APPROVE PLANS FOR THE ONWARD KY. EXPOSITION

Impetus Given To Movement Friday To Be Further Developed At Luncheon In Louisville

SHOW WILL BE JUNE 5, 6, 7, IN FRANKFORT

Handsome Cash Prizes In Various Classes To Bring Out Best Work Of Kentuckians.

With the luncheon in Louisville today at the Brown Hotel, Kentuckians will take another step in the plans for the Onward Kentucky Exposition. About 400 are invited to the luncheon, and committees on the various departments of the exposition will make reports, among them Col. James L. Isenberg, of this city, director of the movement. Hon. Frederick Wallis, exposition chairman, will preside at the luncheon, at which Col. Isenberg will make a new feature of the Onward Kentucky Movement, which he says will affect every community of the Commonwealth.

Kentuckians from all sections of the state, who comprise the committee of the Shakerettes Industries, met in Lexington Friday at the faculty club room of the University, to make final plans for the exposition. James Speed, Louisville presided, and Mr. Isenberg presented plans for the exposition which the committee approved.

The exposition will be held in the State Capitol Building at Frankfort, June 5, 6, and 7, with exhibits of unique articles produced in each of Kentucky's 120 counties on display. With the exception of hats, jellies and other non-perishable articles, no food products will be exhibited. Most of the articles on display are expected to be handicraft, weaving, home-made furniture and similar works.

The third day of the exposition, June 7, which falls on Sunday, will be open to the public free of charge, after the completion of church services at Frankfort. As this has been designated as "Boone Day," the exhibition on that day will be preceded by a pilgrimage from Daniel Boone's grave to the Capitol, where a noted minister will address the assembly and a choir of 500 voices will be heard. Nothing in the exposition will be sold on that day.

A permanent chairman will be appointed for each county to supervise the collection and arrangements of exhibits from that county. Assisting the county chairman in that work may be the county health officer, county health nurses, W. P. A. officials, public school teachers, county agents, county home demonstration agents, former county relief workers and county home visitors.

It will be at the discretion of each

LOCAL ANNIVERSARIES ON MONDAY, APRIL 20

Monday, April 20 was the anniversary of several interesting local events, according to T. M. Farnsworth, Harrodsburg's "Old Timer." The big Main street fire that wiped out nearly the whole of the Blue Front block occurred 46 years ago on that date. The fire started in a theatre that had formerly been the Northern Methodist church. Also 46 years ago, Charles W. Bell took the position as head of the Harrodsburg schools, a place he filled for some years.

Mr. Farnsworth says to him the most important anniversary was on that same date 44 years ago. A cold rain fell all day long until late in the afternoon the sun shone in time for his wedding and it left him in "hot water" ever since.

WRITES FOR THE ESQUIRE MAGAZINE

Friends here of Roger Bourland, of Lexington, were interested in the story of "The Burgomaster," in the May issue of the Esquire Magazine. Young Mr. Bourland is the son of Rev. E. B. Bourland and Mrs. Bourland, and lived in Harrodsburg where his father was a former pastor of the Christian church. His article concerns the making of the famous Kentucky burgoo. Several years ago his father had an article in the same magazine on the origin of the famous Walker foxhounds of Garrard county.

SENATE TODAY BILLED TO POLL CIGARETTE TAX

Senior Law Makers Take Up Measure After House Passes It By 56-42 Vote Wednesday.

GOV. CHANDLER WATCHES HIS TAX GO OVER PROTEST

Dog Racing Bill Smashed in House By 67-21, As Backers Claim Administration Nulls "Agreement."

With foes of the cigarette tax bill still fighting, the Administration's measure was before the Senate yesterday, after successfully passing the House Wednesday by a vote of 56 to 42. The final vote on the bill is set to be taken today. Gov. A. B. Chandler, after making a plea for the tax before the House, sat beside the Speaker's desk during the two-hour roll call Wednesday as members explained why their votes were for or against the measure. Mercer county's representative, Hon. Charles Matherly, voted against the tax, which would levy 1 cent on 10-cent brands and 2 cents on 15-cent brands.

A similar bill with higher rates of taxation was defeated in the Assembly last week by a 61 to 23 vote. The cigarette tax is being fought in a final battle by tobacco growers, and Gov. Chandler in his address to the House members said:

"This talk of the tax being a sales tax doesn't embarrass me. It's a consumer's tax and the rate on ten-cent cigarettes is the same as under the old sales tax."

"It has been charged that the people were not consulted. I held this tobacco bill out until Ben Kilgore, secretary of the State Farm Bureau, could survey the membership on their feelings toward this tax. I asked that they co-operate to raise part of the taxes in this way. After they had reported they couldn't support the tax, the bill was then submitted."

A fight also came up over the greyhound racing bill to the House after the tobacco tax was disposed of. Defeat of the greyhound racing bill marked the third time the 1936 general assembly refused to permit the dogs to compete with the state's horse racing. A bill similar to that rejected Wednesday by a 67 to 21 vote was defeated twice during the 1936 session.

Hon. Charles Matherly was one of the 67 legislators voting against legalizing the dog racing in Kentucky.

Several house proponents of the greyhound bill complained that an "agreement" for passage of both the tobacco tax and dog racing bills had been broken by administration forces. They said the trade, supposed to have been consummated last night, provided for administration support of the greyhound racing bill in exchange for support of the tobacco tax measure by the greyhound forces.

DIXVILLE STORE IS TOTAL LOSS

Fire of Unknown Origin Completely Destroys Building and Stock of Bugg & Cummings.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the general store and service station owned by Bugg & Cummings at Dixville in the west section of Mercer county last Wednesday.

James William Cummings, partner with William Bugg, of Harrodsburg, who operates the store, left for a few minutes between twelve and one o'clock at noon. During his absence Jack Devine arrived at the store and hearing the crackling of the blaze, looked through the window and saw smoke and summoned Cummings.

As the front interior was ablaze the two men broke a rear window, but the explosion of the coal oil tank drove them from the building after they had saved three pieces of the branch cream station equipment owned by Charles Leonard, at Rose Hill. The building was owned by Charles Patterson, of Perryville, who had no insurance. Bugg & Cummings' loss on stock and equipment was about $900 with $500 insurance. The service station equipment was owned by the Gulf Refining Company.

Mr. Bugg stated there was no clue to how the blaze originated as there had been no fire in the stove that day but it is supposed a stock of matches in a large tin container might have become ignited in some manner.
