The Moorish Drum

Sung by

MISS SHERIFF.

In the Musical Romance of

The Moorish Captive.

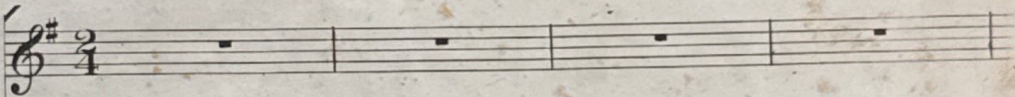

Written by

Washington Irving Esq.

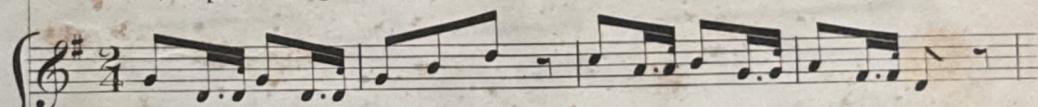

COMPOSED BY

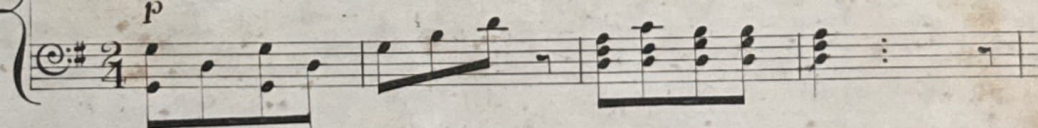

GEORGE PERRY.

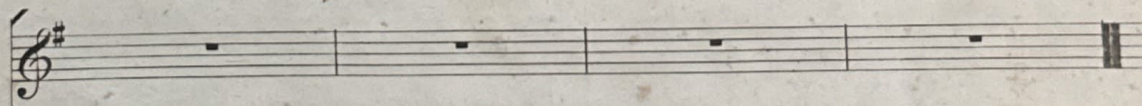

NEW YORK Published by HEWITT & JAKES 239 Broadway. [Ret. 1839-4 (only)]

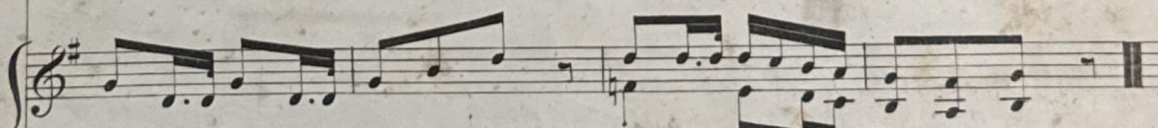

VOICE.

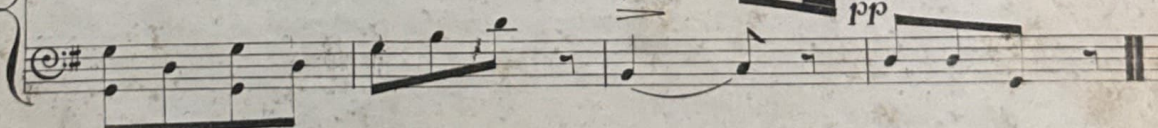

Andante poco Allegretto.

PIANO

FORTE.

See from the heights the silken flag Of the Moorish band is streamling And the p

last faint ray of the evening sun, On the Moorish lance is beamling

Hark hark the notes of the Moorish drum From the distant hills are soundling To many a heart their echoes come In the voice of gladness bounding.

Hark 'tis their tramp they come they come, Welcome the notes of the Moorish drum.

Wel come the notes of the Moorish drum. Wel come the notes of the Moorish drum.

First in the ranks of the Moorish band,
 Now over the hills advancing;
 My Selim comes in whose warrior hand,
 The sword he has won is glancing,
 Soon he will rest in the happy home,
 Where bright smiles ever greet him;
 See o'er the hills they come they come,
 And I in joy shall meet him.
 I know 'tis their tramp they come, they come,
 Welcome the notes of the Moorish drum.
