Mr. Goldsboro Visits School

On October 8, we assembled in the Auditorium, where Mr. Goldsboro, of the Curtis Publishing Company, addressed us. In the course of his talk, Mr. Goldsboro discussed what occupation we would take up after leaving school, and the opportunities offered by various professions. He said that statistics showed more and more people were leaving the occupation of farming and manufacturing and turning to distributing goods. The decrease of the employers in manufacturing plants, he explained, was caused by machinery doing the work of people. Naturally these machines were faster than persons and so more goods were turned out of the factories every year. This goods must be distributed, and hence the increase in the number of salesmen.

We were then told that we would be given a chance to prove ourselves good salesmen. The pupils were divided into two teams, the Reds and the Blues. Vera Jones was appointed Sales Manager. Madeline Outten was made Renewal Manager. Helen Harris and Herman Perdue were chosen leaders of the Red Team and Charles Kensey and Esther Robins were chosen leaders of the Blue Team. The scores of the teams were to be kept by two horses. The side with most subscriptions would ride a fine spirited steed, and the team which was behind would ride a dejected looking beast. Each student would receive awards for his sales.

During the week this campaign lasted, there was a close race between the two teams but the Blue Team came off victorious with the exciting score 73-72. Much spirit and enthusiasm were shown by the members of both teams, and as a forfeit the Reds

Snow Hill and Pocomoke

The Snow Hill High School Soccer Team played the Pocomoke High School Soccer team at Pocomoke City Friday, October 31.

It was one of the most interesting and exciting games of the season. Both teams played hard all through the game and especially toward the last. Each player tried to out-wit the other. Everyone on the side-line cheered and urged his team on to victory.

The game ended in a tie, the score being 0-0.

The line up as follows:
S. H. H. S.		Pocomoke
C. Nelson	C.F.	H. Phillips
R. Jackson	I.R.F.	F. Riley
D. Baker	R.W.	H. Walters

S. H. H. S. Wins Field Ball Game

The Snow Hill and Pocomoke Field Ball Girls played an exciting game at Snow Hill October 21. The score was 4 to 0, in favor of Pocomoke at the end of the first half. At the beginning of the second half the Snow Hill girls got in the spirit of the game and won 9-4.

Those who threw goals are: Snow Hill—Helen Harris, Elizabeth Carter, and Audrey Outten.

The line up is as follows:
Margaret Calloway	C.F.	Helen Harris
P. Collins	L.I.F.	E. Carter
L. Hancock	R.I.F.	A. Outten

Youth's Ideals

A great statesman was once asked to predict the future of the American nation, and he said, "Gentlemen, that I cannot do; but tell me the ideals that your boys have, the heroes they worship, the characters they imitate, and I will venture to tell you what America may become." That man was right, I wish I knew what were your ideals. Are your ideals worthy? Worthy of your own best talents, worthy of the times in which you live, worthy of the interests of your country and humanity, worthy of the service which you owe your Church and Christ?

We all have our ideals, and whether consciously or unconsciously, we tend to follow them. The higher these ideals, the more conscious the effort we make toward attaining them, the greater will be the measure of our success. All boys have their heroes, all girls have their heroines, and though we never reach the heights of their greatness, yet our lives are the richer for the effort.

Who are our greatest heroes? Perhaps Washington and Lincoln. What made them great? Was it their unusual intellect,—no, for Washington was not a brilliant man, nor deeply learned, even for his day. Was it their birth and breeding? No, for Lincoln came from the poorest of the poor. No, it was none of these, it was their high courage and devotion to ideals, the ideals of truth and honesty, of fairness and justice, of service to their fellow men. They were our greatest patriots, but back of their patriotism were the homely virtues of honesty, truth and fair play. We would all do well to emulate them.

But many of us are girls, and the high courage of Washington and Lincoln is not the thing that we can do. True,—but we have our heroines, girls whose courage was no whit less than that of Lincoln. When I was a very little girl I read the story of Joan of Arc, the Maid of France, and for many years she was my great ideal. After a while, I came to see that I was not built for the stirring deeds of Joan, the soldier, and then Florence Nightingale came in to take her place, the devoted nurse who surmounted the handicaps of physical weakness, of family opposition, of masculine disapproval, in order to carry out her ideal, the ideal of service to suffering humanity. Surely all girls would do well to strive to follow the religious soul of Joan the Maid, the tender heart of Florence Nightingale, and the high courage of them both.

