

Post Offices on the Move

Two post office buildings in the Schoodic area are about to get new identities. In top photo, the former South Gouldsboro post office has been enlarged, modernized, and painted. It is expected to open as a restaurant. Below, new owner William I. Kennedy of Winter Harbor, looks over the old East

Sullivan post office before its move from Route 1 to Kennedy's property where it will become a craft shop. The bulletin board in the long building displays a 1974 FBI wanted poster of Patty Hearst for bank robbery. It also contains a government ad for first class postage at 10 cents an ounce.
