My dear Crawford Gordon,

It was very good of you and your colleagues to give up so much of your time to our visit last Thursday and to entertain us so hospitably both at luncheon and at your guest-house in the evening.

I am afraid I kept you all on the job much too late but every minute was of value from my standpoint, and I only wish our programme had allowed me to spend more time with you. Perhaps you would thank especially Floyd, Grinyer and Frost for the detailed briefings they gave us. Your new projects were of absorbing interest, and indeed, an inspiration as a measure of the contribution you are making to our mutual defence problems.

I hope we shall meet again next time you are in England.

With my renewed thanks and all good wishes,

Yours sincerely,

"John W. Baker"
