

Ston Pierre

I wrote last to your Sister wherein I mentioned of the death of the widow Mary Arding since which Mr Brothersons Overseer has been here to the mill he told me last Evening that Mr Plank and the family were at Brothersons that they all left the house as soon as they hear that Mary was dead She died Tuesday after noon they got Kensels that Livers by the gate to make the Coffin and Mr Taylor with the assistance of Arie Michael and some other Negro carried her the same day, I have not heard any thing farther since,

I have just now wrote to Mr Beach to let me know about your Carriage where it was; and that I would send for it Even should it be at New York (I dont suppose it is as yet finished,) And that I would ^{send} the pay for it. That I expected his answer by the first opportunity by the Mail

If I hear nothing from him soon or from J.W. M. I purpose to send Ishmael or some one else with the horses and Carriage (which John Spoke has suspected) sometime the next week Perhaps on Thursday next or should it be cool weather it may be sooner, Your Mother and I intend to go to Crotons as soon as it will suit us, The tides here run high shall cut the Salt grass to morrow. Old Tom is but poorly Sarah is here, Stephen is come home Nancy its like is with her Parents. Doc Post is gone to Long Island Unwell, your brother is to be here on Sunday, he has nearly finished his Road, your Sister Catherine went to the plains, Mr Garrison are expected here this day for their way home, the steamer servants for New York all the Market Vessels are loaded with people from the City It is a melancholly time there now, Capt Cook is not to go again, Says from 14 to twenty die daily. We hope this may find you and all friends enjoying health and happiness With our Respects to them all Am yours Loving Father

Tuesday -
Aug: 19 - 1803

Barrett in Portland

14 D

The Court shall, in all cases, be bound to follow the law, and to give judgment according to the same, and to do justice between the parties, and to give judgment according to the merits of the cause, and to give judgment according to the equity of the cause, and to give judgment according to the conscience of the Court, and to give judgment according to the law, and to give judgment according to the merits of the cause, and to give judgment according to the equity of the cause, and to give judgment according to the conscience of the Court, and to give judgment according to the law, and to give judgment according to the merits of the cause, and to give judgment according to the equity of the cause, and to give judgment according to the conscience of the Court, and to give judgment according to the law, and to give judgment according to the merits of the cause,

1. The first is the General of the whole
 2. The second is the Particular of the whole
 3. The third is the Particular of the whole
 4. The fourth is the Particular of the whole
 5. The fifth is the Particular of the whole
 6. The sixth is the Particular of the whole
 7. The seventh is the Particular of the whole
 8. The eighth is the Particular of the whole
 9. The ninth is the Particular of the whole
 10. The tenth is the Particular of the whole

The first of these is the fact that the world is not a uniform whole. It is made up of many different parts, each with its own characteristics. These differences are not only in the physical world, but also in the human world.
 The people of different countries have different customs, languages, and ways of life. These differences are not only a source of richness and variety, but also a source of conflict and misunderstanding. It is one of the main tasks of the modern world to understand these differences and to find ways of living together in peace and harmony.

15. 11. 1873

11

Handwritten text: Handwritten text, possibly a signature or name, written in cursive script.

— 45 —

New York
1813

?

By the same?

Pack Hill
Aug 20

12

Col: Pierre Van Cortlandt

By Mail

Albany