GYMNASIUM SOUGHT FOR NORMAL SCHOOL

Funds For Men's Dormitory At Towson Also To Be Asked, Miss Tall Says.

SCHOLARSHIP FOUNDED

Governor Ritchie Presents Diplomas At Commencement Exercises.

The Legislature at its next session will be requested to provide funds for a new gymnasium and a men's dormitory for the State Normal School at Towson, Miss Lida Lee Tall, principal of the school, said yesterday at the com-menement exercises.

Miss Tall also announced that the senior class this year had given $500 for a scholarship fund to be known as the Esther Sheel memorial loan scholarship fund. Miss Sheel, who was a member of the senior class, died in May.

Prizes Awarded.

Margaret Luella Rohrer, of Washington county, received two awards of $10 each. One was from the Towson National Bank for the senior who had accomplished the finest work as student teacher in the rural schools and the other from the Baltimore County Bank for the senior receiving the highest grade of scholarship.

The Second Bank of Towson also gave $10 for the best citizen in the senior class. This award was won by Lorena Aist, of Prince George's county.

Governor Ritchie delivered the address to the graduates and presented diplomas to the following:

my coat, and then we reviewed that wonderful military parade.

I haven't forgotten the ceremony at the Shaft of Eternal Light. It was touching and impressive. I was too young to be in the war myself, but I have an idea of what our men did and I reverence the memory of those who fell.

Before I close I would like to leave one or two thoughts with the people of New York. I am convinced aviation will soon take its place among the big activities of the United States. We can easily lead the world if we do certain definite things. Europe can teach us considerable, but we have the material right here at home for the greatest air establishment, commercially speaking, in the world.

Baltimoreans View Planes

As Lindbergh Flies North

Several hundred Baltimoreans yesterday waved their arms when a fleet of planes sped over the eastern edge of the city, but those who hoped to catch a glimpse of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh were disappointed.

The squadron included Colonel Lindbergh and an escort of army flyers, but the familiar silvery Spirit of St. Louis, in which the young aviator conquered the Atlantic, was missing from the air fleet.

Lindbergh flew in an army plane, which could not be distinguished from the others. The squadron passed over the city at 9:20 A. M. and was seen plainly from Curtis Bay, Sparrows Point and Bay Shore.

Record Books Of Clippings

To Be Given Lindbergh

New York, June 13 (AP).—Four leather-bound books embellished with gold letters will be presented to Col.

Charles A. Lindbergh at the Nungesser-Coli benefit performance at a local theater Wednesday midnight. The books contain approximately 300,000 clippings.

They were taken from New York newspapers over a space of twelve days and establish a new record, according to a press-clipping bureau.

The Prince of Wales during his entire stay in America drew only 250,000 clippings, the Queen of Rumania only 200,000, and General Pershing on his return to the United States only 100,000, a clipping-bureau chief, who complied the books for these notables, said.

Young Woman Drops Dead

In N. Y. Parade Crowd

New York, June 13 (Special).—One young woman dropped dead, a dozen persons were injured in traffic accidents, one hundred adults and a score of children were overcome by heat and at least a thousand others required restorative treatment of a minor but emergency nature in the greatest surge of humanity the world has ever known at

Colonel Lindbergh's reception in New York today.

The city's 13,000 police and reserves did their valiant best in the circumstances. At times they were resolute, but not rough. In several instances they hurt a few people in order that no harm should come to tens of thousands around them. On the whole, they maintained their calm and efficiency in the highest degree and a large percentage of the casualties were in no way within their province to forestall.

if the weather is good, set out over the same route to be followed by Mr. Black for another non-stop flight attempt to Karachi. In a previous attempt Carr and another companion came down in the Persian Gulf after covering 3,400 miles. Unless the second attempt should also be attended by misfortune the British flyers will reach Karachi days ahead of Mr. Black.

Value Of Flight Indicated.

As indicating the practical value of Mr. Black's flight, it is interesting to quote from an article by F. T. Courtney, an aviation expert, in the Saturday Re- view, which says:

"In my opinion the useful non-stop distance is about 1,000 miles for land machines and 1,500 for flying boats, beyond which the airplane is a mere petrocarrying device. Long-distance flying is the only way in which aviation can really be of value to civilization and commerce. And, provided your air planes can get you between far distant points in a very short total time, it does not matter how many times you land on the way."
