Unpublished Letters of W. L.
The following unpublished letters of Washington Irving have been obtained from a Grandmother of Matilda Hoffmanns, who lives in St Paul. She writes that these letters came into her possession upon the death of her Mother thirty eight years ago, & that she had no knowledge of their ever being published. The personal incident related is a family tradition & have come to her through her Mother & her Mother's Sister who was the Granddaughter referred to.

Since Nahidas death, but it was well understood in the family that her name must not be mentioned in his presence.

A Grand daughter of the Judges & a namesake of Nahidas, was at this time paying a visit. She being a musician & the old Piano having been disposed of, Judge Hoffmann rented one during her stay, but through some mistake no note came with it. The mistake was not discovered until the following day after Erving had arrived for his Sunday visit. He was standing before the front of the grate in the Drawing Room, the Judge addressing his Grand daughter Laid, "Matilda please give us some music, Washington will enjoy it." She turned to the Piano to comply with her Grandfather's request & there she noticed that there was no stool, She said Grandfather where is the stool? the discovery was then made that none had come with the instrument
