

HOW ABOUT THIS

by Gary and Cris

Gary

We hear Dave E. Miller likes to roller skate pretty well—only he doesn't skate like most people. He doesn't stand up — or is it that he can't???

Charlotte Sommers, Carol Lotz, Norma Schloneger, Ruthanne Schumucker, Sarah Jane Bird, Luanne Krabill and Joan Lowry enjoyed a spaghetti supper in honor of Barb Brown's birthday. Mr. Moffett asked Fern Yoder, "What is a vacuum, Fern?" Fern plainly answered, "a sweeper."

Students—Did you know that Sinclair Lewis is Secretary of Commerce! Isn't that right Janie Wilson!!! It seems as though Janie got her English and American government slightly mixed up.

A notice to Janet Menegay—It seems as though a lot of the students think you should try out for the track team. Especially since you outran Warren Cain at the sophomore party.

Platter Parade

Elvis Presley, that seemingly magical name that sends teenage girls into "Rock and Roll relapses" is still making million-dollar records, but how long will it last?

Johnny Ray and Frank Sinatra were as much a teenage idol as Elvis, but both lost their popularity in a few years. Although Mr. Presley can still sell as many records as anyone else, can he keep up with his competitors?

His latest releases, "Jailhouse Rock", and "Treat Me Nice" are both slated for the top ten. From his very first hit record, "Heartbreak Hotel," to his latest, Elvis Presley seems to have rocked himself firmly into the position of "King of Rock and Roll."

Jimmy Rogers, once a talent scout on Arthur Godfrey's show, is on top this week with "Honeycomb." The next nine best selling platters in this local area are:

PENCIL PORTRAITS

by Nancy Lauer

While we are growing up, we pass many unusual stages and the most fascinating of all is the teenager.

A teenage girl hates wiggly creatures and it seems as though the teenage boy knows this, so when spring arrives and those "things" begin to blossom, girls, beware!

Your home is not complete unless you have a teenager. When the door bangs shut after school, Mom waits expectantly to hear, "Mom, when will supper be ready?" So mother fixes supper and even his favorite dish. But when everyone is in the midst of saying grace — "Wait, where's junior?"

When a teenager has a problem, only another teenager can help out. And once a teenager is determined about something, Mom, Dad, little Sis or even the Lord above couldn't make him change his mind.

When someone else has a difficult problem, leave it to a teenager to blurt out a funny remark, which most often turns out to be the solution to the whole problem.

When a teenage boy likes a teenage girl, more unusual things begin to be noticed. Such as a big, black shiner on one eye, Susie's picture on every mirror, the fast disappearance of the family jalopy on Saturday night, and Mom's method of removing pink-stuff from white shirts.

When a teenage boy sits with his teenage girl in church, Pop doesn't have to ask Junior why he lost the page in the hymn book or missed the Reverend's best sermon of the year.

A teenager is loved by all, not because he's Mom's little helper, Dad's buddy, the teacher's reason for grey hair, but most of all because he's a teenager.

Congratulations

by Nancy Lauer

This issue we would like to extend our congratulations to the football team. The game is being played respectfully, and each boy has football in his heart. As coach Morgan says, "We hope they keep it there."

Boys, you are doing fine, and we just want to say, "Keep up the good work."

Think Of Your Future

How long before you'll be out of school and on your own? How many years before you'll be earning your own living?

It all depends, of course, on how much more education you're going to get.

Have you any idea what you want to do for a living?

Maybe you just don't care. Maybe you'd rather not bother to think about that already. You're wrong if you think about it in that manner, because whatever you decide you'd like to do best for a living, chances are you'll be able to get what you want easier if you start preparing for it now.

Oh sure, you're just a junior or senior in high school. Why should you start to worry about going to college now? Because if more don't start early to plan your college career you might find yourself out in left field when the rest of the team is in the dugout.

Even though you might be a freshman, it is time for everyone to think about college entrance, so that you can pick your category of jobs. You can work on your subjects all through school, so when your time does come, you'll be right there in the game and be prepared for one more move in life.

Letters to the Editor

Dead Editor:

I am writing this letter not only for myself, but also for the many friends I've heard debating this same question in the halls. I am asking in brief, why we can not have cheer rallies for the away games.

In answering this question, Mr. Strausser stated that it is a question debatable with everyone, including the coach, the head cheerleader, and himself.

"I think the decision was made with many difficult factors in mind," said Mr. Strausser. "First and foremost is the fact that we have had so many cheer rallies in which the team and the student body failed to participate. Second, it is most difficult to get the entire high school into the gymnasium. Third, perhaps the fewer cheer rallies we have the better results in future cheer rallies. And fourth," Mr. Strausser says, "Louisville High School has more assemblies than other schools, with the result that many students come to feel that they are an obligation more than a privilege."

We hope this answers your question and that you are satisfied with the answer.

Freshmen Like School

Freshmen definitely like high school, according to a survey conducted recently by the SPOTLIGHT. The most commonly cited reasons are the opportunities for making new friends, for getting an education, and for participating in activities.

Some of the freshmen comments on "What I Like About High School" are given here:

Nancy Honaker—I don't mind the teachers, but the tests they give, Wow! Martha Hawkins—I like school; it's the work I hate.

Stephan Lain—The periods should be about 39 minutes shorter.

Dave Theiss—I think in high school, if you want to stay out of trouble, just say you're anything but a freshman.
