

The Ridge

Dover Plains, N.Y.

July 19, 1872.

My Dear Mr. Browne:

I am happy in being able to supply all but 2 (19, 29) of your missing members of the Field Book of the Revolution. I send them by express to-day, and beg you to accept them as a slight return for your many favors.

These members are as scarce, almost, as the Sybeline leaves. A bird has been watching for years, for odd members to make a set perfect. I had a few duplicates after the fire of 1853, and these I have used in supplying friends. It is really strange that I should have had so many that you needed.

I shall be greatly obliged to you for a copy of yr. Grandfather's notes of Complanter & Speech, for publication in the Record

Excuse haste, as I have been absent from home and find a pile of letters to answer.

As ever.

Your sincere friend

Benjamin J. Lossing
