Miss Jean Mason,

Ossining,
New York.

Dear Cousin:

Thank you for writing as you did, about the needless killing of our good little collie chum, Sunnybank Jean.
She had been a loved comrade of ours for many years.

Dogs die too soon, as a rule, in the natural course of life; without careless motorists shortening their days still further and causing them to die in torment.

Jean was coming forward, according to her hospitable custom, to welcome the uninvited visitors, when their car struck and destroyed her.

Thank you once more for your words of sympathy;
which meant much to me.

Sincerely,

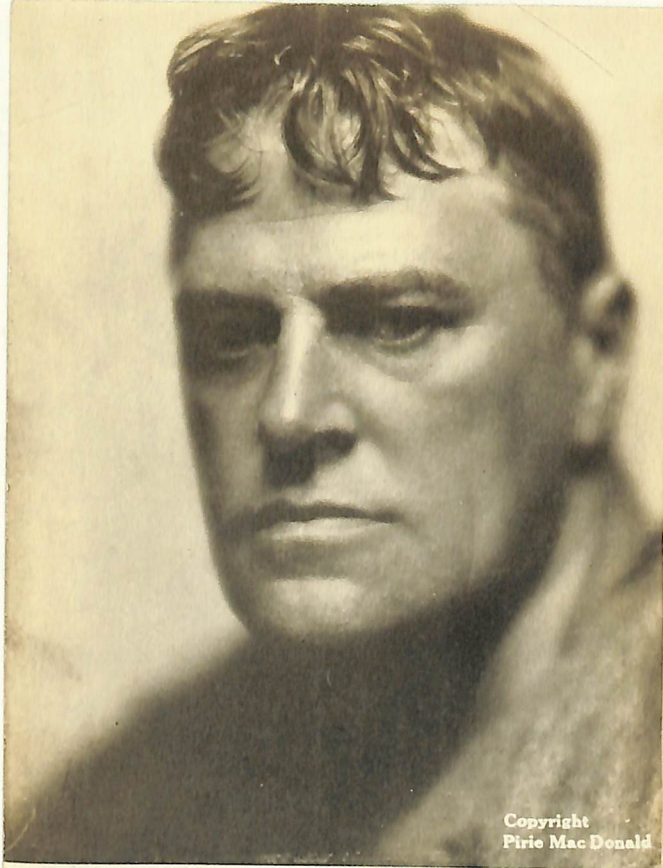

Albert Payson Terhune