YOUTH'S IDEALS

But as we change with the changing time, so do our ideals. In the twelfth century the great ideal of the world was that of the Crusader, all boys strove to be like Richard the Lion Hearted of England and Frederick the Redbeard of Germany—brilliant knights who dashed across the world with shining sword and glittering lance. In the sixteenth century, the bold sea rover had his day, and the world resounded with the praise of Francis Drake and Captain Kidd. In the seventeenth century, men turned to religious reform and the stern figures of John Knox and John Calvin, of Martin Luther, and of Oliver Cromwell were the order of the day; in the eighteenth century 'twas the soldier. All Europe racked with the tramp of armed hosts until the Iron Duke met the Little Corporal and crushed him at Waterloo. What is the great ideal of the world today? A crusader in shield and armor would look fantastic, if not ridiculous, a pirate wouldn't last long in this age of steam and electricity; science has robbed soldering of its glamour for if we ever had another war, we'd all be killed with poison gas so quickly that the soldiers wouldn't even have time to mobilize, let alone have a chance to fight. No, the ideal of the twentieth century is none of these, it is the ideal of Service. Service to your neighbor, service to your state, service to the poor and needy, service to the sick and ill, service to the world at large, for "New occasions bring new duties, time makes ancient good uncouth, He must upward still and onward, who would keep abreast of Truth."

Many folks say that this is a Godless age—that the young people of today are utterly selfish, and that they have no thought beyond that of their own enjoyment. I do not agree with that. It is only that the young people of today are different. Young people are just as sincere as they ever were, their needs of religion is just as strong as it ever was, and their desires to lead the good life are just as real as they ever have been. It is only that in many cases they do not know how. Many young people today ask this question, college students, university students, young folks in all walks of life. How may we serve, we who are young, how may we help in Christ's program of Service? Should we not wait until we are older, we can do so little now? No. For true worth is in being, not seeming,

"In doing each day that goes by
Some little good, not in dreaming
Of great things to do by and by
For whatever men say in their blindness

And in spite of the fancies of youth,
There's nothing so kindly as kindness
And nothing so royal as truth."

Just the other day I came across a little poem which I think it so well expresses youth's need, and shows a way in which that need may be met,—a way in which even the youngest of us may share in the life of our church, a way in which even the least of us may help in Christ's program of Service.

"If you were busy being kind,
Before you knew it you would find
You'd soon forget to think 'twas true,
That someone was unkind to you
If you were busy being glad,
And cheering people who were sad,
Although your heart might ache a bit,
You'd soon forget to notice it.

If you were busy being true
To what you know you ought to do
You'd be so busy you'd forget
The blunders of the folks you've met.
If you were busy being good,
And doing just the best you could You'd not have time to blame some man

Who's doing just the best he can.
That is it, being busy; busy with the things that counts, busy with the things worth while, for being busy, wisely busy, rightly busy, justly busy,—is not that the work of all of us.?

None of us are too old for this, and none of us are too young, for did not Jesus himself say at twelve years old, "Wist ye not that I must be about my father's business." So we today must be about our Father's business, and in order to do that we must keep our ideals, we must adapt ourselves to our ideals, remembering always that Jesus of Nazareth is our ideal, and that his message is Service.

A builder builded a temple
With cunning and consummate skill
Pillars and groins and arches,
All fashioned to work his will.

A teacher builded a temple
With loving and infinite care.
Smoothing each stone with patience
Laying each block with prayer.
None praised her unceasing efforts
None knew of her wonderous plan,
For the temple of teacher builded
Was unseen by the eyes of men.

Gone is the builders temple,
Crumbled into the dust
Low his each stately pillars
Food for consuming rust
But the temple the teacher builded
Shall last while the ages roll,
For that beautiful unseen temple,
Was a child's immortal soul.

In this issue we are publishing an article, "Youth's Ideals," written by Miss Ida Belle Wilson of the Salisbury Normal School. This article was first used as a speech, and was so greatly appreciated that Miss Wilson had it typed and kindly consented to our using it.

STUDENT COUNCIL

The Student Council held its first meeting of the year Wednesday, October 29. Miss Bratten administered the oath of office to the President, Louis Sturgis, who then took charge of the meeting. The oath of office was administered to the members. Miss Bratten then gave us a brief talk on the purpose of the Council and told the new members the various rules and regulations. The following officers were elected: Vice President, Helen Harris; Secretary, Cynthia Hales; Treasurer, Anna Strickland. The members of the Executive Committee are Miss Bratten, Louis Sturgis, Helen Harris, Herman Perdue, and Esther Robins. The Council hopes to make this a most successful year.

