to make pipes. You can find the rocks at the Hoboken cliffs. It's green. There is more of this type of rock in Hoboken than in most places.

Between 4th and 5th Streets, Hudson Street and Sinatra Drive
Sprinklers and monkey bars and baby swings. There's a large field with lots of grass and right across from it is a baseball field. A good place to watch people and dogs. You might see a dead bird or dog poop but try to ignore it. Help clean it up.

Early September Italian Festival all along Frank Sinatra Drive
Summer left without saying good-bye. The sun went down and the moon popped out with stars in tow. Crickets chirped, cicadas buzzed, slightly fading away. The fireworks shot up in the air and released into colors. As the last bang hit, little sparks faded into the Hudson River. As we walked home, lights guided our way like they knew it was us.
