Inasmuch as it had been represented that the late Midshipman Spencer was a mere thoughtless & heedless boy, incapable from his youth & character of planning such a conspiracy, as that alleged to have been formed recently on board of the U. S. Brig Somers, it can be shown by ^{the} satisfactory testimony of those who were associated with him at College for more than two years [1838. 1839. 1840] that he was universally considered as totally devoid of moral principle: that in denoting evil he exhibited an extraordinary degree of ingenuity & precocity: that he has known very frequently to participate up- on the glories of piratical exploits & deliberately declared his purpose of ultimately be- coming a pirate.
