

THE HOUSE OF HAZARDS

By MAC ARTHUR

TWENTY - ONE YEARS AGO

FROM THE HERALD FILES

April 16, 1915
Lafon Riker, appointed chairman of street oiling committee at mass meeting Thursday night, called his committee together the next day, figured out the cost of oil and work and announced the matter would be pushed. It will cost more to spread the oil than it did last year as not so many prisoners are in the workhouse to do the labor. The committee is composed of Mr. Riker, James L. Isenberg, J. T. Ingram, D. M. Hutton, Curry Dedman and Minor Ramsdell.

A big fire swept the business section of Lawrenceburg Tuesday morning caused a loss of $125,000 with insurance amounting to about $60,000.

The contract for building the new A. D. Price Memorial Hospital was let to Cal F. Thomas, Louisville, who will tear down the old Smedley house and start to work on the new building at an early date. The new edifice will cost about $11,000 and the directors have on hand cash amounting to $6,633. The plans of Hannaford and Son were accepted as presented by their representative, Harold VanArsdale.

County Agent Collins Gentry was painfully hurt Saturday when the wind blew a heavy barn door he was opening against him, knocking him down and rendering him unconscious.

The building committee of the United Presbyterian church has selected the plans offered by Hannaford & Son, Cincinnati, for the new addition to the edifice.

Dr. Bunyan McLeod, pastor of the United Presbyterian church, had the honor of being elected Moderator of the North and South Presbyteries which met this week. With Howard Davis he went to Hustonville to the meeting of the Transylvania Presbytery, South, the first of the week. On Wednesday Dr. McLeod and George W. Edwards attended the meeting of Transylvania Presbytery, North, at Lebanon.

At a mass meeting of citizens in the Fiscal Court room Thursday night, the civic matters discussed were securing the Dixie Highway routing through Harrodsburg, better water and oiling the streets to allay the dust this summer.

The fine large old elm tree in the court house yard shows signs of dying, and Judge D. L. Curry has appointed Squire Terhune to look into the matter of preserving it.

Dr. C. D. Tucker suggests that main street be widened by taking off several feet of sidewalk on either side.

Deaths—News has been received here of the death at Shreveport, La., of Mrs. Mollie Bronson, formerly of Harrodsburg, Fla., small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Ballard, died Monday. Mrs. Mary Lee Rue, High Bridge, died Saturday. Mrs. Annie Bronough Stagg, wife of John Stagg, died Saturday.

NEGRO VENTRILOQUIST

Among the mourners at a negro funeral in Georgia was a ventriloquist whose peculiar power of "throwing" his voice was unknown to the others. The details of all that happened will never be known, due to lack of eye witnesses. One of the mourners gave this somewhat sketchy version of what he saw and heard:

"Just when dey wuz startin' to lower Joe in his grave, he says 'Lemme down easy, says' Lawzee, dey just draps poor Joe in his grave an' runs."

"Did some one else finish the burial?" a bystander asked.

"Man, how wuz I to know? I nevah even stopped to look back."

SEVEN CLAIM REWARD FOR KY. BANK THIEF CAPTURE

Attorneys Baird and Richardson of Glasgow have filed suit in the Metcalfe Circuit Court against the Kentucky Bankers' Association for $500 claimed by seven persons alleged to have aided in the capture of Luther Bardin, who was convicted of robbing the Farmers and Merchants Bank at Edmonton on December 14, 1935.

BRUCE BARTON Says:

America is Complex
For the first time in my life I had the experience of flying clear across the continent and back. Leaving New York at ten o'clock Thursday night, we were in Los Angeles Friday afternoon. With all day Saturday for work, I dined with friends Saturday night, left Sunday afternoon, and was back in the office Monday morning.

One could write many essays on this experience. One might enthuse, for example, over the amazing progress made in aviation. It was only thirteen years ago that I took my first flight, across the English Channel from London to Amsterdam. The ship was a noisy old crate and, though the air was fairly smooth, most of the passengers were sick. Today's big ships belong to a different generation in quietness and comfort.

One could speculate on what it will mean to the future of the world to have its widely separated segments knit together by this space-destroying power. Peoples will be drawn closer. But also the instruments of destruction, as well as pests and germs, can be carried faster and farther.

