Mrs. Catharine Mathews, Noted Genealogist, Dies

In Addition to Writings on Favorite Subject She Painted Heraldic Devices

Mrs. Catharine T. R. Van Cortlandt Mathews, well known as a genealogist, daughter of the late Colonel Pierre Van Cortlandt and widow of the Rev. John Rutherford Mathews, of the United States Navy, died yesterday at her home in Ossining, N. Y.

Mrs. Mathews was born at Albany, May 2, 1838, but spent the major portion of her life at the Van Cortlandt Manor House at Croton-on-Hudson. She was married on June 9, 1873, and is survived by her two daughters, Miss Catherine Van Cortlandt Mathews and Mrs. William Mason.

From her early womanhood she was deeply interested in genealogical work and was the author of many authoritative articles on the subject. She rapidly attained rank as an expert, and her advice was sought by persons from all parts of the country.

Besides writing on genealogy, Mrs. Mathews painted heraldic devices with rare skill and beauty.

She also was devoted to charitable work and it was not until recently when she became too ill to conduct her own correspondence that the extent of her labors in this direction became known.

Plans for the funeral will be announced later.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Mrs. John Rutherford Mathews. Mrs. Catherine T. R. Van Cortlandt Mathews, daughter of the late Col. Pierre Van Cortlandt and widow of the Rev. John Rutherford Mathews of the United States Navy, died Saturday at the home of her daughters at 48 William street, in her 84th year.

Mrs. Mathews was one of the heirs of the historic Van Cortlandt Manor estate at Croton, and she passed the major portion of her life in the quiet, well-known manor house in the Albany Post Road, above the Croton River. Her father, Col. Pierre Van Cortlandt, who inherited the Croton estate, was born in 1816 and died in 1873. Mrs. Mathews was born in Albany in 1838, and in 1873 was married to Rev. J. R. Mathews of the United States Navy.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. William V. Mason, Jr., and Miss Catherine Van Cortlandt Mathews—who reside at 48 William street, this town, and who, as representatives of the eighth generation of Van Cortlandts in this country, are heirs to the land, who resides in the manor house which is prized by Westchester County as one of the county's oldest historical landmarks. She is also survived by a sister, Mrs. Anne S. VanCortlandt, who resides in the manor house at the banks of the Croton river.

From early womanhood Mrs. Mathews was deeply interested in genealogical work, and was the author of many authoritative articles on the subject. She rapidly attained rank as an expert, and her advice was sought by persons from all parts of the country. Besides writing on genealogy, Mrs. Mathews painted heraldic devices with rare skill and beauty.

She also was extremely devoted to charitable work, and it was not until she became too ill to conduct her own correspondence that the extent of her labors in charitable work became known.

Mrs. Mathews preserved in the old manor house many old relics of the early Van Cortlandts, some of which run back to the days of Olof Van Cortlandt, founder of the family in New York in the middle of the seventeenth century.

She was one of the founders of Trinity Church of this town and, it is believed, the last living founder of this church. Her interest in Trinity Church was always very great.

Chief of her characteristics was her interesting conversation, her graciousness, her hospitality—and, especially, her great popularity with the young people, with whom she was always companionable. While of late years she had resided much in New York and Philadelphia, her interests had always centered in Westchester County and at the Van Cortlandt Manor, which was her home for the greater part of her life.

The funeral was held from Trinity Church Monday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock, and was conducted by Rev. Gibson W. Harris. A large choir sang during the service, with music on the organ by William Henry Rowe. Never was a more beautiful collection of flowers seen in Ossining than the floral remembrances on that day. The funeral was attended by many of her near relatives, including Augustus Van Cortlandt, Augustus Van Cortlandt, Jr., Major Montgomery Schuyler, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Schuyler, Mrs. Virginia Tribune Van de Water, Mrs. Christine Terhune Herrick, Mrs. Benjamin B. Church and Fanning C. T. Beck.

The interment was made in the Van Cortlandt plot at Hillside Cemetery, Peckskill.

 Mrs. Catharine T. R. Mathews
 widow of the late John Rutherford Mathews, of the United States Navy, and daughter of the late Colonel Pierre Van Cortlandt of this township, died at Oyster Bay, N. Y., on Saturday morning, February 10th, in her 82nd year. Funeral services were held on Monday at Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church, Oyster Bay, and remains were interred in the Van Cortlandt family plot in Hillside cemetery, Peekskill.

