

usual on Monday, July 6,

EDWIN S. MEIGS had a narrow escape from drowning in Berlin Pond last Sunday. He was out in a boat with Waite Sabin, when by some mishap the boat was partially overturned and Meigs was thrown in the water. Before he could be towed to shallow water Meigs was seized with cramps and sank. He was finally rescued and after donning a dry suit of clothes furnished by C. P. Pitkin he was apparently as good as new.