But the thought that kept recurring to me was of the immensity of this country and the diversity of its busy interests. We passed over states interested mostly in manufacturing; states interested in cotton; states interested in wheat; states interested in silver. Sometimes we flew so low that it was possible to look down and see the citizens scurrying around about their multitudinous affairs.

I thought of the men who sit in directors' rooms and make their plans to excite these millions of minds about a certain product. And of other men who meet in some New York Club, and say: "We ought to get the American people to think so and so."

There are one hundred and thirty million of these American people, and they have an awful lot on their minds besides the things the advertisers and the propagandists want to put there. Trying to persuade them to think this or that is a whale of a job.

Panic Starter Found

One of my young friends claims that he is the man who touched off the stock market bust in 1929, the beginning of the depression. He says: "Living modestly, I had put away a little money every year, and up until 1929 I invested it in the safest sort of bonds. Everybody around me was buying stocks. Fellows whose salaries were about the same as mine would pick up the evening paper and say: 'Well, not so bad, not so bad. I made $70 today.' Or they would say: 'The little old market shelled out twice as much for me last week as I collected from the job.'"

"To all this I paid no attention. I had a plan for my life and I was satisfied. But in 1929 the pressure got too strong. My associates were buying new cars, moving into bigger houses, taking trips—all on what they expected to shake down from the market. They told me, in no uncertain language that I was just a plain dumb fool—and finally I couldn't stand it any longer."

"I went to the deposit box, pulled out my good old bonds, took them to a broker and said: 'Sell these and buy me as many stocks as the law allows.' This was late in October 1929. The following day there was a deep rumble in Wall street, and by night the market had burst wide open."

"I can't prove anything, of course, but I have always suspected that when my name turned up in that broker's office he telephoned J. P. Morgan and said: 'All right, Mr. Morgan, little old Joe Smith has just checked in. The last sucker is now present and accounted-for. There are no more. Pull the plug. So the panic started.'"

This is a story for all the sheep and little lambs. The build-up of the present market begins to look suspiciously like the good old days of 1928-29. Who will be the last sucker in this time?

SOMETHING DIFFERENT

At Somerset Tony Maxey, of Celina, Tenn. secretary of the Cumulative Valley Association, with missionary fervor, explains how TVA plans improving the surroundings of the impoundments it creates; improving opportunities for welfare; improving soil, as a means of procurement of livelihood; improvements, and distributing electric current locally.

That's the difference between the TVA plan and the old plan of private enterprise.

Only five per cent of Mercer county farms have electric current.

Dix Dam has not industrialized the vicinity of Lake Herrington. TVA is an experiment admittedly. It is an effort to benefit a population; not merely a plan to transport power from scene of production for profit.—Louisville Times.

NOT A FAIRY TALE!

(Lebanon Enterprise)

Anderson's Fairy Tales would have probably titled this unusual story "How Thomas Stayton, 81, of Riley, Found His Brother." After a Thirty-Seven Year Separation." It seems that J. S. Stayton, of Shively read an article which said that F. M. Stayton, 92, of Carlinville, Ill., had applied for a pension. The Shively resident wrote to Carlinville and established the fact that the aged gentleman was his uncle, and then wrote to his father in Marion county. The brothers, each long believing the other dead, are planning a reunion. Maybe it has already taken place by now.

PULASKI SPORTSMEN

WILL CARE FOR QUAIL

The Pulaski County Game and Fish Protective Association will give cane seed to farmers who are not now growing cane and who will agree to sow one-half acre and leave some of the cane standing for the quail to feed on during the winter months. This action was taken at the monthly meeting of the club held Thursday night at the office of Denney-Murrell-Ramsey Undertaking Company. It was estimated that from five to eight pounds of seed would sow from one-half to one acre.

Protection, restoration and propagation of wild life and fish, the program of the association, will be presented to the fourteen 4-H Clubs of the county in the near future and the 500 members of the clubs will be asked to work with the protective organization.—Somerset Commonwealth.

