Mansion Museum And Living Advantages Here Subject Of Broadcast By Mrs. Magoffin Hardin.

TO TALK OVER WLAP AT 12:30 P. M. AUGUST 23

First Talk On Fort Harrod Last Sunday Brings Many Messages Of Interest And Congratulations.

Fort Harrod—its history and significance, along with a word picture of the present replica in Pioneer Memorial State Park—was the subject of a talk over radio station WLAP of the Lexington Herald Sunday afternoon by Mrs. E. Magoffin Hardin, of Harrodsburg. The program was sponsored by the Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Indianapolis, Ind., of which L. M. Hilliard, Danville, is general agent in Kentucky.

Mrs. Hardin told of the founding of the Fort in Harrodsburg and vividly described conditions among the pioneers of that day, telling of the obstacles they had to overcome in the founding of the first permanent settlement west of the Alleghenies.

She took her listeners on an imaginary trip through the present replica, describing in minute detail the features of its construction and its many interesting contents.

Following her radio talk, Mrs. Hardin was the recipient of many congratulatory messages, including a wire from Mrs. James Darnell, of Frankfort, former state park director. Congratulatory messages are continuing to pour in, both at Lexington and Harrodsburg.

Mr. Hilliard was so pleased with the wealth of material to be found in Mercer county that he decided to devote the program for two weeks to Mercer county. At 12:30 o'clock next Sunday afternoon Mrs. Hardin will delineate the advantages that Harrodsburg and Mercer county present, the agriculture of the country, the business and manufacturing advantages that Harrodsburg has to offer and other interesting facts.

Harrodsburg and Mercer county receiving two week's program, leads in "Bluegrass on Parade" the name of the program. Mr. Hilliard is sponsoring over a period of three months. The first program, given several weeks ago, featured Winchester and Clark County.

117 DEGREES IN SHADE IS A LITTLE TOO HOT

Although Kentuckians have been sweating and there is a county in the State that claims the heat is popping kernels on the cob in the "cawnp patch" this comes from a twelve-year-old former Kentucky girl to her grandfather: "I wish I was back in Kentucky where the thermometer registers 100 in the shade. Here in Oklahoma it is 117 in the shade and dust storms besides."

LAWRENCEBURG ROTARY ENJOYS HARRODSBURG TALENT

The program presented by Mrs. Errol Draffen and Mrs. Charles Matherly before the Lawrenceburg Rotary club a few days ago was called by the Lawrenceburg paper one of the best ever enjoyed by the club. Mrs. Draffen sang several solos and Mrs. Matherly illustrated some of them with colored chalk drawings as the songs were rendered. A picture of an Indian maid standing beside a beached canoe with her hand to her mouth as if calling across the water, made an attractive setting for Mrs. Draffen's "Indian Love Call." A "black mammy" in a cabin door, with flowers growing about, illustrated "My Old Kentucky Home." Both ladies are talented in their lines of art and music and gave the Lawrenceburg Rotarians a delightful meeting.

COUNTY MEETS PLANNED HERE

Agriculture Agent Park Will Hold Community Gatherings Throughout Mercer Beginning Monday.

Beginning Monday, August 24, and continuing through Friday, County Agent C. F. Park has arranged a series of community meetings for Mercer county farmers to explain more fully certain phases of the Soil Conservation Program, under which the committeemen and supervisors are now checking compliance.

Mr. Park says that these meetings will be of great importance to those who have made out work sheets and also to tenants on farms operating under a work sheet for 1936. He feels that these meetings are necessary, due to the fact that many farmers are yet unfamiliar with the regulations and the payments which they may obtain under the 1936 program.

All farm owners and operators have been mailed notices of community meetings scheduled at the following school houses: Rose Hill High School, Monday, August 24; Cornishville High School Tuesday August 25; McAfee High School, Wednesday, August 26; Burgin High School, Thursday, August 27; and Salvisa High School, Friday, August 28. All meetings will be held at 7:30 p.m. and will be in charge of the respective community committeemen. The committeemen for these communities are: First Community: J. H. Whitenack, chairman; E. L. GAS POCKET HIT IN DIGGING WELL

When Match Applied Flames Leap 6 Feet On Lawrence Catlett Farm Near Cornishville.

Drilling a well on his place a mile below Cornishville in the west section of Mercer county, Lawrence Catlett Wednesday struck gas and oil at a depth of about 50 feet. The gas made itself evident by a noise like air escaping from a punctured tire, and the strong odor made some of the workmen sick.