SCIENCE CLUB

The Science Club held its first meeting Wednesday October 22nd.

The club planned its work for the coming year and elected new officers to serve for the year 1930-31.

The officers are as follows:

President—Charles Kensey.

Vice President—Gordon Conner.

Secretary—Holland Stanford.

Treasurer—Herman Perdue.

Representative to Student Council—Marion Pettitt.

We are sure that the club will have a most successful year under the new officers and sponsor, Mr. Jones.

Nelson Barnes—When are the new tools coming?

Mr. Uhrbrock—I don't know.

Nelson Barnes—How are they sending them?

Mr. Uhrbrock—Either C. O. D. or F.O.B. but certainly not P.D.Q.

DRAMATIC CLUB

October 24th found the members of the Dramatic Club in the Teachers Room to start a new year's work.

The officers to serve this year are: President—Marion Pettitt.

Vice President—Helen Harris.

Recording Secretary—Sara Hayward.

Corresponding Secretary—Almeta Jones.

Treasurer—George Lee Barnes.

Representative to Student Council—Elizabeth Warner.

Mr. Simmons spoke of the chairs and desk that the Clubs had contributed to the Teachers Room and expressed his appreciation.

With the help of Miss Fontaine, our new sponsor, we hope to make this a most successful year.

FRENCH CLUB

The French Club held its first meeting this year on October 17. The following officers were elected for the year 1930-31.

President—Irvin Holston.

Vice President—Elizabeth Warner.

Secretary—Madeline Outten.

Treasurer—Herman Perdue.

Representative to Student Council—Esther Robins.

The members discussed plans for the coming term and hope to make this the most successful year the club has ever known.

THE HISTORY OF THANKSGIVING

In the United States and in Canada there is a day set apart for praising, prayer, and sermon or the giving of thanks for the blessings which we have received during the year. This day known as Thanksgiving, is in the late Autumn after the crops are harvested.

The first winter the pilgrims spent in America, provisions were very short and nearly half of them died. Naturally the next year, they were very glad when the crops were gathered and they were assured of enough food for the winter. To show their gratitude, Governor Bradford ordered a day set apart in which to give thanks to God for his mercies to them. The first Thanksgiving was a grand affair. A great feast was prepared, and the guests were some friendly Indians who brought their share of the food. This was not only a day of feasting, but also a day of worship.

The custom spread from Plymouth to all the states, and the Protestant Episcopal Church set the first Thursday in November as the day for giving thanks, unless another day was appointed by the civil authorities. But this did not last, for some states observed it and others did not. Mrs. Sarah Hale became very interested and kept the matter constantly before the President. Finally President Lincoln listened to her argument and fixed Thanksgiving Day as the last Thursday of November. That is why Mrs. Hale is called "The Mother of Thanksgiving." Thanksgiving Day is not a legal holiday but almost every state has legalized it by an act of legislature.

Today Thanksgiving is considered a family day, and when we speak of Thanksgiving one thinks of "Home."

In Canada, too, Thanksgiving is kept in much the same manner as in the United States.

A TYPICAL ENGLISH CLASS

Esther Robins while conducting the Senior Class seems to be having trouble for:

Esther (imitating Miss Fontaine): If you are willing to pay attention we will now have the class.

Marion Petitt (sweetly): Of course Esther we are willing to do anything you say.

Esther: Quiet are you trying to make me out a dumbbell?

Marion Riley: Impossible, nature got ahead of him there.

Esther: You had certain words to use in sentences last night. Edward give me your sentence using trickle and anecdote.

Edward: The dog trickled down the street waving his anecdote. Trickle means to run slowly, and anecdote is a short funny tale.

Esther: Very good. Now Charles, what is the meaning of the word pioneer?

Charles: A pioneer is a person who plays the piano.

Esther: Does any one know what time it is?

Holland: Quarter of twelve exactly.

Irvin: He has a mathematical clock. It runs two hours fifteen minutes, and nine seconds fast.

Louis Sturgis: According to that it is twenty nine minutes and fifty-one seconds past nine o'clock.

Esther: Vera, what is the opposite of grief?

Vera: Happiness.

Esther: Good, Gladys what is the opposite of sorrow?

Gladys: Joy.

Esther: Gordon what is the opposite of woe?

Gordon: Get up.

Esther: Elizabeth, use incongruous in a sentence?