She was born at the home of her maternal grandparents at Albany, N. Y., May 2, 1833, being the eldest of the seven children of Colonel Pierre Van Cortlandt. On June 5, 1852, she married the Rev. John Rutherford Mathews, who died December 27, 1899, at Oyster Bay. They had three children: Philip Van Cortlandt Mathews, who died at Oyster Bay, July 2, 1887; Catharine Van Cortlandt Mathews, who died at Oyster Bay, July 2, 1887; and Isabelle Rutherford Mathews, who died at Oyster Bay, July 2, 1887.

The deceased had a noble line of ancestry of which she was justly proud. On the paternal side she was a direct descendant of the founder of the family of that name.

OBITUARY.

He represented the Manor in the Colonial Assembly. In 1775-6 he was a member of the Second Provincial Congress and in January and February, chairman of the Committee of Safety. He was a member of the Third and Fourth Provincial Congresses and President of the latter body; the Convention of the Representatives of the State of New York, 1776, 7, and its Vice President; the first Council of Safety, 1777, and its President; a Senator of the first State Senate, 1777, and President of that body; President of the Convention of the State of New York, which framed the first Constitution of the State, and the first Lieutenant Governor of the State, which office he held uninterruptedly for seventeen years, from 1777 to 1794, presiding over all State Senates, an ex-officio President thereof, for that period, and declining re-election.

From early in 1776 until June 1778, he was Colonel of the Third Regiment, Westchester County Militia, when he resigned and was succeeded by Colonel Samuel Drake, of the Manor of Cortlandt.

Governor Van Cortlandt, as he was generally called, was of large stature, well developed commanding presence, with a massive well balanced head, and in appearance bore a strong resemblance to Benjamin Franklin. He was a great good noble and venerable man. To his country, fellow-men and family he devoted his long and active life. Early in the great struggle he refused England's munificent offers tendered personally by Governor Tryon, and gave himself, his fortune, his all, to liberty's cause, and even in the darkest hours his courage never faltered and his industry never failed.

Of Major General Pierre Van Cortlandt, second son of Lieutenant Governor Van Cortlandt, born at Cortlandt Manor, August 29, 1762, died there July 12, 1846.

He studied law in the office of Alexander Hamilton, New York City, was a Presidential elector for Thomas Jefferson in 1800, and for General Benjamin Harrison in 1840, and a candidate on the defeated Henry Clay ticket in 1844. In 1811 and 1812, was a member of Congress and for many years a Major General in the New York State Militia. He was one of the founders of the Westchester County Bank at Peekskill, and its President from 1822 until his death, and for many years a Warden of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Peekskill. Under his father's will he inherited the Manor House. He married (1) Catharine, daughter of Vice President George Clinton, who died January 10, 1811, without issue. He married (2) May 10, 1812, Anne, daughter of John Stevenson of Albany, N. Y., who died March 29, 1821.

Of Colonel Pierre Van Cortlandt, only child of Major General Pierre Van Cortlandt, born April 25, 1815, at Manor House, and died same place July 11, 1854. He was a Colonel in the New York State Militia. His father gave to him the Manor House.

Mrs. Catharine T. R. Mathews

Mrs. Catharine T. R. Mathews, widow of Rev. John Rutherford Mathews, of the United States Navy, and daughter of the late Colonel Pierre Van Cortlandt of this township, died at Ossining, where she has resided since April last, on Saturday morning, February 19th, in her 83rd year. Funeral services were held on Monday at Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church, Ossining, and remains were interred in the Van Cortlandt family plot in Hillside cemetery, Peekskill.

She was born at the home of her maternal grandparents at Albany, N. Y., May 2, 1838, being the eldest of the seven children of Colonel Pierre Van Cortlandt. On June 5, 1873, she married the Rev. John Rutherford Mathews, who died December 27, 1898, at Croton. They had issue Philip Van Cortlandt Mathews, who died at Croton, July 2, 1887; Catherine Van Cortlandt, and Isabel Rutherford, wife of William Mason. Both of the daughters reside at Ossining.

The deceased had a noble line of ancestry of which she was justly proud. On the paternal side she was a lineal descendant.

