

What's your nature story?

Everyone has a nature story, whether it comes from visiting a well-known natural space like Yosemite National Park or spotting a feisty squirrel or beautiful flower while out on a walk.

Take a close look at the objects here. You might notice that the photographs and documents show many seasons, activities, and landscapes, and give us a glimpse into different eras. Other objects relate to animals and wildflowers found in Yosemite and other parts of California.

Which object stands out to you? Do any of these objects remind you of a nature memory from your own life?
