My Dear Maryanna

we were very glad to hear by Mr Schuyler's letter that you got on so well to Hartford, the weather continued very pleasant till Saturday when we hope you reached home safely and found all well. we were surprised to hear by a letter from Hannah of the ill turn which she had when you was with us, she writes that she is much better since her diet has been chiefly milk that she felt so much better as to think of visiting us, no doubt Mr Lee has informed you of the recovery of your ungrateful servant, Mrs Greenleaf sent very soon after you left us to have you visit her, Hitty called and said her Mother would have come in the rain if she had a known you were a going so soon, Mrs Frothingham is a getting chawerly, they have persuaded her husband to go to Andover to board for his health, - your Myrtle has taken its station at the corner of the sitting room and is a noticed for its beauty, -

Novemberth 10

I feel delayed finishing my letter in hopes of receiving one from you, be assured I My dear Child you occupy much of my thoughts, I am often with you in imagination do write me every thing relative to your self and family, Thomas spent last Sunday with us he said that they had heard of your getting well to Plimbeck we should have gone to Boston before this, had not Hannah ^{repeatedly} wrote us that she was much better, we intend going very soon, your aunt Mary came to your Uncle's last evening by her we have a few lines from your Sister, she mentions being troubled with an ague, but says Mr Parsons has just called to ask them to husking on Thursday which is to morrow, she hopes if the weather is good to be able to go, the weather is very fine to day, and I hope will continue so,

My love to ^{your} ~~Loisa~~ and tell her that her Father has agreeable accounts from Daniel, and her Sisters, and other Brothers are well, desire to be remembered, Clementine's health is better, Sibyll is very well, Caroline is going to carry with Catharine whilst your aunt is here, they all desire to be remembered to you all. we have no letters from William since you were here, but are daily expecting some.
My love to Catharine, and the little boys, who I hope are all well, our regards to your worthy friend ~~Mr~~ ^{Mr} Sands, hope his health is better, we are favoured with good health, my journey was of great advantage to me, although separated from many of our earthly friends, what a privilege that we have an Almighty friend, who is not a far off.

I have just returned from seeing your aunt Hay, she told me that Thomas information was a mistake as to them having heard from Rhimbeck, that we were apprehensive something was the matter, am happy in finding a letter from you, and that you are relieved from the Complaint in your eyes, it is similar to what your Father had, your letter from Wilkes ^{in Europe} is later then any we have received, we have had small flights of snow repeated but very pleasant, after, don't give your self any anxiety as to what Cousin Hannah did for you I will take care of it, my paper is full and it is time to leave of, your Father unites with me in love and affection to Mr Jekyll and your self, adieu - J Sawyer

The following tribute is offered to the memory of Mrs Farnham, whose death was announced in our last

Strangers admired the dignity of her manners and the sweetness of her countenance; her acquaintance respected and honored her maternal character; but her friends, the chosen companions of her heart, alone knew her worth. They beheld her fortitude in suffering, her cheerfulness under the adverse scenes of life, and her constant endeavors to promote the happiness of those around her. They too witnessed her patience in sickness, her resignation to the divine will, her lively and animating faith in a Redeemer, her fervent devotion and her deep humility.
Her prayers were those of a penitent before the Throne of Grace - her hopes rose upon the promises of the Gospel, an affectionate husband mourns her departure - children yet too young to thier loss, weep in sympathy with thier elder brothers & Sisters - but her trust was in God; and he will never leave nor forsake those that put their trust in him,