Of Oloff Stevensen Van Cortlandt, the founder of the family of that surname in America, a native of Holland, who, with his wife, Annetje Lockermans, of Belgium, came to New Amsterdam with Director General William Kieft of the West India Company, in March 1633. Mr. Van Cortlandt became a merchant and was also from the time of his arrival to his death, April 4, 1684, almost constantly in public service, both civil and military. Among the many offices held by him were Colonel of the Burgher Guard, Burgmaster (Mayor) and Treasurer of New Amsterdam.

Of Stevenson Van Cortlandt, the oldest of the two sons of Oloff, born in New Amsterdam, May 7, 1643; married Gertruyd Schuyler; died November 25, 1700. He was one of the most eminent men of his time in New York, and served at one time or another in almost every prominent office in the province, except the governorship. In Appleton's Cyclopedia of American Biography, vi. 236, it is said, "Van Cortlandt's career was perhaps the most brilliant and varied in the fifty seven years it occupied, of any inhabitant of the seventeenth century." He was Colonel of militia, judge of the Court of Assize, the first native born Mayor of New York to which office he was re-chosen several times, the First Judge of the Admiralty, Associate Judge of the Colonial Court, Commissioner of the Revenue, Deputy Auditor General of the King in New York, Justice of the Supreme Court, Keeper of the Great Seal of the province during the governor's absence, Receiver General and Collector, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and was serving as such at the time of his death. As a member of the Governor's council he was present at all the treaties and conferences with the Indians, and was noted for his influence with the latter. It is further said in Appleton's Cyclopedia of American Biography, vi. 236, "Equally esteemed and confided in by the governments of James as duke and king, and by William and Mary, in the troublous times in which he lived, and sustained by all the governors even, as in Bellemont's case they did not like him personally, no greater proof could be adduced of his ability, skill and integrity." About 1677, Colonel Van Cortlandt purchased from the Indians and others, several tracts of land which was erected into the Manor of Cortlandt by patent of William III. June 17, 1697, of which he was the first and only Lord. The Manor included the present towns of Cortlandt (excepting the Rikes Patent), Yorktown, Somers, North Salem, and a part of Lewisboro and containing over 80,000 acres. After his death the Manor was divided in 1734, into ten front or river lots, ten north lots and ten south lots, each of his ten children or their representative in division taking one front or river lot and one north and south lot.

Of Philip Van Cortlandt, third son of Colonel Stephanus Van Cortlandt, by his wife Gertrude Schuyler, born August 9, 1683, died August 21, 1746.

He was a merchant of New York and, like his father and grandfather, took an active part in public affairs. From 1830 until his death he was a member of the Governor's council; in 1740 he was a Commissioner, on the part of New York, in the case of Connecticut against the Mohegan Indians, and he was Colonel of New York militia. He owned "Lot No. 1" of the Manor of Cortlandt, on which the Manor House at Croton was built in part about 1681. He married December 10, 1710, Catherine, daughter of Colonel Abraham De Peyster.

Of General Pierre Van Cortlandt, son of Colonel Philip Van Cortlandt, born at Cortlandt Manor, January 10, 1721, died May 1, 1814.

He was an ardent patriot, making unusual sacrifices for his country during the War of the Revolution. He was the leader on the American side in the Manor of Cortlandt. For many years he was Supervisor of the Manor of Cortlandt; from 1768 to April 1775.

"Loved are the pots in heart, for they

Mr. William V. Mason died at the home of Mrs. Eva Mason, near Gainesville on Sunday last. Mr. Mason was born at "Melbourne" farm near Gainesville for many years, the home of the Mason family. When entering manhood he became identified with business interests in Philadelphia and New York, which he continued until several years ago, when his health became impaired and he returned to his boyhood home, hoping to recuperate in the healthful climate of Prince William county. His courage in trying to combat the disease which had undermined his health was remarkable and his cheerfulness was an inspiration. At the close of a quiet peaceful day, his remains were interred in the churchyard of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Haymarket. Many and beautiful vari-colored flowers, loves last token, mark his resting place. Besides his parents, Mr. Mason is survived by a widow and two small children, a sister, Mrs. J. M. Piercy, of Gainesville, and a brother, Mr. Maynardier Mason, of Boston. Among those who attended the funeral were Misses Bella Price and Beaula Barksdale, from Washington, Mr. Brayton Maude, of The Plains and Colonel Mann, of New York.