STORED FOR POSTERITY

The voice of King George recorded for posterity both on steel tape and on ordinary gramophone records, will be kept in the vaults of the British Museum. Royal broadcasts, Christmas messages and his speeches at the silver jubilee ceremonies last year are included.

FAIRFAX HOME TO

BE-A COUNTRY CLUB

Built about 200 years ago, the Colonial home of Lord Brian Fairfax, a mile south of Alexandria, Va., is to become an exclusive country club, with many prominent Virginians and Washingtonians on the membership roster.

Situated at Mount Eagle, on the Richmond pike, the old mansion the last to be visited by General Washington before his death is now undergoing extensive repairs and renovation.

When the old town of Alexandria was under British rule, and infested with spies, Washington and Thomas Jefferson, it is said, found the home of the eighth Lord Fairfax a favorite rendezvous, and there, according to historic documents, these patriots started work on the Declaration of Independence.—Washington Star.

DRIVERS' LAW IN KENTUCKY

(Elizabethtown News)

Kentucky drivers' responsibility law is said to be something like the one in Ohio, and a recent news dispatch says that since the law has been effective in Ohio 821 drivers' licenses have been revoked.

The law in Kentucky, as we understand, does not require liability insurance upon the part of drivers, but provides that in the event of a wreck, if liability is established, the damages must be settled or the driver must render himself financially responsible to liquidate future damage or his automobile license and drivers' license will be revoked.

This doesn't benefit the victim of the first wreck, but it restrains a driver who is responsible financially from repeating the injury without being able to pay for it.

ONE WAY TO STOP DRINKING DRIVERS

There's one sure way of stopping the drinking driver, if the authorities really want to do something about it.

A license is required to drive. Make the applicant swear that he does not use intoxicating liquor, and then when officers of the law see a man leave a saloon; or see him drinking; or find that he has been drinking, after an arrest, file charges of perjury against him. A man addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors or narcotics is not eligible for a driver's license.

Enforcement of the law would cost the State and Government much revenue, but it would save a lot of lives and a lot of suffering.

KENTUCKY'S INCOME TAX REPORTED

The Treasury at Washington has announced Kentucky income tax collections for the first nine months of the fiscal year of $8,087,858, compared with $6,135,000 for the same period the previous year, and the 1933 low of $2,858,000.

Nobody could look much colder than a girl in a new spring coat when the March winds are blowing; and, on the other hand, nobody could look much hotter than a plump woman in a fur coat on a warm spring day.

Don't Prolong The Agony!

Next time you suffer from Gas on Stomach, Headache, Sour Stomach, a Cold, Muscular, Rheumatic, Sciatic or Periodic Pains; That Tired Feeling, That "Morning After" Feeling. Get a glass of water and drop in one or two tablets of

Alka-Seltzer

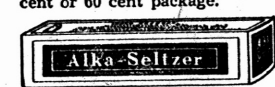

The New Pain-Relieving, Alkalizing, Effervescent Tablet

Watch it bubble up, then drink it. You will be amazed at the almost instant relief.

It is called Alka-Seltzer because it makes a sparkling alkaline drink, and as it contains an analgesic (Acetyl-Salicylate) it first relieves the pain of everyday ailments and then by restoring the alkaline balance corrects the cause when due to excess acid.

After trying many brands of medicines—so-called relief for gas, and all of them a failure, I gave up hopes. By chance I tried Alka-Seltzer—I am more than satisfied. Geo. Bennett, New York, N. Y.

NOT long ago I was like some friends I have... low in spirits... run-down... out of sorts... tired easily and looked terrible. I knew I had no serious organic trouble so I reasoned sensibly... as my experience has since proven... that work, worry, colds and whatnot had just worn me down.

"Yes, I have come back to where I feel like myself again."

The confidence mother has always had in S.S.S. Tonic... which is still her stand-by when she feels run-down... convinced me I ought to try this Treatment... I started a course... the color began to come back to my skin... I felt better... I no longer tired easily and soon I felt that those red-blood-cells were back to so-called fighting strength... It is great to feel strong again and like my old self.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained. Then you may suffer nagging backache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, puffiness under the eyes, feel nervous, miserable—all upset.

Don't delay? Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.