Elizabeth: Your dress is incongruous for the occasion.

Esther: Where did you get your information?

Elizabeth: From the library during activity period. Lena, Almata and I, were locked there for an inconvenience.

S. H. H. S. LOSES TO POCOMOKE

The first real soccer game of the season opened Tuesday October 21, when Pocomoke played at Snow Hill. Each team was eager to test the other's ability, and each player seemed anxious and on his toes to get started. Pocomoke played a fair and clean game, each player doing his best. Snow Hill was defeated 6 to 2, but it was won honestly and fair. Get that old life and pep boys, let's get going. We have five more games yet; let's win those.

Line up as follows:

Pocomoke		S.H.H.S.

BERLIN SNOW HILL GAME

The game with Berlin October 28, created much excitement and enthusiasm. Each side playing hard and striving to out-smart his opponent. Every visitor was anxious to know how the game would end. After Snow Hill got warm and on their toes they carried the ball down the field and scored a goal. This made things go off with a boom, but both sides held their own until the end of the first half. The last half both teams were up in their collar but as accidents will happen Berlin scored a goal making a tie of 2-2.

The line up is as follows:

Berlin		Snow Hill

SOCCER TEAM LOSES TO STOCKTON

On November 5, the Snow Hill Soccer Boys played the Stockton Team at Stockton.

Each player entered the game with fight in his mind and each team tried very hard to get a goal at the beginning. Stockton scored two goals before the first half was over, making the score 4-0 favoring Stockton.

In the second half Stockton played defensive, and Snow Hill playing offensive tried in every way to get a goal. Both teams were at a disadvantage as it rained during the whole game.

The game ended in Stockton's favor, the score being 4-0.

The line up is as follows:

S. H. H. S.		Stockton

SCHOOL SPIRIT

Have you ever stopped to think what school spirit meant? And have you ever asked yourself if you had school spirit? Most of us, when asked this question, would answer, yes. Check up on yourself. Do you boost your school in every single action that it takes, or do you take interest in only a few? Most of us do this. To any subject that we are interested in we gladly devote time and attention, but when something we are not interested in comes along we let it slide. This is not true school spirit. Some schools seem to succeed in everything they undertake. This is not because of superior athletes and students but is simply because, the pupils, having a lot of school spirit, enter into every activity. We the students of Snow Hill High School have some school spirit, but do we have enough! To be sure we are interested in our high school, but do we do everything in our power to help it. More than likely we do not. Let everybody, during this school term, enter spiritedly into all the activities of the school. If every student does this, S. H. H. S. will have the most successful year it has ever had. Surely you would like to have a part in this, so everybody develop school spirit.

NOVEMBER

November was one of the months to which the Romans never troubled themselves to give a specific name. "The ninth month it was called, for that was originally its place in the year; and from the Latin word novem, meaning nine, has come the present name. Later when two extra months were added, November became what it is today, the eleventh in the series, but its name was never changed. At one time, however, a change was suggested. July had been renamed for Julius Caesar, August for Augustus Caesar, and a subservient senate offered to call the eleventh month after Tiberius Caesar, but he declined saying "What will you do if you have thirteen emperors?"

The number of days in the month has not been constant. Originally there were thirty, then twenty-nine and again thirty-one, but from the time of Augustus it has had thirty days, as at present.

The harvesting season is over, the crops are secure in the barns, and thus there comes each year a repetition of that experience of the Pilgrims which resulted in the proclamation of the first Thanksgiving.

Of the sports, the one which seems to belong specifically to November is football.

Many famous people were born in November. Among those are: Marie Antoinette, William Cullen Bryant, William of England, John Philip Sousa, Martin Luther, Henry Van Dyke and Robert Louis Stevenson.

Some of the important events which happened in November are: Close of Thirty Year's War, Armistice Day, Washington became a state, Articles of Confederation adopted, Congress met for the first time in Washington.

THE ORIGIN OF HALLOWE'EN

Hallowe'en the evening of the 31st of October, is the eve of All-Hallows, or All-Saints Day. November 1st, was originally a pagan celebration. When the Druids of England held their great autumn festival they lighted fires in honor of the sun god. In the Highlands of Scotland and Wales, where the Celts for centuries survived the invasions of other races, the lighting of bonfires long remained a feature of the festivities. In Ireland, the celebration has also retained traces of its early Celtic origin and is known as the "Vigil of Saman," the lord of death, who was supposed to assemble on this occasion those wicked souls which, during the preceding year, had been condemned to inhabit the bodies of animals. To these Celtic features were added, in early, Christian times, others characteristic of the Roman festival in honor of Romona, and her nuts and apples, typical of nature's bounty, came to play an important part in various rites.

