

Saturday
Morning

My dear Anna.

I returned home last evening, after having been absent since Sunday. And Ann & Mary told me, that you had written me a note, which the post sent back to you.
By its being written in pencil I am afraid that it was something of consequence, & I beg you to write me another note this morning and let me know all about you & it. Write it as soon as you get this & send it to Dr. King's 91 Spring Street, and I will get it this morning.
I intended to have stopped to see you yesterday, but we were in such a violent storm, that we could not do it. I will be in town on Monday morning, and will come to see you right off. Good bye yours truly, Mar.

Mr. R. S. Moberg
Houston Street.
