

RCAF airmen work on a CF-100 wing pod containing instruments which detect incoming missiles through the use of infra-red radiation (l. to r. on wing) LAC B. Robinson and Cpl. H. Johnston (l. to r. on ground) LAC J. Horvat and Cpl. L. D'Amour.

withstand the high "G" loading inherent in gun launching versus rock-

t,
is
y
is
"1-
th
al
se
ig
ie
ner
L.,
ve
ed
m-
by
re
08
14,
to

A Canadian-designed air-to-air guided missile, the Velvet Glove, is slung under the starboard wing of a CF-100 for test firing.

