Editor The Herald:

Several names are being mentioned in connection with coming Democratic nominations in the 7th Congressional District.

It is stated that the present Representative Hon. Virgil Chapman will be a candidate to succeed himself. Some of his close friends concede he will likely have the race of his life to win this year. They admit the powerful organization they have stood squarely behind in the past has been badly shattered in the past year and his lieutenants are not a little worried with the outlook for his re-election. To add to his troubles several other men of prominence are being mentioned as possible starters for the coveted nomination which in this district means election.

Among the most prominent talked-of entries is Judge L. Boone Hamilton, County Judge of Franklin County, who has met every expectation of his friends and whose splendid administration of the County's affairs has been the cause of much anguish on the part of those who opposed him. Judge Hamilton represented Franklin county six years in the Legislature from 1912 to 1918. When the United States declared war on the allied central powers of Europe Judge Hamilton volunteered to serve his county in her time of need. Judge Hamilton was elected County Judge in 1933. In this position he has filled with satisfaction to the people who gave him their warm support, and should he enter this Congressional contest he will have their united support and they will spare no pains to nominate him.

Among other prominent gentlemen whose names are heard are Hon. Joseph E. Robinson, who is now representing so ably the splendid county of Garrard. Many of this splendid gentleman's friends realize he is carrying a heavy load looking after his varied and large interests, he being the largest land owner in his county. He is the most influential lawyer with the largest practice in the county. He also owns The Lancaster paper and other businesses that they feel would leave him only a limited amount of time to look after the varied interests of the people of his district.

Other names of gentlemen have been mentioned who likely have little inclination to enter the contest. Time will soon settle this question with them.

I nearly forgot to mention the fact that Judge Hamilton is a brother of Federal Judge Elwood Hamilton, whose great decision upheld the Guffy Coal Act regulating the Soft Coal industry.

May the best man win.
Sincerely yours,
Thos. P. Reed.

WELL KNOWN NEGRO MAN
DIES SUDDENLY IN DETROIT

Sue Allen has received news of the sudden death from heart trouble of her son-in-law, Oscar Holmes, in Detroit, about 10 o'clock on the night of March 31. He is survived by his wife, Mamie Harris Holmes, formerly of Harrodsburg, a father and sister at Steubenville, Pa., where he was taken for burial after the funeral in Detroit.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

One of the applicants for an old age pension in Missouri is a man who has 223 descendants, mostly grandchildren who have not contended for the privilege of looking after grandpa in his old age. In one country a mother 91 and her daughter 71 are on the same list.—Hopkinsville News Era.

Dependence of Senses
There may be some relation between the various senses, and in childhood such senses as touch and sight are usually developed together. They can be developed separately, as in the case of a blind person. The popular idea that blind persons acquire an increased acuteness in their other senses in compensation for the loss of their sight, is refuted in Ackermann's "Popular Fallacies." For a person who is both blind and deaf to develop the other senses is a most difficult task, as there is no natural compensation of this kind.

Most Primitive People

The natives of Tasmania, even up to the time of their complete extinction in 1876, were considered to be the most primitive people ever encountered in historic times, writes Herbert Hilmer, Cincinnati, Ohio, in Collier's Weekly. They never reached a degree of development, it is believed, much beyond that of the cave men who lived in central Europe more than 25,000 years ago.

Kaolin, a Variety of Clay
Kaolin is a variety of clay, formed by the weathering of granite and certain other rocks. It burns to a pure white, and is used for the manufacture of pottery, such as porcelain and white earthenware. It is also employed in making some kinds of paper and in filling fabrics. Kaolin is found in a good many places in the United States, and though this country still imports a good deal of it, the domestic production is steadily rising. Vermont, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Delaware, North Carolina and Georgia all have productive deposits.

Peculiar Horn

The pronghorn antelope, which is 100 per cent American, is the only animal having a hollow horn, which branches and is shed every year.

Many Watermarks in P. O. Stamps
A total of 240 different types of watermark are on record as having been used in the paper on which postage stamps are printed.
