

NAUGHTY PICTURE SHOWN IN VALLEJO

“September Morn” That Shocked Chicago in Local Window

“September Morn” a handsome reproduction of a bold young lady clad in nothing but golden locks and a golden smile, a picture that shocked the hard hearted Chicago police and resulted in court actions, has made its appearance in Vallejo. It is now on exhibition at Keithley’s Art Store, and blushing men and women are at liberty to gaze on something Chicago thought was more horrible than the stock yards.

Outside of the scarcity of apparel, it must be admitted that the painting is a dainty creation of a handsome young woman who looks as if she is either extremely demure or somewhat ashamed of herself. As they say in “Three Weeks” “To the pure all things are pure” then this picture is not absolutely naughty when compared to those of the immortal Venus de Milo, who was as devoid of clothes as she was of arms.

But why call it “September Morn?” Why not June, July or August?
