My dear Cousin

I do not mean to trouble you with more letters. I have nothing since I wrote last from you.

I trust you did not misunderstand my mentioning my desire to buy one of the American 'Cadillac' Autos - The W.S. is now disposing of.

I thought you might hear of one. And as to imparting to you my thoughts on the position of Americans living in France for some time - before the modern view, (which I fear is unjust, if not cruel -) it was merely for the satisfaction of a Chat with you, & nothing more.

I hope that also was not misunderstood by you, & will be equally forbidden.

Had you been here we would very likely have talked it over. My wife asks me

If I have heard from you & if we may hope to see you in Aix before long, to which I can only answer, "Nothing since your two two charming letters, which gave us that hope."

We have such moderate weather that everything is backward here, but the glads rises & we expect a change soon.

We are busy getting settled in already the simple life at home by contrast with hotel life.

Eve delights in her gardens & plantations in which she sows & sows w. the efficient 'aides-de-camp' of our Retinue.

This is already

Much longer than I intended it to be, so please pardon it.

Believe me

Your affl. cousin
