

RAF Canberra bombers are coming to Canada. Eight aircraft, built in the U. K. by English Electric, will take part in exercises with the RCAF Air Defense Command, simulating attack on Canadian targets.

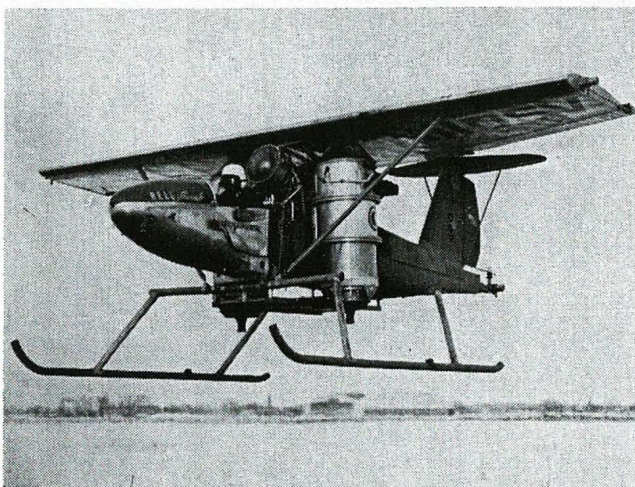

First of the RCAF Neptunes is scheduled for delivery this month. The versatile aircraft, built by Lockheed in the U. S., will be used for maritime reconnaissance.

Planes in the News

Avro CF-100 tests use of retractable parachute in landing: developing techniques to be used in the CF-105.

Bell's new VTO jet, above, rises vertically, then pivots jets 90 deg. to fly like a conventional fixed-wing aircraft. Another application of the same idea was revealed recently in the Bell Convertiplane (right) which has pivoting rotor-propellers.

