Deposition of John Frankfort Aged About Seventy four years says he was borne on the manner of Philipsburgh, and is well acquainted with Hightawank that the Indians as long as he can remember called Tellers point Hightawank point and the water from the point across to the South Side was called Hightawank and Hightawank Bought or Bay that the English people now call the River Crotons but the Old people still call the Bay and River Hightawank

William Davis Esq. says he is about 56 years of age that he was borne at Philipsburg that he often heard the people about there call the water between Tellers point and the sand Beach where the planters began to run their two miles Hightawank Cove and that the Cove was called Hightawank all the way up as also the River was called Hightawank now Crotons River

John Armstrong of North Castel Says he has lived Near the Bound Between Greenwich and Stamford About twenty one years that there is a heap of stones ^{where Coll^d Clinton Run from with the line} in a Lane ~~he~~ he understood was the bound Between Stamford & Greenwich that latterly within Seven or eight years there was a Controversy between the two towns about their bound, and that M^r. Webb the Surveyor Run the line to the westward of said Heap of Stones About ten Chains a little to the westward of a School House but that there is no monument nor mark that he knows of at the End of M^r. Webb's Line but that the heap of Stones ^{at} was the Reported Bound Between Stamford & Greenwich
