FRIENDS of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua F. Bailey stole in upon them, wholly unawares, on Saturday evening last for the celebration of the twentieth anniversary of their marriage. They bore with them good gifts, consisting of a hanging-lamp and a copy of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, and holder for it, from friends here at home; five dollars from his brother, Conductor Thomas Bailey of Montpelier, and a linen tablecloth from his (the conductor's) daughter, also a gift of several dollars from Mr. Bailey's father and sister. About eighty persons were present. A merry evening was passed, music being a pleasing feature of the occasion.
