

Dear Irving

Camden May 27th 1835.

I am without a line from you for a long time, and of late, have not heard a word from any quarter, affording any explanation of your Silence; I am certainly unconcerned if having given any reason for a Suspension of the Correspondence which has subsisted between us, and been supported on my part with a degree of Regularity.

The Comptroller has returned some $1.67, as overpaid the Washerman, which is all owing for two months subsequent to your departure, at the rate of $50. per Annum.

Had I not better send to your friends in New York the Cinnabar Boxes of Tea, belonging to you? There are only 2 or four altogether.

Some time since you informed me, that it was your intention to draw for the Balance of your account. And I have been waiting your money in daily expectation of the draft.

Specimens you will have received by the Panama the latest news from Home. Political & Commercial and I can add nothing on this head - Mr. P.

has now arrived, but the letters are not delivered.

I beg to assure you of my continued good wishes for your welfare,

and that I remain
Sincerely, Your friend

A. A. Low