The custom of lighting Hallowe'en fires survived until recent years in the highlands of Scotland and Wales. In the dying embers it was usual to place as many small stones as there were persons around, and next morning a search was made. If any of the pebbles were displaced it was regarded as certain that the person represented would die within the twelve months.

BERLIN FIELD BALL GIRLS
PLAYED AT SNOW HILL
TUESDAY, OCTOBER 28th

S. H. H. S. Field Ball Girls played Berlin on Tuesday, October 28th. The Snow Hill Girls played hard but it seemed very hard to score on Berlin. The Snow Hill girls came very near scoring but it seems, at times, that luck is with the opposing team.

The game ended with a one-sided score in favor of Berlin, 20 to 0.

FIELD BALL GAME AT POCO-MOKE FRIDAY, OCTOBER 31st

Snow Hill played a good game at Pocomoke Friday October 31st.

The game was won fairly. The Snow Hill girls would have gotten more goals if they hadn't thrown such long passes.

The score was 4-4 until the last quarter when Pocomoke made a goal making the final score 6-4 in favor of Pocomoke.

SNOW HILL WINS
FIELD BALL AT STOCKTON

A very exciting Field Ball game was played at Stockton Wednesday, November 5th. The first quarter, Stockton scored one goal. The next quarter Snow Hill scored a goal, tying the score. The first quarter of the second half Snow Hill scored another goal; making the score 4-2 in favor of Snow Hill. The last part of the second half Stockton had one penalty but was stopped by the excellent work of the goal keeper, Vera Jones.

The line up as follows:

Esther: Herman give me a sentence using analysis.

Herman: I have a girl named Alice. I am tall analysis short.

Esther: Jessie, why are you rubbing your mouth with the back of your hand?

Jessie: Because it is cleaner than the front.

Esther: Was that the five minute bell?

Frank: No. the same bell that always rings.

Emory: Esther can you work this algebra problem?

Esther: I'll ask the class. If I have a steak and divide it sixteen times what will I have?

Helen: Hamburger.

Esther: Very good. Class is dismissed.

TULIP TIME

—o—

The operetta being prepared by the Glee Club promises to be a great success. Its snappy songs, bright wit, and interesting plot will keep you sitting on the edge of your chairs, wondering whether the Bourgomaster (Marion Petitt) is going to succeed in cheating poor little Christina (Cynthia Hales) out of thousands of dollars. Just as you have decided she will prey to this old money grabber's scheme, some American students of Botany arrive on the scene. What a time they have, for the boys are accompanied by an elderly teacher, McSpindle, who thinks the boys should be interested only in flowers. The boys however, greatly prefer the Holland girls to the study of botany, and their chief problem is how to get rid of McSpindle's unwelcome presence. They finally hit upon a scheme, and the outcome—will make you laugh until your sides ache. This play is not lacking in romance, for when the curtain falls, a triple wedding is in the near future. You don't want to miss "Tulip Time."

THANKSGIVING

—o—

Thanksgiving day is here once more,
The squirrels have laid up their winter store,
The hunters in their hunting habits,
Are searching for the birds and rabbits.

The small turkey is in the air,
Grandmother sitting in the old arm chair,
The cousins, aunts, and uncles all,
Have come to make a friendly call.

Soon the dinner will begin,
And napkins will be tucked under chins,
There will be apples, candies, nuts and dates,
And all good things will fill their plates.

G. L. Barnes

AS THANKSGIVING
DAY ROLLS BY

—o—

Thanksgiving Day will soon be here,
With Turkey and Mince Pie,
The pumpkins in the garden here
Will be ripe by and by.

The turkey in the barn and lot,
Is strutting to and fro,
The axe is sharp and ready now
For a gobbler that I know.

The ground is white with falling snow
Jack Frost has been again,
And pictures on the window panes
Are traced by his silvery hand.

Soon we'll be at the table,
Eating cranberry sauce and pie,
We'll rise with a terrible tummy-ache
As Thanksgiving Day rolls by.

NOVEMBER

—o—

It is now bright November
With the leaves falling fast,
And everybody is happy
With Hallowe'en just past.

It is now bright November,
And the cold weather has begun,
With the frost on the pumpkins,
And the men with their guns.

