Dear Colleague

Modern technology makes it possible for us to share immediately in the experiences of others who may be many thousands of miles from us. We all watched, horrified, as Challenger blew up, and were deeply moved as the cameras recorded the pain and shock of those who were physically present.

As part of the human family we feel with you. As a School Community, engaged, in our own small way, in pushing back the frontiers of knowledge, we applauded Christa McAuliffe's participation in space exploration. We mourn her death but are unable adequately to express that. This School extends, across the great geographical distance between us, the hand of friendship, sympathy and understanding to your School. We make this gesture sincerely so that you will know that we share your grief and, with you, honour the memory of a brave teacher.

I and my Staff, and all the girls of this School assure you and all the members of your School that we pray for you. May God bless you and her family.

Yours sincerely
