

Confusing Contests Highlight Primaries

Primary Day, Tuesday, Sept. 13, may be a big day for a long list of local candidates contesting party nominations, but it probably will be a dull one for election inspectors and watchers.

That's because voter turnout tends to be light for primaries. Those who do go to the polls will be wielding considerable influence on the outcome of the November general election.

There are two contests in county Legislature races -- one in the 19th District, now represented by Frederick J. Holbrook of Spencerport, which includes portions of Gates, Greece, and Odgen; and one in the 22nd District in Rochester.

Holbrook has the Republican nomination and is listed on the Conservative line but is confronted with the possibility of a write-in opponent on that line.

In the 22nd District, Ron Thomas, a Democrat, is representing that area after being appointed to replace David Gantt, who was elected to the Assembly last Fall. Thomas is being opposed for the Democratic nomination by Marlene C. Tisdale, 43 Wilson St. There is no Republican candidate running for the seat.

IN CITY COURT races, the cross-endorsements of Democrats John R. Schwartz, Joseph D. Valentino, and Herman J. Walz and Republican Gary E. Smith, are being challenged by Irene K. Dymkar, 93 Alliance Ave., also a Democrat. Schwartz has the Republican and Conservative nominations, Smith has Republican and Conservative nominations and Dymkar the Liberal endorsement.

A contest for the opportunity to oppose Mayor Thomas P. Ryan for councilman of the East District is under way on the Republican line. Raymond A. Grosswirth, 95 Brunswick St., who has the Conservative endorsement, is opposing Dominic Gabrielli, 751 Parsells Ave., in a Republican primary. Gabrielli also challenged Ryan four years ago, unsuccessfully.

Incumbent F. Glenn King, 9 Weaver St., councilman from Northeast District, is being challenged for the Democratic nomination by Ben Douglas, 20 Carthage Dr.,

In the Southeast District, the seat currently held by Christopher Lindley, who isn't running for reelection, is being sought by Maxine Childress-Brown, 43 Marsh St. and Brian K. Campbell, 352 Woodbine Ave., in a Democratic primary.

THERE IS ALSO a contest in the city Commissioner of Schools races. Democratic candidates -- Archie C. Curry, incumbent president of the board; Karen M. Grella, 162 Gregory Hill Rd.; Rachael Hedding, 169 Sherwood Ave., and Frank B. Willis, 67 Elba St.

Some of the more confusing campaigns involve Chili Republican and Conservative candidates. Jean M. Phillips, former town tax collector, and Jerome F. Brixner, are contesting for the Republican nomination for supervisor Democratic nominee and incumbent James J. Power, 27 Powers La., is being challenged for the Conservative nomination by Ronald F. Popowich, 3 Amanda Dr.

In the Chili town council races, Lorraine V. Anderson, 68 Hallock Rd., is being opposed by R. Thomas Ward, 43 Fenton Rd., for the Republican nomination for one seat; Keith W. Lape, 19 Alfred Ave., is being challenged by Chieko Kwiatowski, 11 David Dr., for the Conservative nomination; Patricia M. Schmitt, 8 Chi-Mar Dr., is being challenged by Randy C. Pikuet, 19 Indian Hill Dr., for the Republican nomination and Pikuet also is being opposed by David L. Curtis, 37 Wadsworth Dr., for the Conservative nomination.

IN GREECE, Republican nominee Howard W. Genano, 1348 Beach Ave., running for council in the First Ward, faces a possible write-in for the Conservative nod, David G. Schantz, the Republican nominee in the Second Ward also faces a challenge for the Conservative nomination. He lives at 514 El Mar Dr. Susan M. Salamone, 100 Marble Dr., the Democratic nominee, faces a possible challenge for the Conservative nomination in the third Ward.

In Henrietta, the Republican nomination for supervisor is the subject of a contest between George C. Burke, 281 Butler Dr., Pittsford, and William F. Wu, 122 Gate House Tr., Henrietta.

There is also a contest for Henrietta Town Justice on the Republican line with Joseph J. Marticelli, 301 Butler Dr., Pittsford, being challenged by William A. Rockow, 5790 E. River Rd., Henrietta. Town Justice Anthony Parks, who has the conservative endorsement, is also being challenged by Rockow.

In the two Henrietta Council races, Donald R. Jenks, 82 Park Meadow, Pittsford, and James R. Breese are being opposed by Sam Boyko, 5140 E. Henrietta Rd., for the Republican nomination. Michael J. Murphy, 47 Sperry Dr., Henrietta, faces a possible write-in for the Conservative nomination. Breese lives at 252 Surrey Hill Way and Jenks at 82 Park Meadow Dr., Pittsford.

IN PARMA, William Hawley, 93 Underwood Ave., Hilton, Magdaleane M. Van Doorn, 123 Pease Rd., Spencerport, and Robert Ingham, 811 Manitou Rd., Hilton, are competing for the Republican town council nomination.