It is now bright November,
With Thanksgiving near at hand,
And the turkey has quit gobbling,
To escape to "No Man's Land."

HOT LUNCHES

When the noon bell rings crowds of boys and girls may be seen hurrying down the hall to the cafeteria room, each trying to get there first. A hot lunch and several kinds of sandwiches waits everyone who desires them at a very low cost. These lunches are prepared by the sophomore class. There is an abundance of ice cream and candy which are in great demand. The large, well equipped cafeteria room enables all the pupils who would otherwise go downtown, to get their lunch at school. This is a very good thing because the students are no longer allowed to run about the streets downtown.

THANKSGIVING

I arose on Thanksgiving morning,
Feeling very bright and gay,
For I was very thankful,
This Thanksgiving Day.
I thought of pumpkin pie
And cranberry sauce so fine,
But the fat and plump old turkey,
Was what made my eyes shine.

Jessie Hepler

JOKES

In History class the seniors were discussing a man who did not honor the American Flag.

Charles Kensey—"I would like to meet him some dark night."

Esther Robins—"So would I."

* * * *

Grace Higgins: What is that peculiar odor in the library.

Edward Wilson: That is the deep silence prevailing there. (copied)

* * * *

Irving Holston went in a New York restaurant and ordered his breakfast. He had been sitting at the table a long time not eating when the waiter asked—

"Why don't you eat, Sir?"

Irvin—"I am waiting for this melon to get ripe."

* * * *

Mr. Jones (in Chemistry class) Chemistry originated in the time of the Egyptians.

Clarence: Oh no, that was way back in B. C., before chemistry.

* * * *

Miss Jones (in French class:) "Now follow the work on the board closely."

Irvin Holston: "Where is it going?"

IN FRENCH CLASS

One afternoon the Seniors assembled for French Class equipped with milkweed, laughter and ideas for tormenting Miss Jones.

Miss Jones: "Sit down and stop talking!"

Edward W. (unconsciously) "Charles what are you going to do tonight? Let's -----"

Miss Jones: "Edward! Do you ever hear anything? I just said stop talking. (Edward sighs and sits down.)"

Charles: Miss Jones! How do you fix this sentence?

Miss Jones: (sarcastically) "It seems to me that anyone with common intelligence would do better than that. I explained that very thing yesterday! Now pay attention! The participle agrees (Here Edward blows some milkweed into the air. Much blowing and laughing follows).

Miss Jones: "Edward Wilson! Will you behave! If you can't just get out! We don't need any babies in here! Such silly people I never saw!"

Herman: (in a grieved voice) Miss Jones! you told me this was right and you've marked it wrong!"

Miss Jones: "It serves you right for asking me about French in the middle of Latin class. Irvin, take the first paragraph of the translation."

Irvin: "The-er a boy descended the stair-----"

Miss Jones: "How many times have I told you that you do not translate descendre as descend? Say come down!"

Irvin (meekly) "The boy came down st----(here he is interrupted by a burst of laughter. Miss Jones looks up in time to see the culprit.

Miss Jones (going up to Edward) Edward Wilson if you interrupt this class another time, I'll take you by the collar and throw you out! Now Irvin if this class can act as ladies and gentlemen should, you may go on with the lesson.

Irvin "The doorbell rang and-and--the -----"

Charles: (interrupting) "Miss Jones do you think it is going to be clear tomorrow?"

Miss Jones: There you go! Thinking about everything on earth but French! You pay attention to this translation, young man, and stop worrying about the weather.

(Charles subsides and Irvin finishes the paragraph.

Miss Jones: (to Edward who is gazing dreamily out the window) "Edward, why does the past participle have e on it?" (This unlucky person starts and tries vainly to find the place in the book).

Miss Jones: "And then you come to me and say that you study but can't get French. You never pay attention in class that's why you never know anything. Well, fill in the blanks of these sentences. Hurry, you have only ten minutes! (A period of writing ensues.)

Miss Jones: (as the five-minute bell rings) "Hand in your papers!"

Edward: (scandalized at the idea) "Miss Jones! I haven't finished half of them!"

Miss Jones: "I never knew you to have your work finished, so hand it in anyway, you are the slowest mortal I ever saw!" Everyone stops talking! The assignment will be the theme which must be written in ink!"

Vera: "Miss Jones, I have to go to practice and-----"

Miss Jones: "Well practice or no practice that theme must be finished tomorrow and if any one leaves out a single word he will get E for the month!" (As the bell rings the class goes out in gloomy silence).
