

Dear Sir. —

I have risen from a Sleepless Bed, with a mind too distracted to write to you. — Whilst my memory still serves to mention to you, certain Circumstances relative to my Accounts with the United States, and the Situation of my Family ^{as far as I am} — How long this will be the Case God only knows! — he is a better Judge of what I am than clean, and at his Tribunal only I expect ~~justice~~ Justice — The Sympathy which Mr. Morris informs me you feel for me and mine affords me Consolation in the Depth of my Misery — My Affection for yourself, and my Sensibility for whatever interested your happiness has been ever sincere — and I have felt with Pain any Appearance of your withdrawing from me — What Impressions ~~have~~ been made on your Mind I know not — which my Reason maintains its Ascendancy, I wish to remove ~~the~~ them — and for this Purpose I request the Guard of our ancient Friendship that you will see me as soon as possible —

I am, Dear Sir,

Mrs. Hamilton Esq.

New York. Aug. 16. 1798.

Your Affectionate Friend