One of the more interesting contests is over a two-year term for Penfield Town Justice. Incumbent Anthony C. Noto, a Republican, is being opposed by Brian V. Barney, the Democratic nominee, who circulated petitions to place him on the Republican line as well. Noto lives at 180 Belvista Dr. and Barney at 27 Sawmill Dr.

Genesee County To Provide Input on Community Sentencing

Genesee County Sheriff Douglas Call will be invited to speak before the Public Safety Committee of the Monroe County Legislature about a community service program he has instituted in his county as a form of alternative sentencing.

At the last meeting of the committee, legislators Kevin Murray and Charles Eber urged that the committee check into Call's program, which has received publicity.

Public Safety Committee Chairman William List agreed to issue an invitation for Call to attend a future meeting of the committee, although he observed, "We are talking about two different populations."

Several legislators have been urging a more thorough look into possible alternative-sentencing programs to alleviate overcrowding at the Monroe County Jail without resorting to building additional facilities.

For the past two years, the jail has been forced to farm out some sentenced inmates to other, less crowded jails. Sheriff Andrew Meloni has sought, and has been granted, permission to hire a consulting firm to study the need for a minimum-security jail and, if the need is found, to develop plans and a site for such a facility.

Morin Foresees Hold-the-Line Budget for 1984

No tax increases for 1984 will be requested in the Monroe County budget by County Manager Lucien Morin.

Despite increased costs of $3.4 million for the 911 emergency phone system and $2 million for maintenance of city arterials, Morin said he hopes to "hold the line" on taxes in 1984.

"We are trying to finalize the budget now," Morin said, pointing out that he is required to submit the final budget to the County Legislature by Oct. 1.

"We are identifying our revenues, and I don't anticipate we'll eliminate any programs we now have in 1983 or create any new ones, with the possible exception of some in the public-safety area, such as contracting with the Junior League for alternative sentencing programs," Morin said.

"THERE WILL BE no big surprises," he added. He said he and budget director Kenneth Reif will be meeting almost daily to finish work on the budget so it may be ready for the printer in ample time.

The "hold-the-line" situation may be possible, according to Morin, because of growth in revenues. "There has been a lot of building going on in the county," he pointed out. "We are enjoying a little better picture as far as growth is concerned."

"I am looking for fairly good growth and can be somewhat optimistic that the present budget providing the basic services can be retained without any major increases," Morin concluded.

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers was founded in 1880 as an educational and technical society. For over 100 years, the Society has pioneered the development of codes, Offers must be received in the Philadelphia office by the close of business Sept. 30, 1983.

McNasby said there have been no offers, "but it usually takes a week or two before they (property owners) start sending letters in."

the facility. He said the postal service must conform to all area zoning regulations when locating a facility.

"A freeway is something that is not free when one considers the emotional toll."

WEAGLEY SAID the current post office building is leased from Pittsford builder Gary DeBlase. He said he believes the lease runs until 1986.

The postmaster said a village satellite office is a possibility if the new post office is not within walking distance of the village. He said it was still to be determined whether the current site could house that satellite office.

Weagley said the postal service is considering sites in a wide ranging area of Pittsford, including sections of agricultural land, business property, and residential development.

He did not say that the service's advertisement specifically states that the land chosen either must be properly zoned to accommodate the post office, or be eligible to be rezoned for

Fairport Fire

(Continued from Page 1) there, on each side of a utility pole," he said. "The crates were wood and metal structures which they used to put milk bottles in."

At this time, arson is a consideration, but, as Chief Picciotti pointed out, "Arson is one of the most difficult crimes to make certain determinations about, because all of the evidence is destroyed." He also noted that it is difficult to apprehend suspects.

ACCORDING to an earlier estimate by Apton, the blaze may have caused $150,000 to $160,000 in damages.

He had been out walking his dog and had spoken to Fairport Police Officer Douglas Morrison only 25 minutes before the blaze was spotted. The fire was discovered by Fairport Police Sgt. Ronald Vignari, who was also out on a routine check of the neighborhood, rushed in to alert the family, and called the fire department.

Apton and his wife lived in an apartment on the second floor of the middle building of the three-building complex. Their two sons, Stephen, 25, and David, 22, have separate apartments on the second floor of the front building. The first floor of the front building is the antique shop, and the third building is used mainly as storage.

More than 10 fire companies turned out to battle the fire, which took 150 firefighters 2½ hours to subdue.

"The way they stopped the fire was marvelous," Chief Picciotti said. He had arrived at the scene roughly a half hour after the fire began.

"You couldn't stand within 25 feet of the building because of the heat," he recalled, "and the flames were shooting 35 feet in the air."

NO INJURIES were reported, although Chief Picciotti witnessed "a few close calls" with firefighters scrambling to safety as the roof caved in.

The Aptons were staying in a Perinton motel earlier this week, hoping to set up a mobile home near their damaged buildings. They had moved into the three-building complex in 1968.

Chief Picciotti estimated the age of the wooden structures at at least 60 years and reported that the Aptons had had the property for sale for "quite some time."

He said the county fire investigator's report was "forthcoming," as it generally takes "three to five days," to be completed and sent.
