Child Welfare Study Is Made

Physical Requirements For Health Include Hygienic Care, Training, Treatment For Defects.

"The child of today is the citizen of tomorrow." Accepting that statement, parents also realize that the child has certain fundamental rights based on what is needed for his development. These rights come under seven major heads, students learn in child development classes in the home economics department of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

A good heredity is said to be the first essential; the child is dependent upon his parents for the kind of body and mind he is born with. Physical requirements for health include hygienic care and training, or cleanliness; protection from disease, and treatment for defects that may be overcome with medical aid. Happy home relationships, and the inspiration coming from books, music and art make for mental health. One thing especially stressed throughout the 4-year home economics course is the maintenance of a normal home life. This includes a reasonable income, that the wife and mother should have command of the house-keeping skills, and that both parents, working together, furnish a home that is worthwhile.

Education, opportunity for play and companionship freedom from child labor in the illegal or harmful sense, and the security which comes from love and which gives freedom for fullest development, are other points of study.

The extremely low divorce rate among members of Phi Upsilon Omicron national honorary home economics fraternity, shows that there is something to the idea of "looking before you leap." That is, a broad basis of preparation for marriage and home-making will tell eventually in the home life of the nation.

That beets should be cooked with their skins on to retain color and flavor? It improves the taste to add a little vinegar also sugar, when served.

THERE'S A LILAC

There's a lilac somewhere waiting for the kiss of April sun, There's a lily of the valley that was long ago begun; There's a violet in the hollow and upon the lovely hill The pines are waving, waving, and I dream of a daffodil.

The days are getting longer and the nights are sweet with stars. The winds are not so bitter, and the waves upon the bars Roll a music that is sounding in its echoes evermore From the rosy coves of beauty round and round the rosy shore.

It is not far to robins and to butterfiles and dreams. When the ice begins to soften on the meadows and the streams; It is not far to clover and to pastures bright and green And with all the cold and bluster, there is beauty in between.
