

you still love me - Tell your mother for me. I receive your affec-tioned F. Colburn

Tuesday 21st April.

Do not fear, my dear little Em: that I shall find your letters stupid. I shall be very glad to read as many more as you will write me. Those have received have given me great pleasure, and, I hope, ^{to} the rest, your mother will add a postscript. Papa tells me you are given very tall.

I send you two useful books by this opportunity, and if I had not feared they would not fit you, as you have given so much, I should have had them made. Many times will the poem better, I dare say.
Elizabeth Faber spent a day here not long ago. Both looking very well & happy. We are in a great bustle in this house, for we move in a week to Purser Street, and your ~~little~~ I shall have been there for a fortnight with the two rooms in order, and David and I shall certainly follow Saturday or Sunday with the rest of the furniture. Joe is in good health.

I send her love to you & Clara.
Though she ^(Miss Clara) ~~was~~ not so late enough to think of her when you wrote. Good bye, my dear little friend. I am glad to find

Hand

Miss Emma Nicholas.