Mr. Catlett, to test the strength of the flow, put a lighted match to the hole and the blaze leaped up about six feet. It continued to burn without abating and at supper time Mr. Catlett took a skillet to the spot and friend meat for supper. Later the blaze was smothered in order that W. B. Matherly, the driller, might get his drill from the hole. Although the opening is securely covered over the noise of the escaping gas is still heard. Mr. Catlett will have experts examine the well.

38th TANK UNIT MAKES RECORD IN WAR MANEUVERS

Local National Guards Win Praise From High Officers For Splendid Work, Good Morale.

DETAILED IN VARIOUS TYPES OF SERVICE

Every Assignment Carried Out Well By Entire Company During Training At Fort Knox.

Returning from Fort Knox the first of the week from a two weeks training period, the 38th Tank Unit brought a splendid record for service as shown in the report of Lew Ullrich, who says:

The 1936 training schedule of the Kentucky National Guard covering fifteen days closed in a blaze of glory. The Kentucky troops including the 149th Infantry, 138th Field Artillery, 123rd Cavalry, 38th Military Police Company, 38th Tank Company, 113th Ordnance Company, 137th Hospital Company, 138th Hospital Company, 125th Wagon Company, 75th Infantry Brigade, 63rd Field Artillery Brigade, and Kentucky's allotment to the 38th Division Staff, consisting of approximately 2,500 officers and enlisted men, contributed a large share to the success of the United States Army war practice maneuvers conducted under the direct supervision of Major General William E. Cole, Fifth Corps Area Commander.

One of the most pleasing contributions to the success of the four day war maneuver between the Blue army and Red forces was the record made by members of the 38th Tank Company. Mercer County should be extremely pleased in having such an efficient and well trained National Guard unit.

Delay in the delivery of new tanks prevented the 38th Tank Company to function as an organized unit. As a result forty-two of its members were assigned to the Signal Company. One group, commanded by Sgt. James Parsons was assigned to the Radio section. In this capacity Harrodsburg troopers received and sent out all radio messages for the 38th Division which was composed of approximately 10,000 officers and enlisted men. A big job in any man's army; in fact, without communication the entire war maneuvers would have been destroyed.

Sgt. Franklin W. Jones was in charge of another group. These troopers were assigned to the construction section. In this assignment Sgt. Jones and his men were responsible for the installation of all signal and radio wiring which averaged about seven miles per day. In addition to this assignment, Sgt. Jones' detail erected and installed many radio receiving sets daily. The mission of this detail was to keep all communication lines clear in the entire 38th Division, which area covered about five miles.

Another detail assigned to the Harrodsburg unit was with the Division Message Center (telephone and telegraph). Sgt. Willard Freeman was in charge of the group. Sgt. Freeman's detail delivered all messages that came from the command post or sent from the Division. This assignment was one of the most important in the war maneuvers.

Lt. David H. Gritton assisted by Mess Sgt. Sam H. Rowland, and Cooks Johnnie Bottoms and Maurice Wilson have done such a fine job feeding 150 men per day during camp that there has not been a single complaint from the men about the food or service. This kitchen and Mess Hall was so well kept that not one of the many inspections, more than 2 a day have complained. That certainly is a job well done.

Sgt. George A. VanArsdale was in charge of what is known in war terms as the rear echelon, and Sgt. Floyd Gritton kept personnel records and supplies in excellent shape.

Capt. Bacon R. Moore, Lt. Edwin W. Rue and Sgt. J. W. Halcomb were assigned to assist the Division Intelligence Officer known as G-2. This section receives, classifies and evaluates all information concerning the enemy and forwards confidential and essential information to unit commanders.

First Lt. Truman Mayes was detailed to the Division chemical warfare school with Sgt. Willard Freeman. Both made excellent records. Lt. Mayes now is prepared to lecture and instruct on chemical warfare.

One of the regular Army instructors who served on five fronts during the world war heard to say, "I never saw men work harder under any and all conditions, exhibiting such splendid spirit and come through with such excellent morale."

Maj. Gen. William E. Cole, Commanding the Fifth Army Corps speaking of the Harrodsburg unit said, "I wish to compliment the officers and men for their enthusiasm under conditions physically very trying."

All of which means that the citizens of Harrodsburg can feel justly proud over its National Guard unit's contribution to the largest war maneuver ever staged in the United States. The Mercer county outfit set a mark for all others to shoot at.
