

Air Stewardess Needs Many Things

Must Be Registered Nurse, Healthy, Comely, Of Limited Weight And Age.

Selected from 3,000 candidates at the Biennial Convention of the American Nurses' Association in Los Angeles, Helen D. Clark of New York City is United Air Lines' newest air stewardess. Miss Clark received her nursing training at St. Mary's Hospital, Tucson, Arizona, and was engaged in general and private duty nursing in Tucson up to the time of the convention.

Requirements for a position as air stewardess on United Air Lines include that the candidate be a graduate registered nurse. This qualification is imposed, not because it is necessary to attend to ill passengers, as only two per cent of passengers are susceptible to air sickness, but the discipline in the training of a registered nurse and her ability to deal with all types of people are responsible for nurses being employed.

Other requirements for the position as air stewardess specify an age limit between twenty-one and twenty-five years, maximum height of five feet four inches, and maximum weight of 120 pounds. In addition air hostesses must be comely in appearance, must have good personality, and good education.

Miss Clark is now flying approximately 2,000 miles a week in regular duty. There are 150 other stewardesses on United Air Lines, the first of whom was employed in the Chicago-San Francisco division of the company's coast-to-coast route in May, 1930.

Five Million Bid for Hawaii
Records show that a New York business man at one time tried to purchase the Hawaiian island for $5,000,000. This was in 1853, 45 years before the islands became part of the United States. The records consist of the handwritten minutes of a meeting of the cabinet presided over by King Kamehameha on August 24, 1853. The name of the bidder is not revealed.

Town Named for Angels
Puebla de Los Angeles, or Town of the Angels, Mexico, a city of 115,000, was so named, according to legend, because when the Indians were unable to hoist the heavy bells to the towers of the cathedral the angels did the work for them.

HEROES OF AMERICAN HISTORY

THE PATHFINDER OF THE ROCKIES

CHRISTOPHER KIT CARSON

"Kit" Carson started life as an apprentice to a saddle maker, but soon tired of this unexciting occupation and joined a party of hunters bound for California. He spent years exploring the Rocky Mountain trails, and became famous as a guide and pioneer.

Carson married an Indian girl. When his little daughter was old enough, he went east to St. Louis to put her in school. Here he met John C. Fremont, who was organizing a company to explore the West. Carson's fame as an Indian fighter had preceded him and Fremont invited him to join the company. This was the beginning of a life-long friendship between the two frontiersmen.

In 1853, Carson was appointed Indian Agent for New Mexico and except for a brief period during the Civil War when he attained the rank of Brigadier-General, he held this position for the rest of his life. He prevented many Indian uprisings and was the founder of the reservations on which the Indians now live.

Unique Among Capitals.

Washington is unique among the capitals of the world because it was planned with the express purpose of being made so. Soon after the war for Independence the necessity for a permanent seat of government was felt. In 1791 a site on the banks of the Potomac was chosen. The tract of land was first called Territory of Columbia which later became the District of Columbia.