TIME FOR TEA AND BENEFIT ARRANGEMENTS

There's nothing like discussing committee plans over a cup of tea. Miss Jean Mason (left) and Miss Peggy Porter sipped tea and arranged plans at a recent meeting of the Junior Guild of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, which gathered in the interests of the forthcoming supper dance, to be given by the Guild at the Park Lane on April 15. Miss Porter was one of the debutantes of the past season. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fitz John Porter of this city. Miss Mason made her debut several seasons ago. Photo by Black, New York American.

OFFICE MEMORANDUM
J. WALTER THOMPSON COMPANY

June 9, 1949

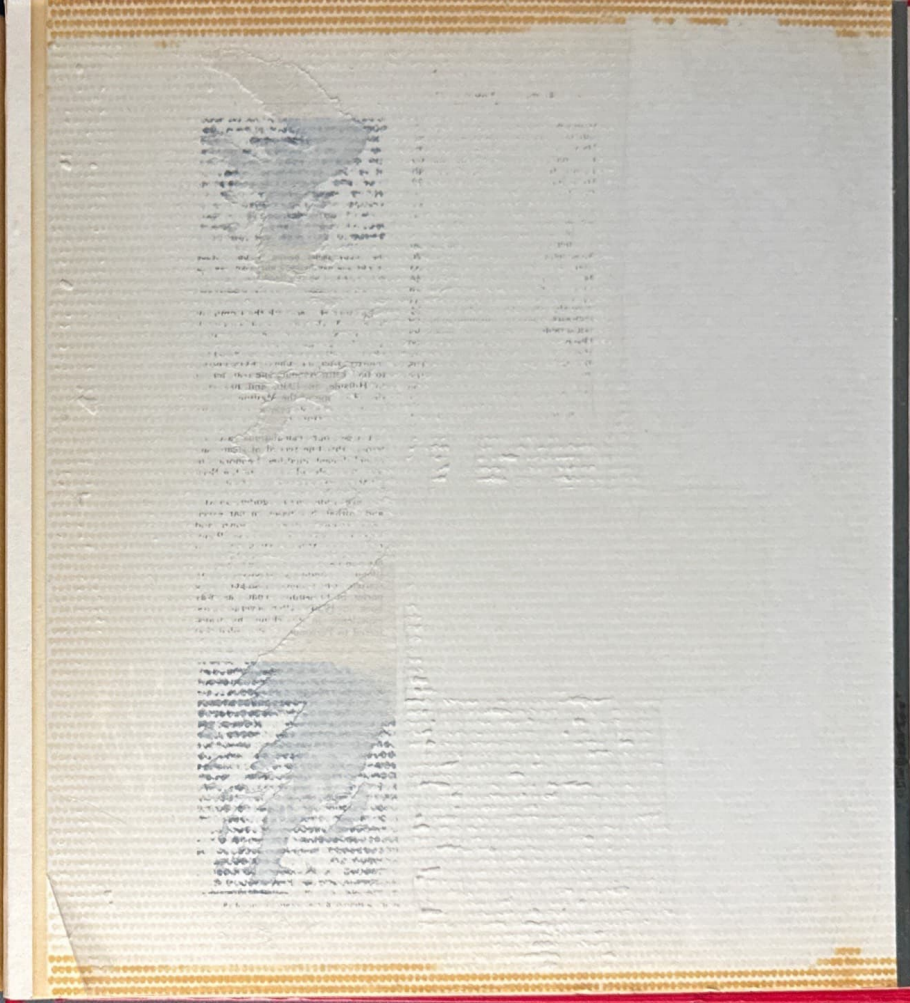

NOTICE

Owing to the ever increasing amount of work in connection with Personnel, we are arranging for Miss Fergus to spend full time on Personnel and relieving her of all work in relation to office maintenance. This phase will be taken care of by Jean Mason, who has been Mr. Morse's secretary for the past three years.

Therefore, effective immediately, all questions pertaining to maintenance or repair work should be referred to Miss Mason. This includes office furniture and equipment, floor coverings, painting, lighting and telephones.

Miss Mason is located on the eleventh floor, right wing, and can be reached on Extension 515.
